BORAH SEIZES HIS CHANCE

McCUMBER GROUP DOUBTFUL

They May Bolt the Committee's Reservation if Drastic Modifications Are Made.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Threat of the defeat of the Foreign Relations Committee majority's reservation on Article X., relating to the guarantee of territorial integrity and political independence of members in the League of Nations, kept the majority forces in the Senate today from hurrying it to a vote. At the end of the day the reservation was still before the Senate after seven hours of debate.

The unexpected situation that caused the majority leaders to fear that the reservation might not prevail, if forced to an immediate vote, came as the outcome of the amendment to the reservation offered yesterday by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, under which all nations in the League of Nations would be released from obligations imposed under Article X., the United States also declining to participate in proceedings of the League Council in any matters coming up under the provisions of the article.

The majority forces, scenting a trick of the minority to achieve the defeat of the committee's reservation through making it so drastic that the middle-grounders among the Republican Senators could not support it, found themselves confronted with the possibility of the Walsh reservation being accepted through the votes of a group of radical Senators.

This difficulty caused Senator Lodge and his associates in the majority leadership to doubt the wisdom of allowing the Walsh reservation, which was pending, to come to a vote. Senator Walsh had offered his reservation, which would have the effect of eliminating Article X. from the treaty so far as the United States was concerned, after a conference with Senator Hitchcock and other minority leaders. Under its provisions, if it were adopted as a part of the committee's reservation, the United States would decline to be a party to any of the obligations imposed under Article X, and also relieve other nations of the slightest obligation toward the United States.

When the Walsh amendment was offered some eight or nine radical Republican Senators, it developed today, seeing an opportunity to eliminate Article X. as affecting the United States, hurriedly agreed among themselves to support it. Only a motion to adjourn, offered by Senator Lodge at the end of a prolonged debate, saved the amendment from being voted on yesterday.

Fears Middle-ground Defection.

Over night Senator Lodge and other majority leaders conferred with the radicals, urging them not to support the Walsh amendment. The likelihood of middle-ground Senators, led by McCumber, voting to reject the Lodge reservation if the amendment were attached to it, so as not to leave a "killing" reservation in the treaty, was urged upon the radicals.

When the Senate convened today four or five radicals had swung back to the Lodge program, it was stated. But there were not enough of these assurances to warrant Senator Lodge in allowing the amendment to reach a vote. Senators La Follette, Norris, and Gronna were named among those still bent on voting for it.

In the meantime, the middle-ground Senators declined to give Senator Lodge assurances that, if the Walsh amendment was voted into the committee's reservations they would support the latter. It is understood that Senator McCumber, as well as two or three others of the middle-grounders, informed Mr. Lodge that if the amendment won they would be forced to vote against the reservation. That the Administration forces would vote against the Lodge reservation with the Walsh amendment in it was admitted by their leaders. They simply wanted to make the committee's reservation impossible of support by the middle-ground Senators.

Although the prospect before the Lodge reservation looked rather uncer-

President, Able to Sit Up, Enjoys an Evening Serenade

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—For the first time since he returned from the West, ill from overwork, President Wilson today sat up in a wheel chair in his room at the White House.

The President remained in his wheel chair for an hour with the consent of his physicians and is declared to have been none the worse for his experience.

The President had planned some days in advance to leave his sickbed today as in some measure his own commemeration of the significance of Armistice Day, and reposing in a wheel chair was able to hear part of the program arranged by the singers in his honor.

The President asked to be permitted to sit up for a while after he heard the firing of shots from Lafayette Square, where a salute was being given as part of a celebration of Armistice Day. The President inquired about the firing and when he learned that Armistice Day was being celebrated he informed Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, his physician, that he was unable longer to remain in bed with such a celebration in progress.

PRINCE GREETED BY WASHINGTON

Marshall and Other High Officials and Diplomats Welcome Nation's Guest.

STATE DINNER IN HIS HONOR

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The Prince of Wales arrived in Washington today to become the guest of the nation. Murk and rain greeted him as he drove up Pennsylvania Avenue, the same broad thoroughfare through which his grandfather's carriage rolled nearly sixty years ago.

But despite the rain, the avenue and Sixteenth Street were lined with people, waiting to see the royal visitor. The Prince, affable and pleasant, bowed and saluted from the window of his limousine, and his pleasing and unaffected manner won the crowds.

It had been expected that he would see the President today, and he went to the White House soon after he arrived here. But after a ten-minute call on Mrs. Wilson and Miss Margaret Wilson, it was announced that the visit to the President would be paid next Thursday. Mrs. Wilson this afternoon invited the Prince to an informal tea Thursday afternoon, and Rear Admiral Grayson, the President's physician, decided that at that time the Prince would be admitted to the President's bedroom for a short time.

The Prince's Greeting to the Nation.

The Prince this evening gave the press the following message to the American people:

"I am very glad to take advantage of the invitation of the National Press Club to send a few words of greeting to the American people on my first arrival in their beautiful capital. It would have been a very great regret to me had the President's illness unhappily prevented me from fulfilling my keen desire to visit the United States this year, and for this personal reason, as well as for much wider ones, I rejoice in his steady improvement.

"I know that you gentlemen of the Washington press are very highly trained critics of public writing and public speech, and I am not at all your equal in that respect; but, happily for me, what I want to say to you is easily said. It is to tell the American people through you with what pleasure I recall my visits to their gallant forces in Europe last Winter, and how glad I am now to be making acquaintance with the great people from whom those forces came. I was able to visit several of your divisions in France and Germany, and also the very smart 6th Battle Squadron which you sent to join the Grand Fleet in the North Sea. The spirit of your soldiers and sailors, officers and men, appealed to me very strongly and made me wish to know their country and their kin. The rapidity of your organization, moreover, enabled me to realize with what devotion and what strength this mighty nation can espouse a noble cause.

"Now that I am really here in the United States I feel that my anticipations will be completely fulfilled. Your institutions, your ways of life, your aims are as democratic as ours, and the atmosphere in which I find myself is the same invigorating and familiar atmosphere which I have always noticed in my American friends.

"I thank you, gentlemen of the press, who command so vast a public and who

I. W. W. TAKEN AND HANGED

SERVICE MEN INTERFERED

Mob Lynches One Assailant.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 11.—About 8 o'clock tonight the mob surrounding the Centralia Jail succeeded in getting one of the I. W. W.'s arrested out of the jail and into an automobile, rushing him away before the guards could prevent it, telephone reports here said.

At 7:30 tonight the city's lights suddenly were cut off and a volley of shots rained down Pearl Street. It was during this period that the prisoner was taken from jail and spirited away. He was rushed toward a nearby wood, and at last accounts the crowd had disappeared with him.

According to a report telephoned to The Associated Press tonight from The Centralia Chronicle, the mob took the alleged I. W. W. from jail, escorted him to a point just outside the city limits, and hanged him on a bridge on the old Chehalis military road.

"The man's body is now hanging on a rope under the bridge about ten feet from the water," the message said. "The I. W. W. whom the mob lynched was the one who shot Dale Hubbard during the fight in the river bed."

CENTRALIA, Wash., Nov. 11.—Four former soldiers, members of the American Legion, were killed, two other service men were probably fatally wounded, and several other soldiers were less seriously hurt when members of the Industrial Workers of the World fired on an Armistice Day parade today as it passed the I. W. W. Hall.

The marching veterans raided the hall, seized supposed snipers to the number of eight, according to one account, and sixteen, according to another, and escorted them to jail, protecting them from a mob that tried to seize them.

Early tonight a meeting to discuss the situation was held at a local club, and soon afterward the city's electric lights failed. In the darkness one man was removed from the jail. Apparently he was placed in an automobile, waiting in readiness, and, flanked by six other cars filled with men, was hurried into a wood near the town.

Reports say that the prisoner was hanged to a bridge. There seems to be no doubt that he was lynched. It became known tonight that the victim was Britt Smith, Secretary of the I. W. W. local here.

Rumors of more violence to come were current late tonight. More than one citizen remarked: "There will not be any I. W. W.'s left in the jail by morning."

The victims of the sudden attack by the Reds, which has infuriated the town and surrounding country, were as follows:

CASAGRANDA, Ben, Centralia.
GRIMM, WARREN C., Centralia.
HUBBARD, DALE, Centralia.

Wounded.

FRISCUS, —, Chehalis.
WATT, —, Chehalis.

The shooting began when the parade drew abreast of the Industrial Workers of the World Hall, according to witnesses, the bullets going over the heads of the crowds watching the parade. Onlookers say the shots came from every direction and that snipers in the upper windows of the I. W. W. headquarters building fired into the line.

McElfresh was killed instantly. Grimm, who formerly was a Lieutenant, was leading a platoon in the parade and fell at the second burst of fire, fatally wounded. He was an attorney and once a football star at the University of Washington. The death of this athletic idol especially angered the populace.

Casagranda, who was a real estate agent, received a fatal wound in the first fire.

A rifle bullet struck him in the body. "They got me this time," he said, as he doubled up and fell in the street.

North Dakota Seizes Mines Under Rule of Martial Law

BISMARCK, N. D., Wednesday, Nov. 12.—Governor L. J. Frazier early today announced that he had proclaimed martial law in North Dakota and that the State would take over the lignite coal mines at once, following failure of miners and operators to come to an agreement last night as requested by the Governor.

The Governor's action was taken following receipt of word at the Capitol late last night that the miners would return to work under Governor Frazier's orders, but not because the national strike had been officially called off.

Governor Frazier said that the State would run the mines and supply the people with coal until the operators and miners were able to run them.

BANK HEADS CONFER ON SPECULATION

The credit and banking situation, with especial reference to conditions brought about by speculation in the stock market, were discussed at a special meeting at the Federal Reserve Bank yesterday, at which W. P. G. Harding, Governor, and Albert Strauss, Vice Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, were present. Mr. Harding and Mr. Strauss came from Washington particularly to attend. Benjamin Strong, Governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, also attended; but the names of local bankers who were present were withheld.

Following the meeting Governor Harding said he saw nothing to be alarmed at in the situation of the moment. He added that the situation was rather grave, and explained that he and Mr. Strauss had come to inform themselves at first hand. He intimated that the liquidation of loans was progressing fairly satisfactorily, and was inclined to discredit rumors that the Reserve Banks are likely again to increase rediscount rates. Mr. Strong said there was no basis for rumors that the Directors of the local Reserve Bank would increase the rates of discount at their meeting today.

It was learned that bankers and officials, here and in Washington, are displeased with the widespread speculation in securities and commodities, and are considering steps to check the movement. The attitude of some leading officials, it is understood, is that the speculation in stocks here is more conspicuous than speculation elsewhere, and that its continuation will have a decidedly unfavorable effect psychologically on the country and on the banking and credit situation. It also is felt that the curbing of stock market speculation automatically will tend to curb the others.

Following the conference it was learned that the Reserve Board members will not personally visit other so-called centres of speculation. Conditions obtaining in speculative centres other than New York will be taken up at the conference of the Federal Reserve Advisory Council in Washington next Wednesday and at the conference of Governors of the reserve banks, which is scheduled for the day following.

Meanwhile the credit situation here became more acute yesterday. Call money on the Stock Exchange opened and renewed at 14 per cent., the highest renewal rate recorded thus far, and in the afternoon call loans were negotiated at as high as 25 per cent., the highest rate on the Stock Exchange since the panic days of 1907. About $1,000,000, it was learned, was loaned at the maximum figure. During most of the day, while the demand for funds was not as heavy as on many recent days, the supply was considerably below normal, and at times the money brokers were without funds.

The stock market, adversely influenced by the high call money rates and by the general uneasiness over the credit situation and other unfavorable developments in the day's news, was weak throughout the session. Some stocks broke badly. The highly speculative industrial shares suffered most severely, with issues like American Tobacco, Cuba American Sugar, General Motors, Mexican Petroleum, and United Fruit sustaining declines of 10 to more than 20 points. At the low prices many stocks were down 20 to 50 points from the high prices of last week, when the decline started.

Inquiry among the banks disclosed that many institutions are reducing their loan commitments, and it was said none of the banks was inclined to expand its loan positions. Not only has the stock market speculation absorbed a vast amount of credit, but other influences are at work which make it essential that new commitments be entered into only in extreme cases.

The recent shipping strike and the subsequent congestion in the port have tied up vast quantities of what should be liquid credit, it is said. It has forced more than a few banks to refuse to extend further accommodation for foreign business. Yesterday one leading institution said it had more than $56,000,000 tied up in credits extended to cover shipments abroad, and had been brought to a position where it would not venture further to extend itself. Estimates of the total amount tied up around New York run as high as $300,000,000, with some authorities placing the figure much higher.

WIDER WAGE CONFERENCE

OLD DEMANDS DISCARDED

SEE SETBACK TO RADICALS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Prompt action by the Federal Government today in taking steps to bring together the coal miners and operators for a settlement of their differences followed the decision of the United Mine Workers' leaders to recall the strike order.

After a meeting of the Cabinet, Secretary of Labor Wilson called both sides in the controversy to meet here at 11 o'clock next Friday morning. The mine workers accepted, and, although no formal reply has come from the operators so far, Secretary Wilson was advised unofficially that they would comply.

Before Secretary Wilson issued his summons Thomas T. Brewster, Chairman of the Coal Operators' Association in the central competitive field, had telegraphed to Acting President Lewis of the mine workers proposing a conference for Monday. In reply Lewis notified Brewster of the acceptance by the miners of Secretary Wilson's invitation. It is fully expected that the meeting will be held on Friday, as requested by the Secretary.

It is believed that when the miners and operators meet a letter will be read to them from President Wilson in which he will make plain his position in the controversy and will urge a just settlement of all matters in issue. No word relative to the outcome of the strike controversy came from the White House beyond the brief statement that the President was delighted at the patriotic stand taken by the officials of the miners' organization.

Secretary Wilson sent three telegrams calling the operators and miners in conference here. The telegrams to Brewster and Lewis were almost identical. In order that the conference might be national in scope, Secretary Wilson also wired Harry N. Taylor, President of the National Coal Association, to designate representatives of all the operators to come to Washington for the conference.

That the conference will assemble with both sides ready to talk business and, if necessary, meet each other half way, is the opinion in Washington.

Government Seeks Just Agreement.

The Federal Government will be deeply interested in the work of the conference and, if necessary, it will seek to secure for the miners a wage and hour schedule that will meet the present high cost of living. This statement was made at the Department of Justice this afternoon. Attorney General Palmer, it is said, fully realizes that the miners have just claims and, now that they have met the Government's demands in the situation, it will be the pleasure of the Government to assist them in every way possible. That the operators are also anxious to reach an agreement that will satisfy everybody concerned is known and it is considered certain that the new contract to be entered into will grant the miners a substantial increase in pay.

The assertion of the miners that they have not been able to put in a forty-eight-hour week since the armistice was signed is borne out by statistical data on file in the offices of the Geological Survey. Since the fighting ceased, the average work week in the bituminous coal fields has been only thirty hours. In April last it was less than twenty-three hours, in May about twenty-six hours, in June twenty-eight hours, in July thirty-one hours, in August thirty hours, in September thirty-four hours, and in October about thirty-six hours. As the miners are paid by the hour they have said that they have not had sufficient work to meet the increased cost of living.

There was much talk today regarding the stand taken by the executive officials of the Federation last Sunday, and there were many persons, some in official life, who were of the opinion that Mr. Gompers and his associates who issued the defiant statement had lost much prestige by their action. By many the statement of the Executive Council of the Federation at that time was considered as an indirect invitation to the miners to refuse to obey the law and to continue on strike.

"As a matter of fact," was the way one official expressed it, "Mr. Gompers and his associates jumped into the radical pot, whereupon Mr. Lewis and his colleagues, taking a different view of the situation, jumped out."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, after a special meeting today, issued this statement:

The Executive Council notes the fact that in the statement issued by Attorney General Palmer, which beyond doubt was called forth by the statement issued by the Executive Council at its meeting Sunday, Nov. 9, and published in the newspapers Monday, Nov. 10, the Attorney General evades in the main not only the declarations of principle involved in the restraining order and the mandatory features of the injunction issued by Judge Anderson, but that Mr. Palmer wholly ignores the assertion made by the Executive Council that a pledge was made by the Government officials and by members of Congress that the Lever act was never intended to apply to the activities of wage earners engaged in any strike or lockout relative to wages, hours, and conditions of employment, and that the Lever act could not be applied by the Government to wage earners engaged in such activities.

The Attorney General evades and ignores the broken pledge and bad faith of the Administration in respect to these facts.

When the Federation Council's statement was shown to Attorney General Palmer he made no comment. One of his assistants, however, pointed out that the statement was answered yesterday when Mr. Palmer announced that the records of the Department of Justice showed no record of such an agreement as is asserted by Mr. Gompers and his associates to have been made, and that Congress specifically refused to exempt labor from the provisions of the law, after such exemption had been urged by Senator Hollis of New Hampshire.

DRASTIC PENALTIES PLANNED FOR REDS

A SCORE OF RADICALS HELD

Twenty-four radicals held in bail ranging from $3,500 to $5,000 each to answer a charge of anarchy, and completion of preliminary deportation hearings for eighty-two radicals held on Ellis Island were two results yesterday of the working of American law to protect American institutions.

Convinced that all agencies are determined to make the present campaign against sedition a final one, agitators of all types and nationalities have begun an exodus from here to Canada or Mexico, said officials. None of the men wanted by the authorities, however, will escape this way, because both borders are being watched. In addition there are to be more raids in New York City.

Proof that Lenin himself had dictated the Bolshevist operations in this city was said yesterday to be in the hands of agents of the Lusk Committee. It was stated that among the documents obtained by the State investigating body in its recent raids were some signed by Lenin personally. These will be offered in evidence in due time.

While no official would confirm the statement, it was intimated that the radicals caught in the raids might be tried under State rather than Federal law. It was explained that the New York law fitted the circumstances of the charges better and also admitted of more drastic punishment.

First Prisoner a Youth.

The first of those arrested by the raiders was Irving Potash of 220 Roebling Street, Brooklyn. He is eighteen years old, slender and of the "student" type. He was before Magistrate O'Neill at the morning session of the Bridge Plaza Court. On his arraignment the police charged that Potash was the Secretary of the Communist organization at 208 Grand Street, Brooklyn. He was arrested there on Saturday night while distributing what the police charged to be anarchistic literature. Potash entered a plea of not guilty, and Magistrate O'Neill fixed bonds at $5,000.

Following the arraignment of Potash before Magistrate O'Neill, five others charged with criminal anarchy were brought into court. They were Michael Zawarich of 66 South Sixth Street, Taft Noyack of 104 North Portland Avenue, Robert E. Fried of 205 South Sixth Street, B. Goldberg of 107 Forsythe Street, and Julius Janushky of 93 South Second Street. They were held in $3,500 bail for examination tomorrow.

Eighteen others who landed in police hands through raids were arraigned before Chief Magistrate McAdoo shortly after 3 o'clock. Charles Recht appeared on behalf of the prisoners, while Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger and Archibald Stevenson of the Lusk committee appeared against them. The charge against the prisoners, which they must answer tomorrow morning before Magistrate Alexander Brough, is criminal anarchy, in that they are alleged to be members of the Communist Party, which advocates the overthrow of the United States Government.

The eighteen were lined up before Magistrate McAdoo and put up their right hands as their names were called. These are the names they gave: Louis Shapiro, 367 South Fifth Avenue, Yonkers; Nathan Schector, 347 Monroe Street; Moses Zimmerman, 155 For-

MINERS RESPONDING TO LEADERS' ORDER

SOME FIELDS MAY HOLD OUT

Workers in Kansas and Iowa Are Reported Determined to Continue the Strike.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 11.—The 42,000 striking mine workers in District No. 17, which includes the greater part of West Virginia and a section of Eastern Kentucky, were ordered back to work by C. F. Keeney, District President, in telegrams received at district headquarters of the United Mine Workers here tonight from Indianapolis. The telegram said:

"Strike order rescinded. Order men back to work."

More than a score of miners from outlying sections who were waiting at headquarters for the news immediately started out to notify the men. The order was relayed also by telephone to the various local presidents.

Mr. Keeney, District Secretary of the mine workers, said that it would "at least be three days" before all of the striking miners would be back at work. He said that many of the more than 400 sub-districts could not be reached by telephone and would have to be notified by mail.

When asked if the miners would obey the order to return to work Mr. Mooney said: "I can't tell you, for I don't know."

"Many men have reported to headquarters that miners in their sections will refuse to obey the order," said Mr. Blizzard, "but I feel confident that we can get them back to work in a few days."

Preparations are being made by army officers here today to protect every mine in the district should radicals seek to prevent union miners from obeying the order of their leaders.

At the same time it was announced that Major Gen. Leonard Wood, commanding the Central Department, would arrive here tomorrow to inspect the 1,600 Federal troops on duty in the strike region.

Intelligence officers reported the presence of a number of well known radicals in the district, and learned that a movement is under way to "prevent men from returning to work."

Topographical maps, showing the location of every mine in West Virginia have been made by the military for possible emergency and coal operators have provided a list of mines where "trouble is anticipated," as one of them expressed it.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 11.—The miners in District 5, United Mine Workers of America, were waiting today to hear from their local President, Philip Murray, who had not returned from Indianapolis late tonight, but it is known that they are ready to resume work at a few hours' notice.

At the office of the local President it was said tonight that the representatives of the union at the different mines could be reached in a very short time, and it is believed that work will be resumed in full by Thursday morning.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 11.—As soon as official advices are received from Indianapolis the coal miners in the Alabama district will return to work, according to Secretary J. L. Clem of District 20, United Mine Workers of America, who said tonight that the miners are law-abiding citizens and

MINERS OBEY THE COURT

RESCIND STRIKE IN TIME SET

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 11.—A way for the adjustment of the controversy between the bituminous coal operators and the United Mine Workers of America, which resulted in a strike of 425,000 union miners and action by the Government in the Federal Courts, appeared in sight tonight, according to the view here.

While the representatives of the miners, who early in the day after an all-night session had agreed to comply with the mandate of Judge A. B. Anderson of the Federal District Court, and late today mailed an order rescinding the strike, were discussing the future policy of the organization, telegrams were received from W. B. Wilson, Secretary of the Department of Labor, and Thomas T. Brewster, Chairman of the operators' Scale Committee, by John L. Lewis, acting President of the miners, inviting the miners' representatives into a conference.

Mr. Lewis, on behalf of the miner workers, accepted the invitation of Secretary Wilson to meet the bituminous operators in Washington Friday morning, and replied to Mr. Brewster, who requested a meeting of the Central Competitive Scale Committee with the operators of the district in Washington Monday "to negotiate a contract to be in force upon the termination of the contract now in effect," that the miners had already accepted the invitation to Mr. Wilson.

In commenting on the telegram from Mr. Brewster, Ellis Searles, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal, and other officials of the organization, who were under the impression that Mr. Brewster's message was sent after he received Secretary Wilson's invitation, declared that they saw in the operators' offer an attempt to entrap the miners into a tacit acknowledgment that the Washington wage agreement was still in force. The miners have contended throughout the controversy that the wage contract has expired.

"It was a neat little political move on the part of the operators," said Mr. Searles. "They believed we would accept their proposal and in doing so admit that the Washington wage agreement was still operative. The miners, however, accepted the offer of Secretary Wilson to meet him in Washington Friday and merely wired Mr. Brewster to that effect. Mr. Wilson's message was also timed one hour earlier in filing than Mr. Brewster's. We have maintained all along that the Washington contract died with the war activities and that at present the mine workers have no contract with the operators of the central competitive field."

Orders Off Within Time Fixed.

It was said at the international headquarters of the organization here that practically all the copies of the order which called off the nation-wide bituminous coal strike were in the mails before the time limit set by Judge Anderson, 6 o'clock this evening. The recall order had previously been submitted to Judge Anderson, who characterized it as a "good faith effort" to comply with the court's mandate. This was after the General Committee of the miners, composed of international officials, district Presidents, and members of the Executive Board, and Scale Committee, had been in session approximately eighteen hours, and at 4:10 this morning decided to comply with the mandate of the court.

After the General Committee, which went into session at 2 o'clock this afternoon as a policy committee, had decided to accept the invitation of Secretary Wilson and refuse that of Mr. Brewster, the committee adjourned at 5 o'clock, and many members began to make preparations for their homeward trips, those going to Washington for the Friday meeting making railroad reservations.

The Wilson invitation was not limited to the Scale Committee of the mine workers, as was the Brewster proposal. William Green, Secretary-Treasurer of the Union, explained that every district in the United States would be represented at the conference Friday, from Washington State to Maryland. The miners who will attend the meeting will include the international officers, district Presidents, or whomever the districts choose to send, members of the Executive Board and of the Scale Committee, practically the same make-up as the General Committee which has been meeting here.

Although the strike has been called off, court action in the strike case pre-not been completed. The miners' attorneys are preparing their writ of error with a view to appealing the case to the Circuit Court of Appeals and expect to file their petition within a few days. The attorneys stated that they expected to carry the case to the highest tribunal of the country if the Government was upheld in all lower courts.

From the standpoint of the Government the miners themselves are not absolved from further obedience to the court's injunction through withdrawal of the strike order, and unless the case is dismissed injunction writs served on more than sixty of the United Mine Workers' officials are returnable before Dec. 2.

Thirty-one officials of the organization were served with copies of the temporary restraining order issued Oct. 31, returnable Nov. 20. About twenty-five others were served during a session of the conference yesterday with copies of the temporary restraining order issued Saturday.

There was much speculation here tonight as to how the notice of withdrawal of the strike order would be received by the miners in the fields. In some quarters it was believed that the men would return almost as a unit on orders from their union chiefs. However, there were indications in some districts that a feeling against obeying the order to resume work existed. Delegates to the conference who were questioned on this subject would make no predictions.

Present Recall Letter to Court.

A few minutes before 10 o'clock this morning Mr. Warrum, G. L. Grant of Fort Smith, Ark., and Fred C. Huebner of Alba, Iowa, attorneys for the Mine Workers, went to the Federal Building with the recall letter. The Federal Government was represented by L. Ert Slack, United States District Attorney, and Dan W. Simms, Special Assistant United States District Attorney, appointed to look after enforcement of the temporary restraining order and the temporary injunction. Before the matter was presented to Judge Anderson Mr. Warrum handed the recall letter to the attorneys for the Government. The letter read:

Dear Sirs and Brothers:" In obedience to the mandate issued on Nov. 8 by the United States District Court, District of Indiana, Judge A. B. Anderson presiding, the undersigned hereby advise you that the order of Oct. 15 directing a cessation of mining operations in the bituminous coal fields of our jurisdiction is withdrawn and cancelled. Yours fraternally,

JOHN L. LEWIS, Acting President.
WILLIAM GREEN, Secretary-Treasurer.

The attorneys for the Government compared the letter with the strike call and when Judge Anderson entered the room Mr. Simms handed it to the Judge.

"That complies with the order, as I take it, doesn't it?" said Judge Anderson after reading it.

"Now let me see the strike order," he ordered, and after reading it also, he observed:

"I think this is a compliance with the order. I think it is a good faith compliance."

The attorneys for the Government agreed that it was.

"That was the intention," said attorneys for the miners.

Mr. Warrum then said the letter would be printed at once and that many copies would be in the mails before 6 o'clock this evening as the court order required, but that it might not be possible to mail all the copies by that time.

"A good faith effort will be compliance," said the court.

Asked for Early Negotiations.

After Mr. Warrum had talked with Mr. Simms suggesting that statements be made by both advising an early meeting of miners and operators to negotiate a new wage agreement and asking cooperation of the Federal Government to this end, Mr. Warrum dictated the following statement:

"The operators have repeatedly declared that they were ready to enter into negotiations with the miners if this strike order were withdrawn. The Government has taken the position that in the vindication of its own supremacy the strike order must be withdrawn before they would take any steps to compel the resumption of such negotiations. The issue has been submitted to the court and in compliance with the court's ruling the strike order has been canceled and withdrawn.

"It seems to me that good faith on the part of the operators requires them to meet the miners' representatives at once for the purpose of negotiating a settlement of the wage controversy, and that good faith on the part of the Government requires it to see that such a resumption of negotiations is had at once and concluded without delay."

Acting President John L. Lewis of the mine workers, in announcing the decision to obey the court order, said:

"We will comply with the mandate of the court. We do it under protest. We are Americans. We cannot fight our Government. That is all."

Mr. Lewis glanced at his watch and announced that the decision was reached at 4:10 this morning. The conference, after an all-day and an all-night session, adjourned at 4:15 this morning.

Green Assails the Government.

Just before the miners convened this afternoon William Green, Secretary-Treasurer of the Miners' Union, issued the following statement:

"The United Mine Workers' representatives decided to obey the mandate of the Federal court, but in doing so they feel a great injustice has been done them. No attention has been paid to their grievances. The power of the Federal Government was united with the coal operators for the obvious purpose of forcing them to work under intolerable conditions and against their will.

"One may reasonably ask if forcing men to work against their will and without a contract is not involuntary servitude? It is surprising, indeed, that such a condition would be tolerated in America, where involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, is prohibited by the Federal Constitution. Evidently the Government determined that the miners must be compelled to work regardless of their grievances, their protests, or their constitutional rights.

"What must be the state of mind of the miners who, while smarting with a sense of injustice, are driven back to the mines over their protest and against their will by the very Government which they supported and served so loyally during the war with Germany?

"What must be the feeling of these men when they realize that the Federal Government chose to protect the coal operators who profiteered during the war and to crush the miners when they are striving for decent tolerable conditions of employment and a higher standard of life?

"In fairness to the miners, the Government ought to have directed its legal and moral force toward compelling the operators to meet the miners in joint conference for the purpose of negotiating an agreement and for the settlement of just grievances.

"In behalf of the Mine Workers' Organization, I protest against the gross injustice which the Federal Government has inflicted on the mine workers of America."

Says Patriotism Actuates Miners.

Patriotic devotion to the Government and American ideals and institutions caused the United Mine Workers of America to comply with the order of the United States Court to withdraw the strike order, according to a statement made tonight by Ellis Searles, editor of The United Mine Workers' Journal. The statement follows:

"When the officials of the United Mine Workers of America announced that they would comply with the order of the United States Court and obey its mandate, they simply followed the historic policy of the union of patriotic devotion to the Government and American ideals and institutions. The United Mine Workers will not fight the Government. It is their Government just as it is the Government of every other citizen. It is their Government just as it is the Government of the coal operators.

"As far as their dispute with the coal operators is concerned, the miners contended all along and still contend that their cause is just, and that they are entitled to higher wages and better working conditions. So long as it was a controversy between the miners and the operators, the miners were determined to wage their battle for the things which they believed then and now they were entitled to.

"But when the Government entered the case and proceeded to make a fight against the miners, the entire situation was changed. They felt that the Government was wrong in taking this position, and they contested in the courts the right of the Government to do so. But the court ruled against them and laid down the law, and the miners accepted the mandate of the court because they are good Americans who believe in law and order, and who always have insisted on lawful and orderly methods of procedure.

"There is nothing new in this attitude of the coal miners. In every instance where Americanism was needed, in every emergency where American citizens had to come to the aid of their country, the coal miners of America have led the way.

"Eighty thousand members of the United Mine Workers of America entered the military service in the world war, and more than 5,000 gave their lives in that struggle. The United Mine Workers and its members bought more than $10,000,000 worth of Liberty bonds out of their small earnings. They contributed hundreds of thousands of dollars to the Red Cross, the Salvation Army, the Knights of Columbus, the Y. M. C. A., and every other war relief fund. The nation asked the coal miners for a maximum output of coal during the war and they produced more coal than ever before in the history of the world.

"The coal miners believe in observance of the law of the land. When their Government speaks they obey, regardless of personal sacrifices. Naturally, then, when the Government told them to pull off the strike they responded patriotically and loyally.

"Now, what will the operators do?"

Alexander Howat of Pittsburgh, Kan., President of District No. 14, asserted this afternoon that his statement before leaving Pittsburgh still stands.

LEADERS WORN OUT BY ALL-NIGHT DEBATE

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 11.—With the attention of the whole country focused on their deliberations the leaders of the United Mine Workers of America battled all day Yesterday, all last night until early this morning to decide on the course that the 400,000 members of their organization should take in the face of the Federal Court mandate that the strike order be recalled.

The decision to recall the strike order was only reached at 4:10 o'clock as morning dawned after nearly seventeen hours of discussion in which the mine workers' attitude toward the stand taken by the Government on the strike was thrashed out from every angle.

The full story of that dramatic and stormy session cannot be told for it was held behind closed doors and the participants are reluctant to tell all that transpired.

It is understood that both Mr. Lewis and Mr. Green counseled compliance with the court order, though both have felt that the attitude of the Federal Government has been unjust and unfair to the mine workers.

It was a battle between radicals and conservatives, between the impetuous and the sane, between defiance and obedience to the order of the court.

No Restriction on Speeches.

Evidently no restriction was placed on the length or number of the speeches. That was held to be the best policy, as many of the conferees came to Indianapolis asserting the justice of the strike and advised by the miners to stand firm by the Cleveland convention's instructions.

By 2 o'clock in the morning, however, many of the conferees had wearied of the debate and they walked out in the hotel corridors and chatted in little groups while the others continued the discussion.

On one point the conferees, regardless of whether they were for obedience or defiance to the court order, were unanimous, it was asserted by various members, and this was in intense resentment against the course taken by the national Administration.

"We don't blame Judge Anderson so much," said a conferee. "He was up against the guns. We blame those fellows in Washington who put him up against it."

The resentment, said to have been expressed by speaker after speaker, was to this effect:

"The Federal Government charges a conspiracy in violation of a wartime act, although the war was over months ago, and tries to make us out a lot of lawbreakers, lacking consideration for the welfare of our country, while the fact is that there was no more loyal organization in the war than the miners. The mine workers stood firm for their country and against any disloyalty in the membership, and now they resent from the bottom of their hearts the light in which the Federal Government seems to place them."

Sane Counsel Prevails in the End.

The view which finally resulted in the decision to obey the court order was that neither the miners nor any other American organization can afford to set at naught a court order, that defiance would not only be unlawful, but unwise, as it would solidify punic sentiment against the miners and delay or prevent a wage settlement in the future, whereas obedience, even under protest, would regain the loss of public opinion and would put the miners in a position to make clear to the country the justice of their demands for a higher wage and better working conditions.

Some assertions which were heard through the closed doors were:

"It would be a violation of law to defy the order of the court."

"Posterity will be affected by our decision."

"If we violate this injunction we are in a fight against the Government and in a revolution against the United States."

"I want to ask you, if we give them one of the hardest fights they have ever had in the United States, will not the Government respect the workingmen?"

"If they're going into the courts we are going to have to make the fight sooner or later.

"We can win by orderly processes. I think it would be suicidal to defy the courts and institutions."

Farrington Agrees to Compliance.

It is reported that he said he gave his consent to the rescinding of the strike order with the understanding that he doubted the right of the conference to undo what the Cleveland convention had ordered to be done; that he would explain to the miners of Illinois the reason for his action, and leave it to them to decide what course they shall pursue; that he denies any personal political ambition in the policy he had pursued, his only aim being to serve the best interests of the miners; that he denied any rivalry or jealousy between himself and other leaders; that he said the Federal Government believed the strike was an officers' strike into which the miners were led, while the truth was that the strike came from the rank and file of the miners themselves, and that he denounced an article written by one who has been "fostered and fed" by the United Mine Workers of America, which had attributed the strike largely to internal politics and Farrington's ambition.

GREGORY DENIES PROMISE.

Never Agreed to Except Labor from Lever Act, He Declares.

Former Attorney General Gregory denied in a statement here today that he had given assurances to labor leaders that the Lever act would not be enforced against their organizations in attempts to better working conditions, as asserted by officers of the American Federation of Labor.

"While Attorney General I did not at any time give assurances to any one that any law would not be enforced against any class of citizens," he said. "I gave no assurances that the Government would not seek to enforce the Lever act against workers."

BOMB OUTRAGES CAUSE TERROR IN DONORA

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 11.—The residents of Donora, about twenty miles up the Monongahela River, are terror stricken over the frequent bomb outrages and are clamoring for more police protection. Last night a daring attempt was made to dynamite the tracks of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad, and the home of a foreigner in Gilmore Terrace. The State Constabulary is working on both cases and has discovered clues which they believe may lead to arrests.

The effort to blow up the tracks of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad was made at the Webster end of the Donora-Webster bridge. A stick of dynamite was placed between two box cars and exploded. Only a small section of the track was damaged and traffic was not hindered.

Half an hour earlier the kitchen of a Gilmore Terrace house, a one-room addition to the dwelling, was completely shattered. Members of the family in other parts of the house were badly shaken up and shocked. State troopers took up the trail of two men who were seen to flee from the vicinity of the Donora-Webster bridge.

Four persons narrowly escaped death and Fayette City was rocked a second time within a few hours when a charge of dynamite virtually wrecked the residence of Michael Sulsk at 3:30 A. M. today. The explosion followed a few hours the explosion which wrecked the powder house at the Arnold No. 2 mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company. The police and detectives are without a single clue. Sulsk is employed at the plant of the Pittsburgh Steel Products Company, where a strike has been in progress for some time.

that they will obey the order of the courts to resume their jobs.

Organizer William L. Harrison gave out a statement tonight in which he bitterly criticised the Government for its action, but he agreed with Secretary Clem that the men would return as soon as they were instructed by their chiefs to do so.

Coal operators assert that they are ready to resume operations at all mines as soon as the men return to work.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 11.—Bituminous coal miners of Texas will obey instructions of their national officers to return to work as soon as the formal order is received, according to a statement made by Ed Cunningham, a State miners' official.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 11.—Representatives of the thirty-six Washington locals of the United Mine Workers will meet as soon as possible to make plans for returning to work, Ernest Newsham, State District Secretary of the mine workers, said here today.

"We will abide by the decision of the court and the National Workers' Committee," he said.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Soft coal miners in the Blossburg, Penn., field were quoted as saying today that they were glad to return to work as soon as the order was received from their union chiefs. Word from Blossburg, where there are about 1,000 miners, was that both citizens and miners were well pleased with the decision of the miners' leaders to obey the court mandate.

Special to The New York Times.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 11.—Coal mines in Oklahoma and Arkansas are making preparations to resume full operations before the end of the week. Peter R. Stewart, Commissioner of the Southwestern Interstate Coal Operators' Association, announced this evening that at many of the camps whistles would be blown tomorrow morning. It is not thought that many will respond to the call until the official report has been received from Indianapolis calling off the strike. In their resentment of the action of the Government in stopping the strike by injunction the miners are joined by virtually all labor men in the mining district.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 11.—Iowa miners will not return to work in spite of the rescinding of the strike order, in the opinion of Joseph Morris, Vice President of District No. 13, United Mine Workers of America, expressed here today. J. C. Lewis, District President, is expected back from Indianapolis tomorrow.

"The men are determined to stay out until the strike is legally stopped," Morris said. "The national officers have not the authority to call off the strike and I feel certain that this order of revocation of the strike order, issued because of force, will have no effect on the local situation."

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Nov. 11.—In the headquarters of the Kansas district there was silence among the officials of the coal miners, but out in the camps there was bitter denunciation of the court action which forced the cancellation of the strike order.

Up to late this afternoon the word had not come from Howat, who is District President, and attended the conference at Indianapolis.

But out in the field the miners were not silent. An extra edition of an afternoon paper was issued early this morning, carrying the news of the decision of the miners' officials to obey the Court's mandate, and at noon a man brought a bundle of the papers into the newspaper office, to which was tied a note which said:

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 11.—Illinois coal miners are in a defiant mood tonight and declare that they will pay no attention to the order issued today by National President John L. Lewis calling off the strike, and that they will not return to work.

While there is no official statement to this effect, State President Farrington, State Vice President Fishwick, and Secretary Treasurer Nesbitt are in Indianapolis and there is no one to speak for them. Officers of local unions here and individual miners declare they will not return to work.

One hundred miners from all parts of the State are in the city taking the State mine examination for mine managers, mine examiners, and hoisting engineers. They say that President Lewis has no authority to call off the strike.

"The Government can arrest us and fine us and that is the end of it," they declare.

Special to The New York Times.

JOLIET, Ill., Nov. 11.—The order declaring the miners' strike at an end was received with little enthusiasm here in Coal City and the Wilmington fields. Among the rank and file of the workers the general sentiment indicated that the men are not anxious to return to work until some increase in wages is granted. Joe Herron, Treasurer of the Miners' Union, said: "The chances are that the miners of Illinois will not go back to work."

REDS SHOOT DOWN VETERANS IN PARADE

suing a supposed I. W. W. According to ex-service men, Hubbard's party caught the man they were chasing on the banks of the Skookumchuck River, a small stream which runs through the town. Hubbard and the man grappled, and the supposed I. W. W. fired into Hubbard's body.

George Stevens, another of the party, kicked the pistol from the I. W. W.'s hands. A rope was thrown about the man's neck, put over the crossarm of a telephone pole, and he was hoisted into the air. The police persuaded the crowd to let the man down, and he was taken to jail nearly dead. It was this man, according to reports, that was taken from jail tonight and hanged.

T. C. Rogers, Mayor of Centralia; A. [illegible], Chief of Police, and other citizens addressed the crowd in front of the jail tonight, asking the citizens not to attempt to lynch the prisoners.

Bullets Poured Out on Soldiers.

The whole city had turned out to celebrate the anniversary of the suspension of hostilities, and a large parade was formed, headed by the city's boys who had helped bring about the glad day a year ago, wearing the uniforms that sheltered them in the trenches of France and on the picket lines of the German border.

As the column swung around the corner of Tower Avenue and Second Avenue, the band struck up a patriotic march. Then bullets came into the ranks from an unseen enemy. Men fell to the pavement and tiny rivulets of blood showed the spectators what had taken place, the crack of the rifles of the assassins having been drowned by the blare of the band.

Tiny puffs of smoke from the roof of a near-by building indicated whence the bullets had come, and the nearness of the I. W. W. hall led to the quick decision that the victims had been slain from ambush by radicals who opposed the American system of government. The marching soldiers did not await the order to fall out, but rushed into the near-by structure and made their way to the roofs. The snipers had disappeared (but the service men searched the highways and byways for all suspicious persons, and then sent parties out into the timbered country around the city.

The service men soon stripped the hall of all furniture and documents and arrested about a dozen men. These were marched to jail, while they were guarded by the former soldiers to prevent their escape and at the same time to protect them from lynching. A mob seeking the prisoners was fought back by the overseas men.

A quantity of arms and ammunition was seized when the I. W. W. headquarters was ransacked. The people broke down the building front and threw into the street and burned all of the organization's literature and property which could be found.

Meanwhile wives, daughters, and sweethearts of the paraders, after a momentary pause from the sudden terror of the situation, had rushed to the aid of the fallen.

Tonight a mob carrying ropes surrounded the Centralia Jail, but it was still guarded by former soldiers. Other former soldiers were going picket duty tonight in all parts of the city and searching for other suspects.

Farmers from surrounding points and citizens of nearby towns, including Chehalis and Olympia, are pouring into Centralia tonight. Many of them are offering their services.

Troops Called from Tacoma.

Special to The New York Times.

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 11.—Company F, Third Regiment National Guard, stationed in Tacoma, was ordered mobilized immediately for duty at Centralia by Governor Hart tonight. Captain Thomas Shirtleff, commanding the company, seventy strong, immediately started the work of mobilizing. The troops will move at once. Brig. General Moss, Adjutant General of the State, said that whether further troops would be sent would depend upon the situation at Centralia after the arrival of Company F.

Centralia Reds Sought Revenge.

SEATTLE, Nov. 11.—Officials here tonight expressed a belief that the attack on the armistice parade at Centralia today was a counter move by radicals against Centralia business men.

According to a story published in a Seattle labor organ on Oct. 24, Centralia business men, meeting under the auspices of the Citizens' Protective League, started a campaign to drive every radical from the city. Several lumbermen were prominent in the move, the story said. Every I. W. W. was to be listed and expected to leave the city, the article said.

Charges were made here by radicals that Centralia citizens "kidnapped" the Centralia agent of a Seattle labor paper.

GERMAN COAL CRISIS IS STILL ACUTE

RUHR OUTPUT INCREASES

With 106,000 Cars at Their Disposal, Mines Rush Coal to South Germany.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—Despite the stoppage of passenger traffic on the railways throughout Germany to allow the coal reserves to be increased at important centres and food supplies to be transported more abundantly, the situation appears to be growing worse than ever. Ministers may make optimistic statements, but the fact is that the coal supply is decreasing every day, and the Minister of Railways may soon find himself compelled to seize coal wherever he finds it.

There is some talk of households being limited to a ration of one briquette each per day. All freight cars belonging to private firms have been commandeered by the Government, with a view to speeding up transport generally. In the Hanover district the coal supplies for locomotives are quite exhausted. On some lines from Berlin freight traffic has been greatly reduced, and such places as Hamburg and Stettin are suffering from an almost complete suspension of freight traffic.

Berlin's potato supply has been reduced by 50 per cent. in the past few days. It is also announced that the milk ration will be cut down tomorrow from half a liter to a quarter, while there will not be enough to allow the usual ration of a quarter of a liter for invalids.

BERLIN, Nov. 11 (Associated Press).—The first tangible results of the Government embargo on passenger traffic have been reported from the Ruhr coal fields of West Prussia, where approximately 106,000 freight cars were placed at the disposal of the mines last week. This represents an increase of 20 per cent. over the previous week. The deliveries of rolling stock apparently were larger than the mines were capable of accommodating, and as a result there has been a drop in the number of cars called for during the past few days. The Ruhr coal deliveries, which are expected to show a heavy increase this week, are being diverted chiefly to South German cities.

More than 7,000 cars daily were placed at the disposal of the Upper Silesian coal fields last week. This being also an increase of 25 per cent. over the previous week and more than sufficient to meet the daily output of the mines.

The Prussian Minister of Railways, Herr Oester, threatens to confiscate all visible supplies of coal unless the Imperial Coal Commissioner comes to his rescue with promised deliveries.

The Coal Commissioner has informed Herr Oester that the present difficulty of a shortage of coal is a result of organic shortcomings of the Railway Administration and lack of co-operation by both departments in their failure to exploit the canals to their full limit in the movement of coal.

The Prussian Railway Ministry has published a statement saying that its fears that freight traffic could not be maintained, notwithstanding the cessation of passenger service, are proving to be correct. The statement says in the Hamburg district that coal supplies are exhausted, making it impossible to move even freight; that the lines from Halle to Berlin are similarly tied up, and that Altona, Stettin and other centers are complaining that freight cannot be moved.

BRITAIN TO CUT COAL PRICES

London Chronicle Reports Unions Agree to Greater Individual Output.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The Chronicle's labor correspondent in pointing out that there is a prospect of coal becoming cheaper here says: "It is understood that the Government is prepared to agree to a reduction in the price providing it does not involve any burden on the Exchequer. The reduction must be based on an increase of the individual output of coal per miner, and the Government will require an undertaking from the miners' leaders that the output shall be increased."

The correspondent adds that the leaders will inform the Premier tomorrow that the output will continue to increase and will claim that an immediate reduction in the price of coal is possible.

The correspondent also says that the Parliamentary Committee of the Trade Union Congress will hold an important meeting tomorrow to discuss the question of the formation of a "labor cabinet" to represent all the trade unions of the country.

BARS FEDERAL LABOR FROM STRIKING UNIONS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Affiliation of Government employes' organizations with any union or federation which advocates strikes as a means of settling disputes would be prohibited under an amendment to the bill providing increased pay for Washington police, which was passed tonight by the Senate and sent to conference.

The amendment was proposed by Senator Myers, Democrat, Montana, and was adopted by viva voce vote. Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, opposed the amendment, declaring it was too far reaching and would affect not only postal employes but also Government workers in navy yards, munitions plants and even on the railroads while they are under Government control.

Club Is Raided to Get Sympathizers with I. W. W.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 11.—Police tonight raided headquarters of the Household Workers, Soldiers' and Sailors' Club and took sixty men into custody.

The police acted following a report that those in the club were meeting to protest against "persecution" of the I. W. W. at Centralia, Wash. The men were taken to the police station for investigation.

rank and file of the mine workers will obey the orders of their leaders and that before the end of the present week most, if not all, of the union mines will be working full time. This is the view of Attorney General Palmer, who, it goes without saying, was very happy as a result of the turn affairs took at Indianapolis this morning.

"The strike order having been withdrawn," said the Attorney General after the Cabinet meeting, "the Secretary of Labor will immediately ask the operators and the officials of the United Mine Workers of America to come to Washington for the purpose of resuming negotiations for the adjustment of wages, hours of work, and such other matters as are now matters of issue between the miners and the owners of the coal mines."

"I have assumed from the beginning that the miners, as good citizens, would obey the law and I am very happy that my assumption was correct. The way is now open to a settlement by the peaceful processes which should always be employed in settling such disputes, without injury to the public."

Secretary of Labor Wilson was all smiles as he left the Cabinet meeting. For more than twenty years he was an official of the United Mine Workers of America. One of his colleagues said only yesterday that the Secretary was almost broken-hearted over the turn affairs then seemed to have taken in the coal controversy.

Surprise to Gompers Council.

The action of the officials of the United Mine Workers in bowing to the authority of law and order caused great relief in all official Washington. Some officials of the Government have maintained all along that when the time came President Lewis and his associates would obey the mandate of the United States court, but there were others, and they were perhaps in the majority, who felt after the issuance of the statement of the American Federation of Labor on Sunday night, in which the Federation assumed a defiant attitude in the controversy, that Lewis and the other officials of the miners' organization would refuse to recognize the mandate of the court and would go to jail rather than cancel the strike order.

While no one in the Federation of Labor Building would admit it, there is every reason for the assertion that the action of President Lewis and his colleagues came as a complete surprise to the members of the Executive Council of the Federation. That it was the general belief among the Federation officials that the strike would not be called off is the opinion of practically every one who has kept in touch with the coal situation during the last few days.

It was recalled that only last night, a few hours before the officials of the miners' organization voted to obey the law, Samuel Gompers, speaking at a dinner to the delegates to the International Labor Conference, intimated that it was honorable to go to jail in defense of what he termed the cause of justice and democracy.

That the decision of the officials of the United Mine Workers is another telling blow against radicalism in the ranks of American labor is a view that many officials in Washington take. It is well known here that the radical elements have exerted a powerful influence in the steel strike and that to a lesser extent they have sought to have a controlling word in the bituminous coal situation. Lewis, the head of the miners, has always been considered one of the conservative forces in American labor councils. He is against nationalization of the mines, and is known to have no sympathy with the ultra-radical groups that have tried to "bore from within" in the American Federation of Labor.

Senator Kenyon of Iowa, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, has known Lewis for many years. A few days ago, while in conversation with THE TIMES correspondent, Senator Kenyon referred to Lewis as one of the most conservative men in the labor movement. On that occasion Senator Kenyon predicted that if the strike developed into a contest between law and order on the one side, and the labor organizations on the other, Lewis would take his position on the side of the law.

"Whatever else you may say about Lewis," said Senator Kenyon, "he is an American above everything else. He has no sympathy for the Bolshevist element, and they will get scant comfort when it comes to dealing with him."

In the halls of Congress the action of the miners was commended on all sides, and members were of the opinion that Mr. Lewis and his associates had greatly strengthened their position by placing their Americanism ahead of everything else and bowing to the authority of the courts.

Text of Calls to Conference.

Secretary Wilson's telegram to Mr. Brewster asking a resumption of the conferences of miners and operators read:

Washington, Nov. 11, 1919.

Thomas T. Brewster,
Chairman, Coal Operators' Association,
Fullerton Building, St. Louis, Mo.

The officials of the United Mine Workers of America having this day withdrawn the strike order, I request that you and associated representatives of coal operators from the different fields involved in the present strike, including the scale committee of the Central Competitive Coal Field, meet me in the City of Washington in the Auditorium of the new Interior Department Building on Friday, Nov. 14th, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of negotiating a basis of settlement. Will you immediately communicate this request to your associates and urge upon them the importance of their presence?

I have sent the same request to Mr. Harry N. Taylor, of the National Coal Association, and also requested Acting President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America, and his associates, to meet me at the same time and place.

WILLIAM B. WILSON,
Secretary of Labor.

Following is the message to Mr. Taylor:

The officials of the United Mine Workers of America having this day withdrawn the strike order, I request that you and associated representatives of coal operators from the different fields involved in the present strike meet me in the City of Washington in the auditorium of the new Interior Department Building, on Friday, Nov. 14, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of negotiating a basis of settlement. Will you immediately communicate this request to your associates and urge upon them the importance of their presence?

I have sent the same request to Mr. Brewster of the Central Competitive Field and I have also requested Acting President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America, and his associates, to meet at the same time and place.

WILLIAM B. WILSON,
Secretary of Labor.

The invitation to Mr. Lewis was:

"The officials of the United Mine Workers of America having this day withdrawn the strike order, I request that you and associated representatives of coal operators from the different fields involved in the present strike meet me in the City of Washington in the auditorium of the new Interior Department Building on Friday, Nov. 14, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of negotiating a basis of settlement. Will you immediately communicate this request to your associates and urge upon them the importance of their presence? I have sent the same request to Thomas T. Brewster, Chairman of the Coal Operators' Association, and also requested Acting President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America and his associates to meet me at the same time and place."

I have sent a similar telegram to Thomas T. Brewster, specifically applying to the Operators' Scale Committee of the central competitive coalfields. I therefore make a similar request that you and associate representatives of the United Mine Workers of America from all districts involved in the present strike meet me for the same purpose in Washington in the auditorium of the new Interior Department Building at 11 o'clock A. M. on Friday, Nov. 14, 1919, as set forth in the telegram to Mr. Harry N. Taylor.

WILLIAM B. WILSON,
Secretary of Labor.

Prompt resumption of negotiations imperative in the public interests. Will you and your Scale Committee meet the Scale Committee of the operators of the Central Competitive Field Monday, Nov. 17, to negotiate a contract to be in force upon the termination of contract now in effect?

THOMAS T. BREWSTER.

Old Demands to Be Dropped.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11, (Associated Press.)—When the conference of miners and operators is held here Friday, instead of there being present representatives of miners and operators only from the central competitive fields, embracing Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, and Western Pennsylvania, the conference will include miners from all fields involved in the strike, stretching over more than twenty States. Secretary Wilson's action in broadening the scope of the wage negotiations was a surprise to operators, but the larger plan of representation was adopted because of the desire of men from other fields to have a voice in the deliberations.

The meetings will not be public, but Mr. Wilson will sit with the two groups, as he did before, and urge them to settle their differences and quickly reach a new agreement. All of the former demands, including the five-day week, the six-hour day, and a 60 per cent. increase in wages will be wiped from the slate and a new start made.

Investigation of the strike was proposed today in a Senate resolution introduced by Senator Jones, Republican, of Washington, after press reports of the miners' decision to recall the strike order had been read at the request of Senator Pomerene, Democrat, of Ohio. The resolution was referred to the Senate Labor Committee, which recently completed an investigation of the steel strike and which will determine whether a coal inquiry is advisable.

The resolution would give the committee authority to suggest any measures for Federal action to prevent recurrence of similar strikes. Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, said that the resolution also should be broad enough to authorize investigation of Judge Anderson's injunction order.

In presenting the reports of the miners' action Senator Pomerene said that he believed the miners were entitled to some wage increases and that he could see no reason why there should not be an amicable adjustment of the controversy.

Officials gave the first intimation of the reserve coal stocks after hearing that the strike had been called off. Director General Hines estimated that the coal held under the supervision of the Central Coal Committee aggregated about 15,000,000 tons. This, together with coal in storage, and at tidewater bunkering stations, constituted what was estimated to be a thirty-day's supply for domestic consumption.

The daily production during the strike augmented this supply somewhat. Figures for the bituminous output on Nov. 6, the only day for which the production was made public, showed that approximately 486,000 tons were loaded from mines. The normal daily production before the strike was estimated by Railroad Administration officials at 1,857,000 tons.

PETLURA'S ARMY TO YIELD TO DENIKIN

YUDENITCH RALLIES AGAIN

LONDON, Nov. 11.—A wireless dispatch received today from General Denikin, the anti-Bolshevist leader in South Russia, says 30,000 Galicians (Poles?) have joined the volunteer army and that as a consequence General Simon Petlura, head of the Ukrainian forces, intends to lay down arms. [The advent of the Galicians seems to indicate that Petlura's forces have been taken in rear and surrounded.]

The loss of Uriupinskaya, where General Denikin claims to have captured 1,000 prisoners, is admitted in a Bolshevist communication received here today.

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 11, (Associated Press.)—General Yudenitch is counterattacking with an offensive against Gatchina, according to a communiqué issued by the Northwest Russian army Sunday. Attacks on the right and left flanks of Yudenitch's army, the statement says, were repulsed with great loss.

It is reported that General Yudenitch has evacuated Yamburg and that large Bolshevist forces are approaching the Narva line, which the Esthonians are strongly holding.

The belief is expressed here that the Bolsheviki are planning a military demonstration in order to influence the negotiations now in progress between the representatives of the Baltic States at Dorpat.

REVAL, Nov. 10, (Associated Press.)—The outlook in Northwestern Russia is regarded as hopeful, notwithstanding recent reverses. The optimism is apparently based on the taking over by France of the duties of the British military mission, with the appointment of General Niessel in command. He is expected to arrive in the next few days, and it is hoped that unity of command will be established and sufficient supplies assured.

The evacuation of Yamburg is extremely difficult as the town is crowded with refugees and the hospitals are filled. Communication with Narva is bad, owing to the lack of rolling stock.

OMSK, Nov. 5, (Associated Press.)—General Diedrichs has resigned as commander of the Western armies of the Omsk Government. He is succeeded by General Sakharoff, former commander of the Third Army. The resignation of General Diedrichs was the result of lack of accord with Admiral Kolchak, head of the Omsk Government, over the question of transferring the capital eastward.

General Sakharoff, said to be a plucky officer and a strict disciplinarian, was an intelligence officer in the Russian Imperial Army and later had charge of an officers' training school at Vladivostok.

General Rappell, who succeeds him in command of the Third Army, was a corp commander under General Sakharoff.

Admiral Kolchak and the members of his Government are determined to remain and defend Omsk against the Bolsheviki, in spite of the advice of many.

Evacuation of Omsk by civilian institutions, hospitals, Government offices and civilians continues in perfect order. There is a continuous stream of carts and trucks loaded with all conceivable articles on the way to the station, but there is no undue haste and no panic.

Freezing weather, accompanied by a considerable snowfall, makes severe the plight of the civilian refugees and the sick and wounded, who mostly are obliged to resort to unheated or partially heated box cars. The American Red Cross has removed a portion of the hospital patients to awaiting trains. It is hoped complete evacuation of the hospital will be accomplished within two days.

The railway personnel and the Red Cross personnel, with the exception of doctors and nurses who accompany the sanitary trains, will leave Omsk aboard the train of Earnest Harris, American Consul General, should conditions become acute here. The American hospital is going to Irkutsk.

Admiral Kolchak yesterday informed Consul General Harris of his intention to continue the struggle against the Bolsheviki, saying he was not discouraged by the present reverses. He expressed gratitude for American assistance and particularly emphasized his appreciation of the work of the Red Cross, without which, he declared, it would have been impossible to maintain the sanitary department of his armies.

The Admiral was most complimentary in referring to the work of Consul General Harris during the past year. He said his cordial co-operation had been a source of comfort and encouragement.

It has been reported that an effort is being made to secure further military assistance from Czechs now in Siberia, but Admiral Kolchak asserted repatriation of the Czechs would continue in accordance with the Paris plan. He declared he was not counting on outside military assistance.

BALTIC CONFERENCE ON.

Delegates from Poland, Finland, Ukraine, and White Russia Attend.

DORPAT, Livonia, Nov. 10, (Associated Press.)—Delegates of the Baltic States, summoned to meet here, held conferences yesterday and again this morning. The first general meeting, with representatives of Finland, the Ukraine, and Poland in attendance, was held this afternoon. White Russia also was represented.

So far there has been only an exchange of views on the questions of armistice with the Bolsheviki and the formation of a border States league.

At a luncheon today M. Piip, Chief of the Esthonian delegation, who presided, expressed the hope that the conference would result in the bringing of peace to Eastern Europe.

Bolshevist representatives, who probably will be Maxim Litvinoff, former Ambassador to London; George Tchitcherin, Foreign Minister, and M. Krasin, Minister of Commerce and Trade, are expected to arrive in Dorpat Monday to discuss with the representatives of the Baltic States the question of the exchange of prisoners of war on which further negotiations are conditioned.

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 11, (Associated Press.)—The correspondent was informed today that the conditions for an armistice with the Bolsheviki have not been fixed at the Baltic conference in Dorpat, but that the representatives of the Baltic States have agreed on a neutral zone and decided to ask the Allies to supervise it. The Allies are not represented at the Dorpat conference, but are being kept fully informed as to its progress.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 10.—The Lithuanian Agency learns from Kovno that through the mediation of American, British, and French representatives the Lithuanian Government has agreed to participate in a conference with a view to settling differences between Lithuania and Poland.

A stern reply has been sent by Lithuania to Colonel Bermondt's recent invitation to negotiate for peace.

BRITISH PRISONERS STARVE.

Red Cross Official Says Their Plight at Moscow Is Terrible.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 10.—The head of the British Red Cross here tells me that some 350 British prisoners of the Bolsheviki are in a terrible state of hunger and destitution at Moscow. An attempt to get two tons of food supplies through to them via Finland, being so far blocked at the Finnish frontier. He added that unless exchanged speedily none would survive the Winter.

Opinion here outside of socialist circles appears unanimous that there will be no industrial peace in the world until the Russian Soviet Government is eliminated. Asked what he thought of M. Scavenius's assertion that Red propaganda was aimed rather against the workmen's leaders than the employers, a member of a great transatlantic company said:

"There is no doubt whatever that this is the case. The dock strike here, which was proved beyond question to have a Bolshevist origin, affords a close parallel with recent troubles in New York in that the aim was to cause rioting and military intervention, which would intensify the cleavage between the easily manipulated labor masses and their more conservative organised chiefs."

ALLOW 18½-CENT SUGAR.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The present crop of Louisiana sugar, estimated at approximately 100,000 tons, will be offered to the retail trade at about 18½ cents a pound, officials of the Department of Justice announced tonight in making public the approval of Attorney General Palmer to the maximum price of 17 cents to the refiner which recently was agreed upon by refiners and the United States District Attorney at New Orleans.

The price of the Louisiana crop, the official pointed out, in no way changes the fixed retail prices on other grades of sugar.

FEARS LOSS OF PRESTIGE

Points to Unrest, Uncertainty, and Unsolved Problems in Armistice Day Appeal.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—Today, one year after the roar of cannon has died down along the line, which stretched from Switzerland to the North Sea, peace has not yet come to the world. When the Allies were united in the common cause of world justice, now, according to opinion here, they are divided by their personal interests.

Backstair politics and intrigue, it is felt, have halted the work of the Peace Conference until it stumbles along day after day and gets no nearer the solution of the problems that confront it. Common faith has been replaced by common suspicion, and war of diplomats has split Europe into many more parts than the war of armies did.

A year ago Europe looked to America as a saviuor and guide. Today, ready for peace and needing peace, Europe fumes and frets at America because the Senate withholds action on the treaty, and the uncertainty of the Washington situation reflects itself over here in indecision and confusion over what should be done. The Allies dread going ahead with the treaty enforcement without America, and they fear America will not give the help they counted on.

It was France that paid the biggest price in the winning of the war, and it is France that pays the biggest price in waiting for peace. France needs most the fruits of victory and of the resumption of normal life in Europe. Having paid the price of nearly two million men to gain victory, France finds herself today crippled, financially and economically.

The spirit of France, the spirit that won the war, is being adulterated with the poison of Bolshevism. Strike follows strike in monotonous consistency. Silent factories and darkened streets and stilled tramways and shivering thousands mark the fuel shortage. Mounting prices that never cease climbing strain the economic situation day by day.

Lausanne Sees Victory Lost.

Stephane Lausanne, editor of Le Matin, has written for publication today a solemn warning to his country. A strike in the newspaper printing establishments prevented its wide circulation.

"A year ago at 11 o'clock in the morning," he writes, "the tumult which had filled four years of history stopped suddenly. Blood ceased to flow.

"To the sudden silence upon the battlefield there was the answer of the great shouting of joy in the cities. People kissed one another, they danced, they sang in all the cities.

"It was joy like no other joy. It was joy mixed with tears, for the people who had succeeded in hiding their grief since 1914 let themselves weep. It was a joy which seemed to mark the end of an era, to change a people of conquered into a people of conquerors, and which should repay France for all her sorrows.

"Today we do not celebrate the anniversary of victory.

"The Government has not wished to do so.

"Does it fear to emphasize the disillusionment of a people which no longer believes in its victory?

"On the eleventh of November, 1918, the pound sterling was worth 26 French francs. On the eleventh of November, 1919, it is worth 38. The American dollar was worth 5 francs 40. Now it is worth more than 9 francs.

"The 11th of November, 1918, France was the first nation of the world. She seemed to gather a civilization around her aid to resume her historic mission, which was always to mark the road for the peoples of the world.

"Had not her soldiers at the Marne saved the world? Had not she supplied the chiefs who had just led the Allies to victory?

"There remained for her only after having succeeded in the strategy of war to succeed in the strategy of peace. It seemed she was prpard by hr hisory for this. She is the country of equilibrium and balance.

Says Her Prestige Has Vanished.

"She had the prestige that the defeats of 1814, of 1815, and of 1870 could not destroy, that victory of 1918 had just renewed.

It was her revolution, it was her code, it was her art which had renewed, refreshed, and charmed the universe. Her inventions had nourished all sciences, her ideas had served all free intellects, there was not upon earth a summit where she had not played her rôle, not a Calvary whose steps were not marked with her blood.

"And here she is the year after alone upon the Rhine, having solved neither the Russian problem, nor the Turkish problem, nor the Balkan problem, nor her own problem, since she awaits still the first reparations from Germany, since she is yet in ignorance of the sum which will come to her from the first twenty-five billions, which should be paid before 1921 by Germany to the Allies."

"There is something sorrowful in this incertitude," writes Louis Berthou. "Yes, because our troubles increase. And one asks—if we were not able to obtain our rights day after day when our allies were upon our territory, before our ruins still warm, before our wounds still open, of what account today are the declarations of Ministers who promise us our rights tomorrow when international agreement shall have been reached, less bloody but almost more pitiless than the war?

"For, if this day inclines to meditation on that degree, it inclines us to despair.

"Yes, a year ago life was more hopeful than today. But wasn't it more hopeful seventeen months ago. On the eleventh of June, 1918, the Germans were at Chateau-Thierry, nearly to Amiens, were threatening to open a way to Paris. One could believe that he could see the last days of France.

"Today's peril can be compared with that peril. On condition that we have industry, on condition that we have quickly some national method, on condition we have confidence in each other, on condition that we organize ourselves we will get something out of the victory.

"If these conditions are not realized it will not have been worth while to win the war. Social systems in the future will be lined up against one another as were the armies of yesterday. What country will best develop its production? What country will achieve the greatest national harmony?

"On the answer depends the future. If the right answer is not found the victory will have been in truth only an armistice."

WANT TO SUSPEND PEACE WORK DEC. 1

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—The American peace delegation persists in its determination to quit Paris by Dec. 1. This determination is shared by the British delegation. The French and Italian Governments wish either to continue the Peace Conference or to establish some other strong central authority to continue to regulate affairs in Europe.

The Italians and French make the point that in opposing a continuance of the centralized allied machinery in Paris Americans are opposing the cardinal principles of the League of Nations. The official American reply to this is that the delegates to the Peace Conference were charged with making peace and not with governing the world. They argue that there is a wide difference between the Council of the League of Nations undertaking the duties laid upon it and the establishment in Paris of a body not provided for in any international covenant.

The Americans make it quite plain that they are not going to maintain indefinitely a branch office of their State Department in Europe, but will conduct their international business at headquarters in Washington. They favor leaving to a committee of Ambassadors only the few specific tasks which may remain undone at the end of the Peace Conference. They insist that these duties for the Ambassadors' Committee shall be distinctly laid down before the Peace Conference adjourns and that the Ambassadors' Committee shall go no further than these tasks.

Therefore the Americans, and the British with them, say the Peace Conference must end by Dec. 1.

BRAZIL RATIFIES TREATY.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 11, (Associated Press.)—The war between Brazil and Germany is officially ended. Armistice Day was celebrated in Brazil by the ratification of the Treaty of Versailles.

The Chamber of Deputies last week voted in favor of ratification. The Senate after a short discussion today took similar action. Late this afternoon President Pessoa affixed his signature to the measure of ratification.

"Preparations for Civil War" Lays Down Sixteen Points to Guide Communists.

HELP PROMISED BY RUSSIA

Industries Which Could Not Be Held Against Troops Were to be Destroyed.

BERLIN, Nov. 11 (Associated Press).—A Communist program, entitled "Preparations for Civil War," which was captured recently at Karow, near Weimar, by troops of Minister of Defense Noske, contains sixteen instructions to Communists, as follows:

"(1) As a preparation for unified dealings, it is necessary to inform only reliable men, such as have had the closest connection with the combined executive councils of the Communists and Independents and are considered reliable by the Council.

"(2) A basic condition: Shortly before beginning the uprising inform the masses.

"(3) The creation of armed groups in individual industries.

Berlin Plans Exposed.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—The military authorities yesterday discovered and raided the Spartacide revolutionary headquarters where they found detailed plans regarding the seizure of public buildings and arsenals of the so-called Citizens Guards which usually are at police stations. According to these plans a number of Spartacides in each police precinct were to pretend drunkenness and resistance to the police and get themselves arrested. When inside the police stations they were to overwhelm the few officers present and take possession of the stations and arsenals.

WANT ANARCHISTS DEPORTED.

Secretary Wilson Says Aliens Are Menace to Country's Peace.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Secretary Wilson of the Department of Labor today declared that the country was menaced by aliens who were trying to overthrow the Government by force and violence, and that the Department of Labor was determined to deport them.

"The Department of Labor is determined to deport all aliens who are found to be members of the I. W. W., Communist Party, Communist Labor Party, or any other organization which has for its purpose the overthrow of the Government by force and violence," he said. "We have the power to deport them, and we are going to use it."

CONDEMN ORGANIZED LABOR

Demands Leading Toward Revolution, Agricultural Men Say.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Organized labor and its demands for shorter working hours and higher pay were excoriated as unpatriotic, greedy, and un-American in resolutions passed at the annual meeting of the National Association of Commissioners of Agriculture at the Auditorium today.

The representatives of the farmers of every State in the Union warned that "the radical demands of labor are leading straight toward a revolution and to a Government not of the people but of one class, many of whom are unable to speak our language or understand the spirit of our American institutions."

David F. Houston, Secretary of Agriculture, the principal speaker of the day, predicted that the high prices of American food would disappear as England began to draw upon her Colonies for sustenance.

The resolution condemning labor was only one of several which denounced the profiteer, indorsed the Farm Loan act, deplored strikes and lockouts of all character and urged the farmers to join one central association for the protection of their interests.

DRASTIC PENALTIES PLANNED FOR REDS

Mr. Recht waived the right of jurisdiction and consented to the arraignment of the prisoners tomorrow. He then appealed to Magistrate McAdoo to reduce the amount of bail.

"These men are poor and cannot raise the money," he said, "and they have been maltreated as prisoners, left without food for hours and not permitted their rights under due process of the law, and I ask the officers of the court to respect the law and be lenient with them. The bail should be reasonable and the law should not be violated by officers of the State.

"The prisoners were not maltreated," rejoined Mr. Berger, "and there was no improper action on the part of the authorities. In view of the seriousness of this crime I say that the bail is quite lenient."

Magistrate McAdoo asked the Deputy Attorney General for a copy of the constitution of the Communist International Party, of which the prisoners are alleged to be members. Mr. McAdoo read the document through carefully.

"It is quite evident," he said, "that the Communist Party is intended to destroy organized government. It appeals for class hatred. The Communist Party is an organized conspiracy against the United States Government and the Government of the State of New York, and each member of the party is guilty and responsible for the acts, writings or sayings of each and every member. This point of law was embodied in the decision handed down years ago in the famous Lord George Gordon case following the 'No-Popery' riots in London, in which each member of the mob that followed him through the streets was held guilty.

"I hold that the Communist Party has declared a state of war against the United States and the Government of the State of New York, and that the establishment of the Communist Party in the State of New York is the highest crime known to our law, and I will not reduce the bail one dollar."

Magistrate McAdoo asked who had organized the Communist International Party, and Mr. Stevenson was delegated to reply.

"It was organized," he said, "last May in Moscow by a joint manifesto issued by Lenin and Trotsky, calling on the workers of the world to unite and overthrow capital."

"The communist manifesto is based on the writings of Karl Marx and there have been many interpretations of it," interrupted Mr. Recht.

"We are not legally at war with Russia," disagreed Recht, "in fact our troops have been withdrawn from Russia."

"We do not recognize the Government of Russia," responded Mr. McAdoo, "and to the United States, Russia is in nothing but a state of chaos and anarchy."

"We are not at war with Russia," insisted the lawyer.

"Who killed the 111 American soldiers whose bodies are being brought back from Russia?" demanded the Magistrate.

The attorney shrugged his shoulders.

"I don't know," he said.

"Well," said the Magistrate, "it was the Soviet Guards of Russia. Now let's get back to the law."

Recht did that quickly, making a plea that the bail in the case of Moses Zimmerman be reduced, as he "is an ex-service man."

Zimmerman was interrogated by the Magistrate, and said that he had been drafted but served only eleven days because his heart was weak, and he was discharged on account of his physical condition.

"Give me a man who volunteers to serve his country," said the Magistrate, declining to reduce the bail.

The eighteen were then led away to lodge in the Tombs until they obtained bondsmen. After their departure Magistrate McAdoo decried the belief of some persons that the men were held merely "because they hold membership cards in the Communist Party." He declared that "when these men joined that party they entered recruiting barracks being maintained in this city, pledging themselves to aid in the overthrow of this Government." The Magistrate, disclosing a copy of the Communist Party's constitution, pointed to a clause which read, "the objective is the conquest by the proletariat of the power of the State."

"Big Jim" Larkin and Benjamin Gitlow, now under bail of $15,000, will be arraigned today before Magistrate McAdoo. Their hearing, however, will be at the same time as their eighteen co-defendants.

The hint that the State might take over the prosecution of the radicals was contained in reports of the outcome of a conference between Assistant United States Attorney James W. Osborne, Jr., and Assistant District Attorney Alexander I. Rorke. It was stated that an effort might be made to prosecute the prisoners under Section 200 of the State law, which makes the advocacy of criminal anarchy a crime punishable by a maximum imprisonment of ten years.

In connection with the hearings conducted on Ellis Island throughout the day, it was said last night that Anthony Caminetti, United States Commissioner of Immigration, had not yet reached this city. It was stated that he might remain in Washington and supervise the hearings from there.

A number of Russian workers gathered in front of Beethoven Hall, in Second Street, just off First Avenue, last night and started a demonstration because a meeting there had been called off. The proprietor said that a committee had hired the hall to celebrate the thirty-second anniversary of the Chicago Haymarket riot, but had cancelled it yesterday. Apparently ticket-holders were not advised. It was these who gathered last night, got angry and then cooled off and went home when policemen walked up.

ANARCHISTS URGE STRIKE.

"Workers' Battalions" Invited to Open Jails and Seize Foodstuffs.

A 1,500-word "proclamation" issued by an organization calling itself the "American Anarchist Federated Commune Soviets," urging workers to a general strike, was distributed through the mails in this city last night. The document advocated, in so many words, the overthrow of the Government through formation of "Workers' Battalions."

The document assailed President Wilson and Samuel Gompers. It then went through its own interpretation of the strike of steel workers, and the strike of the miners, and concluded thus:

"The Government is the upholder of the present capitalistic system. It represents not the 'people of U. S.' but the exploiting manufacturers, skinning middlemen, and robbing bankers. You, the working class, are the people of U. S., and the Government is your real enemy! No matter what obstacles the watch dogs of your exploiters the Government will set in your way, ignore and disobey all their laws invoked against you! Continue your struggle, until victory will be yours!

"We call upon you workers, of every industry in the country, to go on a general strike, in order that the miners' strike shall not be crushed by the capitalistic Government, but shall instead be the greatest victory that you workers here have ever achieved. We urge you miners, steel workers, and workers of all other industries, who will go out on the general strike, to be prepared! When your most active spokesmen are imprisoned, do not sit idle by, but unite in workers' battalions, smashing the jail doors and freeing those imprisoned. In order that you do not starve while the battle is on, we urge these workers' battalions to take possession as soon as possible of all the food stores, for it is yours the workers who have produced it, and it will only be taking possession of what you have been robbed of.

"War has been declared on you, the mine workers, this declaration means you, the workers of the entire country! We therefore call upon you, the workers of America, to go out at once on a general strike. Workers, you must either face the most horrible defeat imaginable, which will turn you into servitude, or you must meet the challenge of capitalism's war declaration, and fight its protector, the Government, with any weapon you can lay hold of, and turn this war into a social revolution, then in its place build the new society based on the rights of every human being to enjoy all that each one produces. The Free Commune Society, The Anarchist Society.

"It is up to you workers to decide which course to choose to remain slaves of the present system, or to arise and fight until you become free men of a free society, not in name only, but in reality."

ALDERMEN TO ACT ON LEE MILK PLAN

Order His Resolution for Municipal Control of Business Reported Out of Committee.

PROMPT ACTION EXPECTED

The Board of Aldermen consented unanimously yesterday to the request of Alderman Algernon Lee, the Socialist leader, that his resolution providing for the municipalization of the milk business be reported out from the Committee on Rules, so that action may be taken next week or the week following.

Alderman Lee denounced the recent advance in milk, and said that a small group of distributers stood between the 90,000 milk producers and the 1,200,000 consuming families in this city. He also said that milk was 100 per cent. higher today than three years ago and denounced specifically the recent rise of 2 cents, effective on Nov. 7.

"That means $40,000 a day piled on to the families of this city, or $14,500,000 a year. A recent report of the Department of Health says that malnutrition prevails among 19 per cent. of the children of this city. Of the recent rise of 2 cents in the price of milk only one-fifth of a cent goes to the farmers. I hope that the Board of Aldermen will act favorably on my resolution."

The following is the resolution, which was introduced by Alderman Lee, on Oct. 7:

"Resolved, By the Board of Aldermen of the City of New York that a special committee of seven members be elected, whose duty it shall be to prepare and report to this board, not later than the first meeting in December, a plan for the municipalization of the business of buying, transporting, handling, selling, and delivering milk products for use of the inhabitants of the city, together with a draft of such legislation as may be necessary to ask from the State Senate and Assembly in order to put such plan into effect."

The New York Milk Conference Board, Inc., which represents the distributers, will meet at the headquarters of the organization in the Flatiron Building this morning at 10 o'clock, when consideration will be given to the request of Health Commissioner Copeland, as chairman of the Governor's Fair Milk Price Committee, that the distributers work out some plan by which a material reduction will be made in the retail price of milk.

The Conference Board has asked its attorney for advice, and the members expect to have before them this morning his opinion as to the advisability of the Conference Board undertaking to comply with the request of Dr. Copeland.

As a protest against the increase of two cents a quart in the retail price of milk, a consumers' strike on milk distributers was declared last night by the City Parliament of Community Councils of National Defense at a meeting held in the Aldermanic Chambers at City Hall, with upwards of two hundred delegates present from the various local councils. The strike will be put into effect on Monday of next week and will be in full operation for three days. It is planned to carry on the strike for three days each week until the effect of the boycott has made itself felt in a form of reduction in prices.

The leaders in the Community Councils believe that there will be a wide response from the housewives of the city. An effort will be made to extend the boycott to include non-members of Community Councils. The strike is to be carried out under the direction of the local councils, which have thousands of members distributed throughout the five boroughs.

Dr. Albert E. Shields, the new director for developing Community Councils, pointed out to the meeting that the proposed strike was the first protest of the kind by the middle class, that up to the present had paid the bills while capital and labor made war upon one another."

LODGE IN DILEMMA, HOLDS UP VOTE

tain from the point of view of the majority, up to the time of adjournment tonight the majority leaders expressed the belief that the difficulty would straighten itself out over night and that when the Walsh amendment came up it would be defeated.

Owing to the long debate, the minority forces were unable to carry out a plan to force the Walsh amendment to a vote.

The minority leaders took delight in the tangled situation brought about by their projection of the Walsh amendment into the fight. This is but one of a series that the minority has in mind in an effort to divide the forces of the majority and upset its prearranged program. By offering amendments that will appeal to the radicals or middle-ground reservationists the minority hopes to cause defections in the majority ranks.

The outcome of the effort involving the battle on the Walsh amendment will determine whether Senator Lodge is to control his forces up to the end of the struggle. The crucial test is expected to come tomorrow, when the Walsh amendment, and after that the committee's reservation, will be voted on if today's plans are carried out.

An appreciable part of today's debate was taken up by Senator Reed of Missouri, in a three-hour speech, in which he sought to show the inconsistency of President Wilson in urging that the United States keep out of the European war, up to early in 1917, and later urging that America join European nations in a "League of the World." Senator Reed quoted from speeches and messages of the President, up to 1917, in which the President, as the Senator alleged, "did what he could to keep the United States from engaging in the European struggle." He accused the President of having led the country into a false position in arguing that the United States had no part in the "quarrels of Europe," and after the war was over, of having "tried to foist a League of Nations on the country." Senator Reed talked up to nearly 6 o'clock, when he stopped, saying that he would have "more to say tomorrow."

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, in reply to Senator Reed, accused him of having "deliberately misrepresented" the attitude of the President, and also Senator Hitchcock. He quoted from a speech of Senator Lodge in the Senate last December, in an effort to show that the Massachusetts Senator agreed with the President's position that the United States had an obligation to weak nations which had gone into the war on the assurance that the United States would help them in their efforts to set up independent Governments.

Senator Lodge replying to this, said that the view he held last December as to the obligation the United States owed the small nations was inspired by the promise to aid them in setting up buffer States against Germany.

"We promised to help them make the start," said Mr. Lodge. "When I expressed the view that we owed something to them I never contemplated that we would have handed to us a document that would for all time bind us to their destiny. It appears that Senators on the other side of this chamber make no distinction between time and eternity.

"This treaty does not fulfill the promises we made to Poland for an outlet to the sea, nor have we carried out our promise to France to see that it obtained possession of the left bank of the Rhine. We have put our clumsy hand on the Italian situation, making a serious difficulty over Fiume. And the last blunder we have made, through our representatives in the Peace Conference, is to take Thrace away from Greece.

"The sooner we get our hands out of this meddling in the affairs of Europe the better will we be off. That is the attitude I take on this treaty."

Earlier in the day the Senate had a debate on the question of whether President Wilson's Fourteen Points were embraced in the treaty. Senator Penrose brought the question up when he remarked that, although the President had promulgated the Fourteen Points as the basis for peace before the armistice was signed, he had later abandoned them.

Senator Owen, Democrat, of Oklahoma, challenging the Pennsylvania Senator's statement, said all the Fourteen Points but that relating to the freedom of the seas had been "imbedded in the treaty." The freedom of the seas question, he said, was left undecided by the Peace Conference because of "controversies related to it."

Senator Lenroot, Republican, of Wisconsin, said it required a microscope to find any of the Fourteen Points in the treaty.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, while expressing regret that all of the Fourteen Points were not "ore definitely expressed in the Peace Treaty," said that the failure of the President to press them was undoubtedly due to the neglect of the Senate to back them up. The Senate, he said, derided the Fourteen Points when the President went to Paris to negotiate the treaty.

"Well, the Fourteen Points were the idea of one man," replied Senator Norris of Nebraska, "and the treaty was the work largely of the same man. If President Wilson had wanted to, he could have got his Fourteen Points in the treaty."

Bacon for a long time was almost exclusively the food of the Roman patricians, or nobles. It was considered too great a luxury for the plebeians, or common people.

RAIL CONFERENCE MAKES NO HEADWAY

REOPENS OLD QUESTIONS

Time-and-a-Half Overtime Demand Up Again—Union Leaders Are Insistent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—After a four-hour conference today, agreement between the railroad administration and the four railroad brotherhood leaders apparently was as far away tonight as at any time since the brotherhood demands for time-and-a-half overtime in road service and revision of working conditions were laid before Director General Hines several months ago.

Conferring with the Director General were Timothy Shea, President of the Firemen and Enginemen; L. E. Shepherd, President of the Conductors; W. G. Lee, President of the Trainmen, and J. J. Corrigan, acting for W. S. Stone, President of the Engineers. When the meeting adjourned, it was stated the session would be resumed tomorrow, officials explaining that little had been accomplished at the initial meeting.

The conference reopened a series of moot questions, including the old one of establishment of the time-and-a-half overtime principle in road service, which has come up in every wage scale conference held during the period of Government control.

While union leaders were understood to be insistent in their demands, it was indicated that throughout today's meeting all discussions were amicable. The brotherhood men were said to realize the force of Director General Hines's argument that he could make no agreement which would further increase pay because of the short time before the termination of Federal control. The brotherhood chiefs set forth strong arguments for changes in working conditions which they hold work an injustice to certain members of their craft.

PRESSMEN RESCIND PROMISE TO RETURN

Local Union No. 51 Reverses Action and Votes to Remain Firm in Their Position.

SOME ARE GOING TO WORK

The members of Pressmen's Union No. 51, who voted last Friday night to cease their secession movement and return to their international union and thus pave the way for the ending of the tie-up in the printing industry which has affected New York City for the last six weeks, completely reversed their action at a meeting held yesterday afternoon at Beethoven Hall, 210 East Fifth Street. More than 2,000 men were said to have attended the meeting, which was closed to reporters. There were only 2,300 members in the old union, and the international officials say that 1,700 of these have already come over to the international. The explanation of Bernard Nolan, President of the old union, is that the men now realize that they acted under a false impression on Friday, and that the subsequent action of the feeders, paper handlers, and compositors in standing firm for their original demand for the forty-four-hour week has caused them to change their minds.

Despite this new turn in the situation the employing printers express themselves as being pleased with the situation. They say that the men are coming back, that some of their presses are running, and their confidence in their ability to control affairs was evidenced by an ultimatum which they sent to Typographical Union No. 6 refusing to continue further negotiations with their officers until the men returned from their "vacations." Reports from the various printing establishments yesterday indicated that the number of compositors who had returned to work was extremely small, and in several cases, where a large percentage of the normal number had returned on Monday, not one appeared yesterday.

The letter of the Printers' League to Big Six follows:

Nov. 11, 1919.

Dear Sir: Your letter of Nov. 10, 1919, inclosing copy of letter of same date to President Charles Francis of the Printers' League, requesting further conferences with our special committee, is received.

On Sunday, Oct. 5, 1919, Typographical Union No. 6 passed by a practically unanimous vote the following resolution:

The Executive Committee, after listening to the report of President Rouse on the present controversy between No. 6 and the employing book and job printers, in which the members of the union have peremptorily quit their jobs without sanction of the officers, recommends that the union, in meeting assembled, disavow the action of those members herein referred to and order said members to return to work in their respective chapels.

In view of this resolution and the fact that the members of Typographical Union No. 6 refuse to return to work, the committee is forced to draw one of two conclusions: Either the officers of Typographical Union No. 6 have lost control of their organization, or the resolution quoted above was not passed in good faith. The committee, therefore, declines to hold further conferences with representatives of Typographical Union No. 6 until the "vacationists" return to work as evidence of good faith that the union is a responsible body and that their own vote means what it says.

The committee again repeats, as it has done throughout the whole controversy, the offer of fair arbitration.

Very truly yours,

WILLIAM GREEN,
Chairman, Special Committee Printers' League Section, Association of Employing Printers.

At the meeting of Pressmen's Union No. 51 yesterday afternoon, the special committee of three which had been appointed to confer with George L. Berry, President of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union, reported upon the agreement they had made with him for the return of the seceding pressmen to the international union. The members immediately voted to discharge the committee and to reject its report. A strike committee made up of Charles Stewart, John L. Moore and Frank Reynolds, was then appointed in its stead.

One of the factors in the change of spirit in No. 51 was the statement made during the meeting by George Crowe, representing the Philadelphia pressmen's union, to the effect that that union would make a weekly contribution of $7,500 if the New York union would remain out on strike. The Chicago pressmen are said to have promised $5,000 weekly and the employes of the Curtis Publishing Company in Philadelphia $2,500 a week.

After a two-hour session of the Printers' League at the Hotel Astor yesterday morning it was announced that twenty more shops had resumed work since Monday, making a total of 130 shops now operating.

$100,000 in Silks from Here Stolen.

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 11.—Silk valued at $100,000 shipped from New York to silk mills in Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and neighboring towns was stolen in transit, the police reported today. The silk was thrown from a Lackawanna Railroad express car as the train was climbing the mountain grade from Stroudsburg to Mount Pocono, thirty miles from here.

MRS. GOTTHOLD FREED.

Jury Finds Woman Who Killed Daughter Not Guilty.

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Nov. 11.—Mrs. Hanna Gotthold of Philadelphia was found not guilty late this afternoon of the murder of her eighteen-year-old daughter, Mildred, at the Hotel Calvert, 123 South Virginia Avenue, Atlantic City, on July 2 last. The jury deliberated thirty minutes before returning their verdict to Supreme Court Justice Black.

Mildred Gotthold was found dead, lying across a bed in her room, with a bullet in her head from a revolver in the hands of her mother. At the time of the shooting the police, after an investigation, were convinced that Mrs. Gotthold, suffering from a temporary nervous breakdown, had accidentally pressed the trigger of the revolver as she leaned over her sleeping daughter to kiss her good-bye before carrying out a plan to end her own life.

Mrs. Gotthold, following the tragedy, was taken to the Atlantic County Hospital for the insane for observation.

County Physician Souder and Police Surgeon Beckwith, who examined her after the killing, testified that in their opinion she was not responsible for her actions at the time of the shooting because she was suffering from a nervous breakdown and acute melancholia.

Two Kinds of Economy in the Post-War Maxwell

Maxwell

More miles per gallon
More miles on tires

THE Post-War Maxwell inherited from its 300,000 predecessors two traits that captivate the person who likes continuous, uninterrupted, comfortable and low cost mileage.

One is its freedom from repairs. It runs on and on. Give it gas, oil, grease and water and it will deliver an amazing amount of mileage.

The second is the low price you pay per mile. Its thrifty engine makes gas go a long way. Its 2000 pounds of weight assures long tire wear.

Such kinds of economy came from years of study and the experience which 300,000 previous Maxwells have taught.

The notable improvements and refinements to be found in this car have caught the attention of many who figured that high efficiency meant high price.

The public has served notice that it does appreciate value.

That is why 40,000 persons will have to go without a Post-War Maxwell this year though 100,000 are being built.

RED CROSS DRIVE ENDED BY SOLDIERS

HAVE NOT REACHED GOAL

Insufficient Number of Workers Stated as Reason — Three Divisions to Continue Canvass.

The First Brigade, New York National Guard, with five infantry regiments, artillery, cavalry, signal corps, field hospital and ambulance corps, swept the city from the Battery to the Harlem River yesterday afternoon and last night in aid of the Third Red Cross Roll Call. Members of the American Legion, the Grand Army of the Republic, Veterans of the Spanish-American War, and Red Cross workers also participated in the demonstration.

The movement was divided into two periods—one from 5 P. M. to 7 P. M., and the other from 8:30 P. M. to 11:30 P. M., when all of the columns converged on Times Square and invaded the theatre district to solicit Red Cross subscriptions. The movement was prescribed by Brig. Gen. George R. Dyer in General Orders No. 10.

All of the columns were accompanied by bands and by flanking parties, who covered the sidewalks and took subscriptions. At different points throughout the city the march was halted for meetings.

The demonstration marked the official close of the Red Cross drive, although the membership campaign will be continued for another week. Brig. Gen. Dyer decided last night that, although the results of the campaign had been disappointing, he felt that the campaign must end officially. However, the Industrial and Mercantile Divisions, it was announced, would keep up their campaign in offices, factories and other mercantile establishments, and the District Division would continue its canvass of the residential sections. The canvass by the booths and in the streets ended last night.

An insufficient number of workers was said to be the reason for the failure of the campaign to obtain the desired membership. There has been a rush of subscribers to the different headquarters and many of them have said that they have not found canvassers in the streets. The Metropolitan Committee set 1,000,000 members as its goal, and it was said last night that they were far from that figure, although the totals were not available and those in charge of the drive could not give even an approximation of the membership until further reports are received. Final figures will not be completed until next week.

TELLS SAD PLIGHT OF JEWS.

Felix M. Warburg Says They Were the Worst Sufferers in War.

Felix M. Warburg, Chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee of American Funds for Jewish War Sufferers, who returned several days ago from a trip to Europe for that organization, made public yesterday some of his findings.

"The successive blows of contending armies have all but broken the back of European Jewry," he said, "and have reduced to tragically unbelievable poverty, starvation and disease about 6,000,000 souls, or half the Jewish population of the earth.

"The Jewish people throughout Eastern Europe, by sheer accident of geography, have suffered more from the war than any other element of the population. The potential vitality and the capacity for self-help that remains to these people after the last five years is amazing to me."

The people are deeply moved by the help given them by America, Mr. Warburg said, but it would be fatal to lessen the emergency aid now while millions are in tragic need. The $33,000,000 spent by his committee, he said, has fed and clothed more than a million children and has renewed the hope of five million parents and elders.

"For more than four years," he said, "the war on the Eastern front was fought largely in the congested centres of Jewish population. A straight north and south line from Riga, on the Baltic, to Salonika, on the Aegean Sea, will touch every important battle area of the Eastern war zone and every centre of Jewish population. After the cataclysm of the last few years it is too much to expect this Jewry to become self-sustaining in a short twelve-month."

Mr. Warburg is concerned over the program soon to be started for the discontinuance of emergency relief. This plan, he said, calls for the formation of a $10,000,000 reconstruction corporation.

"This organization," he said, "would afford facilities for constructive aid to Jews abroad in the way of loans and credit at nominal interest rates. The value of this sort of assistance as a substitute for pure charity is apparent."

Other relief projects recommended by Mr. Warburg include the establishment of an express company to forward money and packages from Jews in this country to relatives and friends abroad; the distribution of $120,000 worth of fuel in sections of Poland where destitution is greatest; the purchase of $500,000 worth of cloth in the bolt whereby unemployed workmen of Poland may get raw material, and a plan to reunite those Jewish families that have relatives in the United States and those who have become separated abroad.

NEW JERSEY TRIES ZONE FARE AGAIN

GOES INTO EFFECT SUNDAY.

Five Cents for First Two Miles, a Cent a Mile Thereafter, and a Cent for a Transfer.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 11.—The Public Service Railway Company today filed with the Public Utilities Commission a temporary acceptance of the modified zone fare system proposed by the commission after the company had asked permission to abandon the system as first tried because it proved a failure. Acceptance is tentative, and is to go into effect next Sunday, for the purpose of further experimentation. The new rate is 5 cents for the first two miles, 1 cent for each mile thereafter, and 1 cent for a transfer.

A statement issued by the company, after reviewing the earlier trial of the system, its reluctant conclusion that it could not succeed, its recommendation for its abandonment, and the commission's proposal of a modified zoning plan, continues:

"The company has no pride of opinion in this matter, and is willing, out of deference of the expressed opinion and recommendation of the board, as set forth in its last two reports on the subject, to continue the trial of the present zone plan for a limited time, with the modified rate of fare recommended by the board. The company takes this position in the hope that the board, the public, and its employes will all co-operate with it in this further trial of the zone plan, so that there may be no difference of opinion about its success or failure. The company agrees to this plan and these rates, in accordance with its understanding of the board's intentions, only as a trial for a limited period."

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 11.—This city, which put up a most stubborn fight against the zone fare system as first tried, is expected to prove just as inimical to the modified plan proposed by the Public Utilities Commission and agreed to for purposes of experiment by the Public Service Railway Company. Shipyard workers whose boycott of the lines was so violent it forced virtual suspension of service for some days, appear to be just as reluctant to permit trial of the new plan and Camden officials and citizens express themselves as extremely displeased with the proposed solution of the transit difficulties.

In the absence of Mayor Charles H. Ellis who led the fight against the zone system, Counsel E. G. C. Bleakly, also active in the struggle, issued this statement:

"The trolley riders have won a great victory. The trolley company has been forced to accept reduced rates of fare. Here in Camden we agree with the trolley company that the zone system is a failure. I think the people have always been willing to give any system a fair trial, but the people in the suburbs were not willing to pay fare in excess of the commutation rates on steam trains. Now, if the trolley company will go only one step further and introduce the sale of strip tickets from ticket offices at rates reduced below cash fares, I feel another step forward will have been taken toward inducing the trolley company's patrons to again patronize the lines. I am sure all the people of Camden will work together with the trolley company in its effort to have its present zone system done away with."

2,000 OFFICERS HAVE QUIT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—On the first anniversary of the armistice, the War Department today announced that the 2,000 mark in resignations of officers of the regular army had been passed. During the past year more officers have resigned from the regular army than resigned in the whole history of the army up to Nov. 11, 1918.

The rapidity with which regular army officers are leaving the service is shown by the latest edition of the monthly Army Directory. Between Aug. 23 and Sept. 22, 1919, 775 resignations were accepted, including those of 1 Lieutenant Colonel, 8 Majors, 82 Captains, 116 First Lieutenants and 120 Second Lieutenants.

Efforts have been made to keep up the strength of the West Point Cadet Corps, and in 1918 there were 787 cadets appointed. In that year 125 cadets resigned. A number equal to 16 per cent. of those were appointed. To Oct. 15 of this year 480 cadets had been appointed and 44 resignations received.

They carry a large and varied line of stock. It represents a big money investment. Experience has shown the extravagance of guess-work. Only a super stock record could handle this work with satisfaction.

Leading machinery manufacturers, therefore, use the L. B. Stock record. They put it to mighty strenuous tests. The way it meets these tests is proof of its fundamental soundness and practicability.

The L. B. Stock record shows at a glance—and at any time—the exact quantity on hand of each kind of stock.

It gives you the facts to enable you to buy raw materials to advantage.

It prevents waste.

There are small L. B. Stock records for the small business just as there are large L. B. Stock records for the large business.

An Educational Value, Too.

Youth is a formative period. Every moment should be full of useful experience. The ending of school should be the beginning of further education.

To succeed, organizations—like individuals—must be thorough. An institution gets its character and effectiveness from its individual members. Industrial executives are reminded by the times that they must again be teachers and leaders. In this store we are trying to fulfill that obligation.

Even though an employment here may be looked upon as temporary, our methods should make women better home makers, particularly as we try to develop personality and teach the value of method and system.

Think of this, and you or those in whom you are interested may decide to come with us.

CALL FOR A SOVIET TO RULE ENGLAND

British Socialist Party Speakers Make Revolutionary Addresses.

CHEER TROTZKY AND LENIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—At a meeting held in London last night under the auspices of "the British Socialist Party" to celebrate the second anniversary of the Russian Soviet Republic the speakers included Tom Mann, General Secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers; Robert Williams, Secretary of the Transport Workers' Federation, and John MacLean, Bolshevist Consul for Glasgow.

The speeches were frankly revolutionary. The names of Trotzky and Lenin were cheered, while those of Lloyd George, President Wilson, and Clemenceau were received with groans.

Mann expressed entire approval of the soviet system and his readiness to go as far in this country as the Bolsheviki have gone in Russia. He rejoiced because Russia was showing the way of true peace so effectively.

MacLean said conditions in the industrial centres here were ripe for revolution. He referred to the imprisonment of three of their comrades—Billy Watson, Jim Larkin, and Eugene Debs—and said they must secure the freedom of those who had been fighting for the rights of world classes. He explained that the aim of Bolshevism was world-wide revolution, and he welcomed the evidence of revolution in America.

Other speakers talked about the early creation of a Soviet Republic of Great Britain with a sister republic in Ireland. There were other references by speakers to getting guns and even machine guns for the revolution, while a Mr. Hodgson endeavored to scare the audience by telling them the Government had created a special force in the R. A. F. for bombing crowds during strikes or a revolution. This speaker was sure the coming revolution would be a bloody one and the workers would need to be armed.

After hearing these sanguinary speeches the meeting carried a resolution congratulating the Russian Soviet Government "on its resistance to the combined forces of world capitalism," and rejoicing in the continued military successes of the Red army. The resolution also condemns the British and Allied Governments for the help given to the "Czarist Generals and counter revolutionary capitalists" and calls upon the organized workers to enforce the raising of the starvation blockade of Russia and the establishment of diplomatic relations with the Soviet Government.

The Daily News lobby correspondent states that yesterday a deputation of Irish transport workers tried to get in touch with the Government to urge that a passport should be issued to Larkin to enable him, if possible, to return to Ireland. These efforts so far have not been successful.

"Personality" —and Success

WHAT is your Personality worth to you? What is it bringing you, getting you from Life? Are you growing in Success, gaining in income, in standing, in power, in popularity—or are you just plugging along, getting "nowhere"—an atom in the muck of "nobodies"? Your success and your popularity are up to you, and to no one else in the wide, wide world. What any other may do for you will never make nor break you. That job is highly personal. Learn how to develop your own Personality to a dividend-paying basis—how to get the most out of Life.

ELSIE FERGUSON
Paramount-Artcraft Star

What Are YOU Worth to Yourself?

LEARN to live, to do, to be—so that you may get, have, and hold.

"The world owes you a living," yes—but you owe yourself more.

In your personality there is Power. Its development is in your own hands. No matter what your walk in life, your present occupation, or your sex, it rests with you to fix your own capitalization.

A day laborer, earning $19.23 a week, has been capitalized at $25,000 by a noted executive, because his salary is 4% on the given principal. How will you capitalize yourself—at $50,000, at $100,000, at a million? Your capitalization only depends on how successful you are in developing yourself!

"What do I do, how do I go about it to develop my personality and better myself?" you ask. "How to improve my position, my standing in the community? How to win worthwhile friends? How to make more money, that I may enjoy more of the good things of Life?"

Show, to begin with, that you sincerely long to get ahead; that you have more than a mere lazy wish for good things; that you have an active Will to succeed, by reading this announcement through carefully.

An able, new work, "Personality," by Harry Collins Spillman, formerly Specialist in Commercial Education for the Federal Board for Vocational Education, has just been published.

"Personality" consists of studies and lessons in personal development. It teaches men and women how to develop their latent powers—how to increase their earnings—how to make friends who count—how to get more out of life. It puts plain truths before you in a simple, understandable way. It gets right down to rock-bottom in explaining the first principles of success in terms that all can understand and profit by.

This book shows how to achieve a winning personality. It will teach you self-survey and control—show you how to realize your ideals—how to achieve the conquest of happiness.

Easily used tables and self-questionnaires will help you to develop yourself—help you to sell yourself to yourself and to others at an increased valuation. You will find unlisted assets in your own self that you had never known of and that you can learn to realize on.

There is nothing involved, nothing difficult about this great course of self-development. It is a liberal education—a university of life—in which Greek and the higher mathematics are not necessary. Its cost is nominal. Only $2.

Study will show you how personality succeeds. A short time ago the Chase National Bank of New York went up into New England and brought back Eugene V. R. Thayer, then only 36 years of age, and made him President of one of America's biggest financial institutions. When Chairman Wiggins was asked why he had selected the young man, "personality" was the first word that fell from the great financier's lips. As you follow the histories of successful men of all ages, you will find that they have conquered obstacles and capped the climax of ambition by expression of their personalities.

This quality of personality is not always a gift of the gods, but may be an acquired asset. Alexander H. Revel, one of Chicago's noted merchants, says: "I believe that personality is largely a matter of cultivation. A man may have certain abilities and characteristics which are useless because he has not trained them to work for him."

Your development, your success are up to you, and you alone.

'WETS' WIN IN OHIO BY MAJORITY OF 641

ERRORS FOUND IN RETURNS

Latest Returns Give Harreld Majority of 712 in Oklahoma Special Election for Congress.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 11.—Ohio last Tuesday voted against ratification of the Federal Prohibition Amendment by a majority of 641, according to complete official returns received today by the Secretary of State. The vote was: For ratification, 490,879; against, 500,520.

Secretary of State Smith announced that some errors are apparent in the complete official vote and that the official returns from nine counties will be sent back to county election boards for correction. He also announced that the official figures from thirty-four counties would have to be verified.

James A. White, Manager of the Ohio Dry Federation, has asked for a recount of the vote.

A copy of the demand will be filed with the clerk of Franklin County court here some time today. The action will complete compliance with the Ohio law in such matters, thereby paving the way for future action, according to dry leaders.

Early today the "dry's" had a lead of 120 votes, but this, it was said, would be turned into a wet majority of 644 if official results in Hamilton County substantiated "wet" claims that an error of 704 votes had been discovered.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 11.—The latest unofficial returns today from 252 out of 265 precints in the Fifth Congress District, placed the majority of J. W. Harreld, Republican candidate for Congress in Saturday's special election at 712 votes. The vote in the returns to date from 252 precincts gave Claude Weaver, Democrat, 10,839, and J. W. Harreld, 11,551.

HARD CIDER ALLOWABLE.

Boston Revenue Official Makes Thanksgiving Apple Juice Ruling.

BOSTON, Nov. 11.—The manufacture and sale of pure apple cider whether fermented or not, is permissible under the prohibition regulations, Andrew J. Casey, Acting Collector of Internal Revenue, announced today. The statement was in response to inquiries about the use of apple juice for Thanksgiving.

Cider, either sweet or hard, Mr. Casey said, may be sold at the present time without regard to alcoholic content, although nothing may legally be done to increase its percentage of alcohol. After Jan. 16, 1920, however, cider can be manufactured and sold commercially only when the alcoholic content is under one-half of 1 per cent.

SUPREME COURT TO HEAR DRY LAW SUIT NOV. 20

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Nov. 20 was set by the Supreme Court today as the time for hearing arguments on the Government's appeal from a Federal Court decision in Kentucky holding the wartime prohibition act unconstitutional. The Government had asked that the case be expedited.

The suit was instituted by the Kentucky Distillers and Warehouse Company. It attacked wartime prohibition on constitutional grounds, and alleged that under its terms about 60,000,000 gallons of whiskey, worth approximately $75,000,000, in various bonded warehouses were about to be permanently removed as a domestic commercial commodity.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 11.—On the eve of arguments in a suit to test the constitutionality of the wartime prohibition law and the Volstead enforcement act in the Federal District Court, W. V. Gregory, United States District Attorney, announced today that he tomorrow would resist attempts to secure the hearing prior to adjudication of much the same issue in a previous action fixed for argument in the United States Supreme Court on Nov. 20.

The case on the calendar here was brought on behalf of Louisville distillers. It primarily questioned the validity of wartime prohibition and sought eventually to prevent interference with the sale of nearly 1,000,000 gallons of tax-paid whiskey commonly known as "floor stock."

ROPER ORDERS INQUIRY UPON 'CORKAGE' CHARGE

Colonel Porter Directed to Report on Serving Drinks in Hotels.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Commissioner Roper of the Internal Revenue Bureau of the Treasury Department, late this afternoon decided to call on Colonel Daniel L. Porter, supervising agent in charge of the New York Internal Revenue districts, for a report as to the facts regarding the alleged practice of certain New York hotels in making a charge for "corkage" to guests bringing their own drinks to meals.

The Commissioner has no official information regarding this practice, but his attention was today invited to newspaper statements to the effect that such a practice exists in hotels in New York city and that as much as a dollar is being charged guests for "corkage." This has raised the question as to whether it is legal for hotels to take a profit out of drinking in their establishments, even when the beverages are furnished by the guests, and has also raised a question as to the right of hotels to serve intoxicating drinks for guests furnishing their own drinks. Commissioner Roper did not care to act on the unofficial newspaper report regarding this practice and for that reason has decided to ask Colonel Porter for a report as to the facts in the case.

William H. Hirst, counsel to the Society of Restaurateurs, said yesterday that nothing in the War-Time Prohibition law forbade a man drinking his own liquor in a restaurant or hotel, and that the law merely provided against the sale or manufacture of intoxicating liquors. Use of liquor at a club, restaurant or hotel is not illegal under war-time prohibition, he said, and there is nothing in the law to prevent a hotel from making a charge for service in connection with a patron's use of his own liquor.

Jesse Moors, a saloon keeper of 1,712 Broadway, Brooklyn, was discharged yesterday by Magistrate Folwell in the Gates Avenue Court, after he had been arraigned on a charge of violating the excise law in that he sold near beer on Sunday. The Magistrate ruled that he was not guilty of violating the law, and discharged him.

Jacob Radewitz, who said he was a rabbi of a synagogue at 48 Attorney Street, was held in $4,000 bail by Magistrate Harris in the Municipal Term of the City Magistrates' Court yesterday on a charge of selling wood alcohol.

According to the complaint of Hugh W. Taylor, Chief of the Division of Food Inspection of the Department of Health, Radewitz sold to Samuel Schneider of 171 Broome Street two gallons of a liquor he represented to be whisky for $24.

"Between Oct. 12 and Oct. 18 Schneider took several drinks of this alleged whisky," the complaint stated, "and became seriously ill. He was removed to Knapp Eye and Ear Hospital, 500 West Fifty-seventh Street, where he was pronounced totally and hopelessly blind."

The old, lingering legend that Charles Stewart Parnell, the "uncrowned king of Ireland," did not die in the Fall of 1891, but merely vanished into some shrouded place of hiding is the basis and the inspiration of an Irish play which had its first New York performance last evening at the Greenwich Village Theatre. This play is called "The Lost Leader," and is the work of that Lennox Robinson who was manager of the Abbey Theatre in Dublin and who served as guard and escort for the Irish Players in their first stormy tour of America.

In "The Lost Leader" he has written a dramatic, fateful and absorbingly interesting play. Though it is presented now three thousand miles and more from the spot where Parnell's name can work its greatest magic, though it is freighted from first to last with Irish memories and Irish politics, though its great first act must needs hold a sort of spell over the gradually diminishing interest of the acts which remain, despite all these obvious handicaps, "The Lost Leader" still has power to enthrall the stray Man in the Street who may chance to find himself at Fourth Street and Seventh Avenue in search of an evening's entertainment.

That this is true is due, of course, to the fact that it has been adequately produced by William Harris, Jr. All the rôles that greatly matter are in the right hands, and as Parnell incarnate Frank Conroy is altogether admirable. Mr. Conroy has the force, the stature for the part. Leaving aside as secondary all minor questions of gesture and intonation, even of emotional fire, Mr. Conroy creates forcibly the impression that it is one of the great men of a century who is found in the little Poulmore hotel. He makes you believe that it really is Parnell who hears once more the call of his troubled people.

Like the legend of the lost dauphin, like the free-coursing story that K. of K. did not go down with that torpedoed ship, like many another story of a lost leader, so the belief has always flourished in the hills that it was not Parnell's body which the mourners followed through the streets of Dublin that Autumn day twenty-eight years ago. The prevalence of this legend and a wide familiarity with it is presupposed in this play of Mr. Robinson's, which also presupposes some familiarity with and interest in the divided counsels that still beset the uneasy isle.

The scene is a little out-of-the-way inn in Ireland, a seldom visited, unpretentious place, run by one Lucius Lenihan, who had succeeded to it at the death of his brother, with whom he, a sick and silent man, had found retreat in the early nineties. In this inn as chance visitors are a London journalist, making a three weeks' study of Irish politics for the illumination of Fleet Street, and a psycho-analyst who is trying to get a bit of rest by a fishing vacation. In the lazy talk around the fire, the question of hypnotism, suggestion, dreams, and what not leads to the doctor's effort to put the young scribe to sleep. The spell does not quite work with its intended subject, but it throws into a serene and biddable trance the old keeper of the inn. The doctor, knowing that the old man has had restless dreams, tries to draw forth and cast out forever the troubling thoughts. One by one he summons them out of the depths.

"A coffin. A woman. False friends. My name . . ."

"Yes, yes, your name," the doctor's voice prompts him, soothingly. "Lucius Lenihan. We will put that away."

The subject stiffens haughtily.

"That is not my name. I am Charles Stewart Parnell."

Thus, in a tingling moment, does an accident set loose the secret of a quarter of a century. How gossip spreads, it far and near, how messages of wonder and alarm come pouring in from London, how pilgrimages from the ends of the earth are started toward the remote Irish village—that is the unfolding story of "The Lost Leader." It is just as contemporaries of Parnell are arriving to identify him that he is slain—struck dead, ironically and symbolically enough, by the blow of a blind follower, a blow aimed at Parnell's detractor.

It cannot be pretended, even in the first flush of enthusiasm, that there are no minor or rather secondary implausibilities, no irritating loose ends left dangling amid all these winds of doctrine. Why Parnell redivivus should claim that the solution of the Irish problem is so simple that he could write an all-uniting, all-satisfying program on half a sheet of paper and work it out in six months, it is difficult to say. He is struck down just as he is about to give his gospel, and thus Mr. Robinson stands accused of having pulled a chair rudely from under an expectant audience.

Then it is not clear why the all-pervading scandal which clouded Parnell's exit from the world should be so almost completely ignored. "A coffin. A woman." That brief suggestion, and then no more. So much for Katherine O'Shea.

The performance is quite remarkably good. One could not ask a better embodiment than Conroy's, for the royal bearing, the flashing eye, the commanding presence—all are there. Robert T. Haines as the doctor, Edward O'Connor as an old leaguer, the inimitable Mr. Kerrigan as Peter Cooney, and Eric Maxon as the evil Long John Flavin—these are excellent. The work of Mae Melvin as Mary Lenihan, and, to a lesser degree, the work of Joseph Macauley as the blind follower, leave something to be desired. His is the greatest opportunity of all, and he does only pretty well. The spark does not leap from him.

Yet the play was potent last night, even before a not completely Irish audience, even with some Sinn Feiners applauding loudly at inconvenient moments, even with some peculiarly audible and offensive chatterboxes lodged squarely in the middle of the house, even with the subway making the little theatre tremble with emotion at trying intervals, even with Parnell dead these many years and Dublin far from Greenwich Village—"The Lost Leader" proved its magic for us all.

McBRIDE'S POLICY

THE extravagantly high premiums that are being charged for theatre tickets at various offices all over town discourages theatre going, hurts theatre management and therefore impels us to repeat our long-established policy to our patrons.

Our fixed charge for service of fifty cents per ticket over box office prices is the cornerstone upon which our business was founded forty-six years ago, and we limit ourselves to that moderate amount.

A recent law fixes that amount as the standard. This was our practice long before the law.

With the high cost of living we appreciate the theatre-going public cannot afford unreasonable prices for amusement and we want our patrons to know that so far as McBride's is concerned there is now no higher cost of tickets over box office prices than heretofore.

We are the same people who started this business, father and sons, and we propose to continue to deserve the approval of the theatre-going public and the theatre management by standing for a square deal—a square deal to one and all alike—by making theatre going a real pleasure and not carrying with it a feeling of injustice in ticket buying.

Our policy is to stabilize the business for the benefit of all.

THE LAW IS SUPREME.

Admirable in form and worthy of even higher praise because of its spirit, the statement made by the executives of the United Mine Workers at the close of the meeting at which they prepared the communication withdrawing the strike order changes at once the public attitude toward them and toward their demands. "We are "Americans. We cannot fight our "Government." That is Americanism, it is a conclusion stated in an American way, and the fact that it was expected makes it no less deserving of recognition.

These representatives of the miners do not say merely that they are not going to resist the decree of the Federal Court, they declare that they "cannot fight our Government." It is a thing outside the realm of possibility. If some among them may at first have counseled a different course, they must all rejoice that reason and respect for law prevailed in the end. Inevitably, this decision taken at Indianapolis and the manner in which it was proclaimed will be contrasted with the most unfortunate outgivings of the American Federation's Executive Council at Washington and with the ill-considered remarks of Mr. GOMPERS. The American spirit triumphed at Indianapolis. Some strange impulse, unknown to American thought and usage, prompted the Federation utterances at Washington.

Now the representations of the miners concerning their wages and conditions of work can be considered. They will be considered. Secretary of Labor WILSON has called operators and miners into a conference which ought to lead to settlement of the controversy. The Government of the United States is not unjust; more than that, it is concerned that injustice shall not prevail. It had an immediate concern in the coal strike when the law was violated. With great firmness and wisdom it has compelled respect for the law. There can be no doubt that now it will use its good offices to bring about the understanding and agreement which the President and the whole country desire.

NEGLECT OF SMALL INVESTORS.

The Secretary of the Treasury and Governor STRONG of the Federal Reserve Bank call attention to the neglect of the interests of small investors in Liberty loans by the banks connected with the Federal Reserve system. They need no eulogy upon the manner in which they have met the great burdens put upon them by the war, and perhaps it is not surprising that they have thought their duty fulfilled when they have cooperated in placing the war loans among some twenty million investors. It was a notable achievement, but the sequel has not been so pleasing. The education in investment extended only to the first primary lesson, and its power for good has been largely lost by the manner in which purchases, sales, and collateral loans on Government bonds have been abandoned to irresponsible sidewalk dealers, without any banking standing.

As Governor STRONG says, the bonds were placed on the assurance that banks generally would accommodate their customers in all business connected with the Liberty bonds, and many have done that. But the fact remains that many have regarded the business as small, troublesome, and not profitable enough for attention. Yet there has been built up a considerable business in odd lots of miscellaneous securities on the Stock Exchange, which involves trouble and expense much greater than so simple and safe a matter as dealing with Government bonds. The owner of them either has, or is likely to have, other financial interests, which would fall naturally to banks caring for Liberty bond investments. The officials are not thinking so much of the interests of the banks as of the Government, which feels that its interests are injured when o...lings in its bonds are prejudiced by the character of some of those who find irregular profits in business the banks neglect.

In some respects our banks set an example to the banks of Europe—the use of checks, for example. But the world's great example of small business by large banks is set by the Bank of France. It has upheld the hands of the Government during the war by multiples of billions, and yet it has a record of loans and deposits even on a smaller scale than the French postal banks. Our Federal Bank is rather a bank of banks. But the Bank of France has 182,500 shares, and 11,845 owners hold only a single share. Our savings banks are admirable, a world example in some ways, but our commercial banks must yield to one of the world's largest banks in regard for small business. The other day the world's largest check, for $2,648,889,171.53, was signed in adjustment of Treasury accounts. At the other end of the scale we still have something to learn, and it would be a good beginning if there were a new departure with small transactions in Liberty bonds.

THE FOUR AMENDMENTS.

It is a little surprising to find that every borough of Greater New York cast a majority of votes in favor of each of the four amendments to the State Constitution submitted to the people on Election Day. Hitherto it has seemed to be the prevailing popular frame of mind to hit a constitutional amendment on the head whenever it appeared. Its merits or demerits counted little. The voters were conservative. Sometimes they seemed a little lazy. In the case of the revised Constitution made by the Convention of 1915, and containing many admirable and even necessary changes, there seemed to be a sort of passion among all sorts and conditions of men to vote it down. Possibly the passage of the Woman's Suffrage Amendment in 1917 marked the beginning of a more sympathetic attitude toward alterations of the fundamental law. As amendments, State and Federal, got more numerous, one might expect that the people would grow weary of them; but here are all the four amendments carried in this city, probably contrary to the expectation of most observers, and carried, it would seem, by majorities not likely to be reversed in the rest of the State.

Amendment Number Two, authorizing absentee voting, got the largest majority, more than 144,000. This is natural, as there had been intelligent organization work in its behalf. The vote on Amendment Number Three, increasing the salaries of members of the Legislature, showed a majority for it of 107,753. That is a gratifying result, as is the nearly equal majority of 104,825 for Amendment Number Four, increasing the salaries of Judges of the Court of Appeals. These are salutary amendments. By their approval of them the city voters have shown that they are not pennywise and pound-foolish. Proposals to raise salaries, and particularly those of legislators, are seldom popular. The vote on these amendments indicates a sagacious and pondered popular judgment.

Amendment Number One, declaring the use of property for the drainage of swamp and agricultural lands "a public use," and providing that the compensation for lands taken for drainage purposes and "the cost of "such drainage may be assessed, "wholly or partly, against any prop-"erty benefited thereby," was approved by a majority of 76,916. The majority for it was thus less than half that for the absentee voting amendment and from twenty-seven to thirty thousand less than the votes on the salary amendment. Evidently there was a considerable appreciation of the doubt or the danger connected with this amendment. That it should be approved by nearly 77,000 majority in New York City may be thought to indicate a certain sublimity of altruism. Apparently the city is content to take the chances of paying higher taxes for the benefit of certain or uncertain persons up the State. Let us hope that the amendment will turn out to be more harmless and clearer than its looks, and that no future Legislature will take advantage of the large latitude authorized in regard to compensation and assessments for drainage to make the State pay the whole bill, of which the lion's share, of course, would come to the city so strangely hospitable to the "Swamp Amendment."

HOW THE RAILWAYS STAND.

The House expects to take a final vote next Saturday on the bill for the return of the railways to private operation, less than a week from the report of the Esch bill. That would seem hasty if there were greater likelihood that the bill as passed will be the bill finally adopted. On the other hand, the details are familiar to everybody interested in the subject, and it is well understood that the so-called final vote is only a vote to proceed to the more critical stage of conference between the houses. Deliberation then will be in order. Meanwhile notice should be taken of the House committee's summary of the tangled finances of the railways.

The roads at the end of this year will be in debt to the Government $899,-138,261, immediately payable. The items are for advances, betterments, equipment, and open accounts generally. On the other hand, the Government is debtor to the roads on unpaid standard compensation $886,395,851. Depreciation and open account balances raise the total due from the Government to the roads to $1,224,-680,154. On balance there is coming to the companies $326,541,803. The difference between the earnings of the companies and their rental due from the Government for twenty-four months is $361,777,430. The working capital necessary to leave with the companies for private operation is $267,943,276. The additions, betterments, equipment costs, and similar items which must be carried by the present Railroad Administration for an uncertain future amount to $578,-075,309. The total expenditure on account of the railways has been $1,576,541,898, against appropriations of $1,250,000,000. Accordingly, "to "discharge its obligations as they ex-"ist at Dec. 31, 1919, on the basis of "the standard contract the Railroad "Administration will need an addi-"tional appropriation of $326,541,-"898."

This is the first coherent account of the Government's railway adventure, and upon the whole it is encouraging from the point of view of both the railways and the Government. The credits are the successful application of the resources of the railways to the winning of the war, and they are inestimable. Disillusionments regarding Government operation are also valuable salvage. All the economies and efficiencies of Government unified administration have been tried and some merit found in them. But all of them together do not offset the fact that it has been found necessary to increase wages more than the total paid for the standard return, leaving a deficit sufficient to embarrass the resources even of the Treasury.

That is particularly true when it is considered that the mere statement of the accounts does not exhaust the subject. Many of the items are in dispute, some in litigation, with a better prospect that the companies will enlarge their credits than that the Government can enlarge their debits. Depreciation has always been a bone of contention between the companies and their regulators, and it is now likely to take a prominent place in the settlement of these accounts. For example, one road has been making a gratifying statement of earnings, but a State Commission has complained to the Director General that its mileage in part "is unsafe for normal opera-"tion, and in some districts at the "point of danger." Specifications are that inspection has shown ten rotten ties to a rail length, six laid consecutively in main line track. It is declared that the itemized defects are an average. There is a wide field for disputation whether conditions like these are fulfillment of President WILSON'S statement that "the prop-"erties will be maintained during the "period of Federal control in as good "repair and as complete equipment "as when taken over by the Govern-"ment."

The President made similar statements regarding the safeguarding of the interests of investors in railway securities in his address to Congress last year; for instance: "It is also an "obligation of public conscience and "public honor that the private inter-"ests we disturb should be kept from "unjust injury." It is now seen that the interests of the roads and of their investors are not antagonistic to the interests of the shippers. The roads must be prosperous if they are to be efficient carriers. If Congress meets public expectations in this respect, one cloud over the situation will be cleared away with as good effect on the general situation as on the railways themselves.

VICTOR BERGER'S DEFENSE.

VICTOR L. BERGER of Wisconsin, whom the House has debarred from taking the seat to which he was elected by his constituents, had no case at all if we are to judge by the report of his speech in opposition to the House's action. He pretended that he was being excluded because he was a Socialist, which is not true, and because he had been convicted of a statutory crime in a Federal court, which is not true. He also alleged that he was in the same position as other Socialists in that he had to follow the platform of his party, which is true only in form.

He was excluded, he said, because "I am a Socialist and an opponent "of war and profiteering." In 1910 Mr. BERGER was elected to the House from the same district that has now, after an interval of some years, re-elected him. He was just as much of a Socialist then as he is now; he was in fact practically the leader of the Socialist Party in the nation. He was just as much an opponent of "war "and profiteering" as he is now. Not the slightest objection was raised to his taking his seat. He served his full term, and enjoyed the friendship and esteem of the acquaintances he made in the House, without distinction of party. When he made a speech he was listened to with attention and respect; and this although he was "a Socialist and an opponent "of war and profiteering." Now he comes before the same House and is excluded. It must be obvious to any one that he is not excluded because of his socialism or his opposition to war and profiteering.

As a further reason for his exclusion he says, "Because I was in-"dicted upon order from the Attor-"ney General under charges of con-"spiracy" and "found guilty by a hand-picked Federal jury." The Constitution provides that each house is to be the judge of the qualifications of its own members. The House does not require that a man must be indicted or convicted of any offense in order to exclude him. It will exclude him if it is convinced he is for any reason unworthy to sit in its membership. Indictment or no indictment, conviction or no conviction, it can exclude any man for any reason that, in its opinion, disqualifies him for participation in making the laws of the country. The committee considered the Chicago case, but only because that case supplied it with evidence concerning Mr. BERGER'S fitness, not at all because he was convicted.

Why, then, did the House exclude from its membership in 1919 a man whom it welcomed to that membership in 1911, and whose views had undergone no change in the meantime? Because in time of war he had lent his influence toward the obstruction of his country's preparations and subsequent activities, and to that extent, whether intentionally or not, had ranged himself with his country's enemies; whether intentionally or not, had given what aid he could to the enemy. For no man could obstruct the war efforts of the United States without aiding the war efforts of Germany just that far. He was not a follower but a leader. It was he, with two associates, who drew up the treasonable Socialist platform of 1917, and the great influence of these three men, the leaders of the Socialist Party, was exerted to the utmost to drag the party as a whole into support of that platform. BERGER might have pleaded that other men whose records are not much better than his own still remain in Congress. But his case is the most glaring, the most flagitious; so much so that his attempt to enter Congress with such a record savors of impudence.

THE ANNIVERSARY IN GERMANY.

The anniversary of the German revolution was received, as was to be expected, with sentiments dependent entirely on political predilections. To the conservatives the revolution was the sole cause of all the humiliations and miseries of the people; to the liberals the sins of the old régime were responsible, the revolution was merely the receiver in bankruptcy. Nor is there lacking the plaint of a professor of history who laments that the course of events has entirely violated the logic of historical deduction, and that of course only trouble can come from such trifling with the laws of science.

More to the point, however, for the rest of the world—and for the Germans themselves, though some of them do not realize it—is the present state of the revolution and its prospects. Not what has happened but what is going to happen is the question on which the future welfare of Germany and the peace of Europe are likely to depend. The Berliner Tageblatt expresses the general opinion of foreign countries when it says that the revolution of Nov. 9, 1918, was not a spiritual upheaval or a forcible assertion of new ideas, but merely "the collapse of the old system, "which had heaped mistakes upon "misdeeds, and was bound to col-"lapse the minute it lost the protec-"tion of bayonets."

The rule of the Hohenzollerns broke down because it had failed—failed to win the war and failed to maintain the welfare of its subjects. But we have yet to discover what will take its place. EBERT and BAUER have the titles, but NOSKE and the army officers in the Eden Hotel seem to have the power, and the nominal republicanism of the Government is threatened from both sides, by a frank monarchist counter-revolution and by a communist rising. NOSKE'S machine guns and barbed wire in the streets of Berlin seem to offer some protection against the Reds, but it remains to be seen what NOSKE and his soldiers could or would do against the Whites.

To be sure, if we believe the official voice of the eloquent Mr. SCHEIDEMANN, speaking for the benefit of the outside world, there is no danger and no reason for danger—and particularly no danger from the Right. "Since "the adoption of the new Constitu-"tion no land on earth has a democ-"racy in such approximate perfec-"tion as the German Republic. The "people's will at last is the highest "law. The rule of Prussian Junkers "is forever past, but with the rule of "communists we will not make even "the most modest experiments."

Thus SCHEIDEMANN in a statement for publication, from which we should infer that the last Junker had broken his dishonored sword and gone into the oblivion of exile. So it is surprising to find that after giving out this picture of a perfect democracy SCHEIDEMANN on the same day makes a speech in which he urges reunion of the Majority Socialists with the Independents because "the danger from "the Left is not so menacing as that "from the Right." This friendly overture does not seem to have met with a very warm reception; at the same moment LANSBURY was rousing a meeting of Independents to enthusiasm by denunciations of SCHEIDEMANN and EBERT, and calling on his hearers to swear that they would carry the revolution "in Germany and elsewhere" to a victory not yet achieved.

The German Independent Socialists are fairly red, but as a party they have not bowed the knee to Spartacus. They do not seem very likely to do much to promote the revolution "elsewhere." But they are for the moment the most honest party in Germany. The rest of the world could far better afford an Independent Socialist government in Germany than a frankly Junker government, without the check which nominal republicanism gives at present. And SCHEIDEMANN'S remarks about the danger from the Right are not so alarming, after all; indeed, his overture to the Left is one of the most encouraging political signs that has been seen in Germany of late. For SCHEIDEMANN has a genius for siding with the winners, and if he really thought the Junkers were going to run away with the Government he would be trying to make his peace with LUDENDORFF and renew the alliance to which he was so loyal while he thought the Kaiser was winning.

ARMISTICE DAY.

It will not escape the notice of patriotic Americans who desire their country always to be in the van of liberty, progress, and enlightenment that Marshal FOCH, the Commander in Chief of the allied armies; General JOHN J. PERSHING, who led the American Army, and President WILSON, all struck the same note in dwelling on the supreme lesson of the great war in their public utterances yesterday. Thus Marshal FOCH, the knightly soldier whom Americans admire and love, in a message to the American Legion in convention at Minneapolis, said to his "Valiant War Companions":

> On this day, when for the first time we celebrate the anniversary of the armistice, I want to be with you to commemorate the past, and to tell you that, with your eyes ever raised onward the same ideal of justice and liberty, we must remain united, as we have been in the days of trial and the days of triumph.

General PERSHING, who could not remain silent on such an occasion, recognized with characteristic good sense the common service of the American soldiers and sailors and the people at home who stood behind them with all their resources and with indomitable resolution to see the war through to victory. And looking into the future General PERSHING said:

> These experiences safeguard the future of America and enable us to look forward confidently to the development of a stronger nationality and a deeper sense of the obligations that rest upon us.

From his seclusion on account of disability incurred in the line of duty President WILSON saw in the armistice that ended hostilities an opportunity for the world "to reconstruct its "shattered order and to work out in "peace a new and juster set of inter-"national relations." Armistice Day, he said, was an occasion for Americans to express their gratitude for victory, "both because of the thing from "which it has freed us and because "of the opportunity it has given "America to show her sympathy with "peace and justice in the councils of "nations." The war will have been fought in vain if America boasts only that she threw her sword into the balance and achieved victory for her allies. Germany will have won the war if America declines the opportunity to serve mankind by proving herself as great and efficient in peace as she was in the titanic struggle.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

The End of a Promising Career.

Among the victims of the ill-planned and ill-fated Gallipoli campaign was Lieutenant HENRY GWYNN JEFFREYS MOSELEY, Royal Engineers, and the recent meeting of the Royal Society in London gave many British leaders in science an opportunity to express a deep regret—which was really severe criticism—that the British Government had so little understanding and appreciation of this young man's value to the nation that it found nothing better to do with him than to put him in the trench where he was shot dead by a Turkish sniper.

MOSELEY, young as he was—he died at 27—had already won attention in higher scientific circles by brilliantly successful investigation of the atom. His work was in a domain in which there could win little of popular interest, but those competent to judge it ascribe to it great importance and credit him with having made a large and distinct addition, to human knowledge.

Professor E. RUTHERFORD, himself among the most distinguished searchers into these most intimate secrets of matter and its nature and structure, says that the result of MOSELEY'S investigations "are of far-reaching importance, both "on the theoretical and experimental side, and are likely to stand out as one "of the great landmarks in the growth "of our knowledge of the atom." Other scientific men of like prominence speak in similar terms of the young man's work, and intimate a like resentment of what they evidently think was the Government's reprehensible negligence or ignorance in wasting such a man on a task at which he was no better than companions at the front who had nothing of his special ability.

He Saw His Duty and Did It.

It is impossible not to share the sorrow of the British scientists over the use made of their brilliant young colleague, but their criticism of the British Government is hardly fair. Its fault in this as in so many other respects came in the general category of unpreparedness for war, and for that the whole nation was blamable rather than the Ministry or the Parliament. MOSELEY himself, who was in Australia when the war began, seems to have felt no doubt as to the best service he could give his country. He hurried home, volunteered, sought and obtained a commission, and as an officer in the Signal Corps soon found opportunity for proving the practical value of his scientific attainments.

It was no time then for continuing to study atoms—not for one who was a real man as well as a real student—and lamentable as was Lieutenant MOSELEY'S death, he served the cause of science better in the Gallipoli trenches than he would have done by remaining of his own choice safe at home in his laboratory. What seems the waste of his life is not to be charged to the military authorities of England, who probably never had heard of counting electrons, but to the Germans, who had created a situation so desperate that the place for any Englishman who could fight was in the field, no matter what he could do elsewhere.

Later in the war, as the world knows, and the Germans best of all, the Allies did call upon their men of science to use their scientific knowledge and skill, and Lieutenant MOSELEY himself died while orders for his return to England for work of another kind were on their way to him.

Soldiers Make a Mistake.

It is to be hoped that not in many towns are there as many returned soldiers with wrong ideas of what the country owes them as there seem to be in Port Chester. In that pleasant and prosperous suburb six men with good war records ran for office at the recent election and five of them were defeated. Resenting these results, ex-service men of Port Chester to the number of 150 have petitioned the village Trustees to remove their names from the honor roll that has been in the square to which has been given the fine designation of "Liberty."

Now, without attempting to decide whether or not these candidates were qualified to perform the duties of the offices to which they aspired—Port Chester's voters knew or ought to have known the answer to that question—it can be said without chance of error or the giving of just offense to anybody, that service in the war, while it establishes the best of claims to honor and gratitude, is quite irrelevant to what is done on Election Day and when presented as basis of a demand for political preferment should be ignored.

That a good soldier may be a good civilian official is true, but true, also, is it that a good soldier may be a very poor civilian official. If the Port Chester voters had rejected the soldier candidates as such, more than resentment would have been justified, but the supposition that the rejection was so based is too absurd for consideration.

Sure of Hearty Welcome.

Of course it is easy for a royal personage to win praise almost anywhere. He need only show what for other men would be ordinary good manners to be credited with finest courtesy, and for him little kindnesses and affabilities cause delighted surprise on observers who in others would only notice the lack of such amenities. Now and then, however, and oftener, perhaps, than our more fervid republicans would like to admit, there is a royal personage who earns as well as gets the favor of title-scorning folk by showing what is evidently a natural and therefore sincere inclination to be friends with all he meets, who has no illusions as to his rights or his superiorities—who is, in short, estimable in exactly the way he would have to be to win esteem if he were not royal.

The King of the Belgians was of that sort, and now another guest, the Prince of Wales, has arrived to test the welcome democratic America as distinguished from the mitigated monarchism of Canada has to give him. According to all reports and descriptions from the north, he, too, is going to make us admit that royalties can be all right—as good as anybody and better than not a few who are not of regal birth.

The Canadians, who are not servile or snobbish, liked him immensely—liked his youth, his interest in what he saw, his humanness all of the time and his princeliness when to be princely was fitting and appropriate to ceremonial occasions. In the country EDWARD ALIENS will be among people glad to be friends with him in both his personal and his representative capacities—honestly hoping that he may live long and prosper.

The Treaty in the Senate.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial article in today's TIMES entitled "Sabotage Openly Arrived At" is fine. My only prayer is "keep it up!" Expose these Senators who today in the United States Senate are trying to pull our country down into political chaos for generations to come, possibly until another and greater war will raise up an America that will not stand for such disgraceful transactions as are now being "openly arrived at" in the Senate.

We witness today a majority of United States Senators, who represent a minority of the American people, regardless of party, branding our country as a selfish nation before the other nations of the world, who have already ratified the treaty, and are ready to shoulder a humane responsibility that America balks at.

America needs to be awakened to what is going on in the Senate at this time, that she may demand an explanation from those Senators whose intent is to make a purely political issue of the Treaty of Peace and the League of Nations.

THE LAST TO FALL.

(In memory of the soldiers who died on Nov. 11, 1918.)

Guardians of our glory, Defenders of our faith,
Most hapless and most holy of our immortal host,
They felt within their weary grasp almost
The gathered palms of Peace and Victory,
Only to yield them up ungrudgingly
For other hands to hold and lift.
God grant our hands be worthy of their Gift!

Upon their burdened brows
The lengthening light of dawn,
Unhoped, was falling warm, after the endless night;
Yet—faces lifted to the Morning Star—
Their brothers from the vision white.
God grant our eyes be worthy of their Light!

They, our Last Fallen, by mire, flame, and mine
Tried utterly to the end, like gold burned fine—
Listening at last to long-hushed hopes and dreams,
Heard, but with dying ears,
The sharp-stilled thunder of the Line
And paeans of deliverance rise
Triumphal to the torn gray skies.
These by their wealth of utmost giving,
Their youth and love and beckoning years,
Have made us passing rich, the poorest living.
God pity us, soul-dead, if we forget

DENIES LEAGUE WAS ISSUE.

R. W. Bingham Says Morrow Won in Kentucky on State Appeals.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 11.—Robert W. Bingham, publisher of The Courier-Journal and Louisville Times, in a signed statement tonight replies to the assertion by William Randolph Hearst in an article in The New York American, that Edwin P. Morrow was elected Governor of Kentucky on the issue of opposition to the League of Nations. Mr. Bingham warmly denies that this was a fact. He says:

"The platform on which Governor Morrow was elected was silent upon the treaty and the League, and Mr. Morrow on every occasion on which he spoke specifically disclaimed the League as an issue in the Kentucky campaign. His opponent, Governor Black, indorsed the League and sought to force Governor Morrow to take a stand upon it, which he refused to do, because his chances for success lay in confining the campaign to State issues and in obtaining votes of Democrats and Independents by promising to improve conditions in the State Government.

"In a speech at Harlan he declared: 'The League of Nations is not an issue in the Kentucky campaign,' and The Courier-Journal marked this utterance by frequently quoting it editorially. Mr. Morrow stood by that statement, and two weeks before the campaign ended Governor Black forsook his vain attempt to draw out the Republican candidate.

National Committeeman A. T. Hert declared that the fight had been won exclusively on State issues and added, 'The people could not be misled by an attempt to bring the League of Nations in as an issue.'

Alfonso Initiates Large Loan from the Federal Bank.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 11.—Negotiations are in progress by which the Bank of Spain, with the approval of the Spanish Government, will make a large loan to the Argentine Government, according to the Madrid correspondent of La Nacion. Although the exact amount of the loan has not yet been fixed, it is said that 500,000,000 pesetas is the sum under consideration.

Domingo Salaberry, Minister of Finance, today confirmed the advices from Madrid and said the negotiations were initiated by King Alfonso, who is interested in closer financial relations between Spain and Argentina.

The Minister of Finance added that it was easy to comprehend that Argentina was similarly interested, and that the republic would give the matter all the attention required, not only because of the loan itself, but because the arrangement of it would serve to bring about a closer connection with the mother country.

DEFENDS MORMON CHURCH.

Smoot Protests Against "Libelous Matter" Published About It.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Praising its integrity and patriotism, Senator Smoot of Utah today in the Senate defended the Morman Church and its members.

"I protest against the libelous matter that has been published about the country," Senator Smoot declared. "The Mormon Church has nothing to conceal. I want the people of the United States to know that so far as polygamy is concerned, it is dead, and these scandal mongers in the future must find something else to write."

Senator Smoot declared he was not in the Senate as a representative of the Mormon Church but as the representative of the people of Utah, who, he said, "have been so foully misrepresented."

Senators Ashurst, Arizona; Thomas, Colorado, and Henderson, Nevada, joined with the Utah Senator in praising the integrity, thriftiness and patriotism of the Mormon people.

SAYS WAR CLAIMS WERE OVERPAID

House Committee Recommends Review by Baker and Action for Recovery.

THINKS FRAUD TAINTS SOME

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The select House Committee investigating the conduct of the war presented to the House today a report on the settlement of war claims which recommends that the Secretary of War make a review of certain settlements and that if this review shows that sums are due the Government on account of fraudulent or excessive settlements, proceedings be instituted by him to recover the money illegally paid.

The report bearing upon the investigation of the committee says:

"House Resolution 331 requests the Secretary of War to make a review of certain settlements made under the act of March 2, 1910, commonly known as the Dent act, and that if on such review it be found that sums of money are due the Government on account of such settlements being fraudulent or not according to the tenor and effect of that act, proceedings be instituted by him to recover the sums of money due the Government.

"The resolution originated in Subcommittee No. 5 on Ordnance of the Select Committee on the War Department, and is the result of a very considerable investigation that sub-committee has made on certain settlements of claims made by the War Department or by the various claim boards under its jurisdiction since Nov. 11, 1918.

"This investigation, as shown by the hearing of said sub-committee, has taken a wide range. It has included investigations of the rules that have been formulated by the War Department for the settlement of such claims and the machinery that has been devised. It has gone into a few of the great mass of claims that have been adjusted, all of which is incorporated in 500 printed pages of committee hearings that is too voluminous to be even briefed in this report.

"The sub-committee, among other things, has investigated the following settlement of war claims and contracts to wit: American Can Company, contract for hard bread can; Stein-Bunn Camp and Field Equipment Company, contract for firelese cookers, cooks' chests, and bread boxes; Henry Moss & Co., contract for branding irons; Brier Hill Steel Company, contract for corrugated roofing; National Enameling and Stamping Company, contract for buckets and kettles; Standard Steel Car Company, contract for howitzer carriages; Jones & Laughlin Company, contract for by-product coke ovens; United Metals Selling Company, contract for copper.

"In all these cases, except the last two named, salvage values were fixed by Government agents and army officers on special facilities furnished by the Government, sometimes buildings, and sometimes machinery and equipment, which were, in the opinion of the committee, insufficient and unjust to the Government. In some of the cases cited they seem to have been obviously tainted with fraud. Part of the blame for this condition is due to the rules adopted for the settlement of such claims, and partly due to the laxness and inefficiency of the Government representatives.

"In the last case cited, that of the United Metals Selling Company, immense profits were made by the producers of copper, by virtue of a combination of the low price of copper producers, which combination was aided and encouraged by the Government, although in violation of the law of the land.

"In some of the cases cited, the committee is of the opinion that constructive if not actual fraud vitiated the settlement. The committee is of the opinion that millions of dollars are involved in these settlements, which the Government might have a right to recover if a proper review of such settlements were made."

Needed for Housing, Says State Charities Conference President.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 11.—The twentieth New York State Conference of Charities and Corrections opened this afternoon with about 350 delegates. The Rev. Dr. Augustine M. John S. He advocated the elimination of the Justice of the Peace system and the fee system, as it applies to constables, and the establishment of a State commission for corrections.

GERMAN CARDINAL DIES IN COLOGNE

LEADER OF PAN GERMANISTS

Cardinal von Hartmann was a prominent figure during the war. In the latter part of 1915 he was sent to Rome by the then Emperor William on a mission to the Pope that was supposed to have peace for its object.

In 1916 Cardinal von Hartmann was a leader of the Pan-Germanists, and while on a visit to the Western front he assured the Emperor that all Catholic soldiers were ready for further sacrifices.

In May of 1918, in response to Cardinal Hartmann's request that the Allies refrain from air attacks on Cologne on Corpus Christi Day, the city was not molested.

Monsignor von Hartmann was born at Muenster, Westphalia, on Dec. 15, 1851. He was created a Cardinal on May 25, 1914, and in January, 1916, was appointed a member of the Prussian House of Lords.

possess such widespread power in the democratic English-speaking world, for offering to be my intermediaries in conveying this short message to your fellow-citizens in the United States. I assure you that I deeply appreciate the hospitality of your Government in inviting me to pay this visit and in entertaining me so well. EDWARD P."

The royal special train arrived at the Union Station about noon, where a Marine guard was in waiting. Vice President Marshall, General Pershing, Lord Grey, the British Ambassador; General March, Chief of Staff; Admiral Coontz, Chief of Naval Operations, and other notables were standing in the concourse when the train arrived. As the Prince, dressed in the uniform of an officer of the Welsh Fusiliers, stepped from the car Vice President Marshall greeted him, and the two exchanged a few words.

Over the shoulder of the Vice President the Prince caught sight of General Pershing's soldierly figure. He stepped forward with a broad smile and grasped the General's hand impetuously. At once the Prince was introduced to General March, Secretary Daniels, and others, and then the party proceeded up the platform to a point where Lord Grey and members of his embassy staff stood. There were more warm greetings here.

All these meetings had been so entirely informal and so devoid of pomp and ceremony that the crowd gathered outside the station concourse grill had warmed to the Prince. So the vocal reception was very loud and hearty. The Prince appeared to realize this sincerity and bowed right and left. Red Cross girls waiting to swell subscriptions to their organization did not escape his smiling eye.

As he entered the President's reception room the band burst into "God Save the King!" The royal visitor and the officers who accompanied him stood rigidly at salute. Cavalry troopers from Fort Myer, the rain streaming down their brown rubber slickers, stiffened in the saddle and whipped their sabres to salute.

The Prince and his escort, which included his own personal staff, the American army and navy officers who accompanied him from the Canadian border, scores of Secret Service men, and, since his arrival at the Union Station, Cabinet officers and other officials, proceeded swiftly up Pennsylvania Avenue and through Sixteenth Street to the residence of Perry Belmont, where the royal party is quartered for the Washington visit.

After Vice President Marshall, Secretary Lansing, General Pershing, Rear Admiral Grayson, and the other officials who accompanied the Prince from the Union Station had left the Belmont residence the Prince received a delegation of Washington correspondents and representatives of the press associations and local newspapers. They were presented to him by James D. Preston, the veteran superintendent of the Senate Press Gallery. The Prince had doffed his overcoat—a garment of light blue, new to the British Army—and appeared in the khaki uniform of a Colonel of the Welsh Guards. The conversation was entirely informal.

Only once did the Prince consent to be quoted. That was when he was asked about a report printed in a Toronto newspaper that he might be appointed Governor General of the Dominion of Canada. "The newspapers know more about it than I do," he answered with a smile.

He commented on the long distance between the Union Station and the Belmont residence and indicated surprise over the size of Washington. In shaking hands with the newspaper men he used his left hand, and it was explained afterward by one of his suite that his right hand was crippled from too much hand-shaking in Canada.

In answer to a question he said that he had met President Wilson in Paris and expressed gratification that the President's condition was improving.

When he had completed his conference with the Washington correspondents the Prince lunched informally with the members of his suite and the American officers attached to his party. As soon as luncheon was over, he visited the White House, where, on entering, he faced with evident good humor one of the inevitable batteries of moving-picture cameras.

Vice President Marshall's Dinner.

Calls were paid upon the Prince in the course of the afternoon by various diplomats and Cabinet members, and later he spent some time resting. This evening he attended a dinner given by Vice President Marshall at the Belmont house. Among the guests, besides the Prince's party, were the members of the Cabinet, representatives of the British Embassy, and the French, Belgian, and Japanese Ambassadors.

In proposing the health of the Prince at the dinner tonight, Vice President Marshall expressed regret that the President could not be present. After alluding to the fact that one year had elapsed since the armistice was signed, Mr. Marshall remarked that he wished to express gratitude that the Allies had stood together in the great war.

"The old order ceased one year ago today," said the Vice President. "The new order then began. The conflict which started at Runnymede was ended by Haig and Foch and Pershing on the fields of France. The right of men to have a Government controlled by themselves, law-ensconced, is never more to be disputed in this world of ours if those who made the fight to put down military autocracy will make the fight to put down prejudice, suspicion and doubt among the Allies.

"I shall not forget that, while we hesitated, while we doubted, while we wondered whether it was any of the part of our national mission to come to the defense of stricken Belgium and devastated France, England put her back to the wall, and stood upon the far-flung battle-line of Europe, making freedom and Christian civilization possible even for the American Republic.

"I shall not say that it was altogether altruistic. There may have been some element of self-defense in it. But may God give us all, when the time of self-defense comes, the same high altruistic ideals of the British Empire. More and more it seems to me that the fate of the future rests on the faith and confidence of the allied nations for each other."

Proposing a toast to the Prince the Vice President said:

"So, ladies and gentlemen, to the hope that the tie that binds may never be broken by doubt, suspicion or treachery, that it may bind all of the allied peoples for all of the years to come, I propose, as the faith of the American people, long life, health and prosperity to His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales."

In his response to the toast proposed by Vice President Marshall, the Prince said:

"I regard it as a great honor, and I am finding it also a great pleasure, to have been invited to pay this first visit to the United States. I wish, indeed, that the President, whose visit to England last year I am so happy to be able to return on behalf of my father, the King, had been with us here tonight. I have followed his illness with the deepest concern, and I associate myself most earnestly with the hope of his fellow-countrymen that he may soon be restored to health.

"The United States has recently lost one of its noblest citizens in Theodore Roosevelt—a man, a sportsman, and a force. All who knew him feel the poorer for his loss.

"Your President is revered far beyond this country's shores, and the great world is as deeply affected as his own people by his absence from active political life. I was happy to hear a better report of President Wilson at the White House this afternoon, and hope to see him before I leave Washington.

Pays Tribute to Jusserand.

"This is Armistice Day, and it is indeed a happy coincidence to have been invited tonight to meet the representatives of so many countries which were gallantly allied in the great struggle and gloriously associated in victory. I am particularly glad to be able to greet his Excellency the French Ambassador, M. Jusserand, pre-eminent amongst the diplomatic representatives accredited to this great capital, just as his country—la France immortelle—was pre-eminent amongst the Allies.

"As you know, I have recently been traveling in Canada, and I am the richer since that three months' journey by a wonderful experience. I come here, therefore, not only as an Englishman and as a representative of the British Empire, but also as a Canadian, who is as intimately and personally concerned as you yourselves in the life of this North American continent. The British Empire is held together by the common aims and the united sentiment of five sister nations, all of which are devoted to the same cause of democratic self-government. But Canada shares with the United States the splendid territories of this rich continent.

"She is divided from you by no physical barrier, no military line, no frontier other than a boundary guaranteed by international law and good-will. North of that frontier we cherish our British institutions, our British form of freedom, our British allegiance to the King. South of it you cherish equally the institutions into which the American citizen is born. The forms are different, but the human aim of both systems of government is the same.

"It seems to me that this example of nations living side by side in a spirit of political tolerance and human liberty is entirely incompatible with the militarism which threatened Europe in the great war, and is thus a living example of the great principles for which we gave our best in that terrible ordeal.

"As the representative here of the British Empire, and also—I hope I may say—as a friend and great admirer of the American people, I reflect with pride that our common victory was a victory for the ideal to which we, with our institutions and you with yours have given practical shape upon this continent for a hundred years."

Later in the evening the Prince visited the National Press Club, in the Riggs Building, opposite the Treasury Department, where he delivered a short address.

The dinner at the Belmont home was served in the frescoed dining room, with the table set in the form of a horseshoe. A section of the Marine Band played throughout the evening. Owing to a sudden indisposition of Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Lansing assisted in receiving the company, which, in addition to the Prince and Vice President Marshall, included Miss Wilson, Rear Admiral Sir Lionel Halsey, K. C. B., K. C. M. G., Chief of Staff; Major Gen. Sir Henry Burstall, K. C. B., K. C. M. G.; Lieut. Col. F. W. Georges, C. M. G., D. S. O., M. C., Military Secretary; Sir Godfrey Thomas, Private Secretary; Commander Dudley North, C. M. G., R. N.; Captain Lord Claud Hamilton, D. S. O.; Captain the Honorable Piers Legh; His Excellency the Ambassador of the French Republic and Mme. Jusserand; His Excellency the Belgian Ambassador and Baroness de Cattier de Marchienne; His Excellency the Ambassador of Great Britain, on Special Mission, the Right Honorable the Viscount Grey of Fallodon; His Excellency the Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Kijure Shidehara; Sir William Tyrrell; the Honorable Ronald C. Lindsay; the Secretary of State and Mrs. Lansing, the Chief Justice and Mrs. White, the Speaker and Mrs. Gillett; the President pro tempore of the Senate, Senator Albert B. Cummins, Secretary and Mrs. Glass, Secretary and Mrs. Baker, Attorney General Palmer and Mrs. Palmer, Postmaster General Burleson and Mrs. Burleson, Secretary and Mrs. Daniels, Secretary and Mrs. Lane, Secretary and Mrs. Houston, Secretary and Mrs. Wilson, the Acting Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Sweet, Senator Lodge, Senator and Mrs. Hitchcock, Representative and Mrs. Henry D. Flood, Representative Stephen D. Porter, General John J. Pershing, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Tumulty, the Chief of Staff, General Peyton C. March; the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. Coontz, Major Gen. George Barnett, Commandant of the United States Marine Corps, and Mrs. Barnett; Major Gen. John Biddle, Rear Admiral Albert P. Niblack, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson and Mrs. Grayson, Colonel Clarence S. Ridley, Aide to the President, and Mrs. Ridley; Mark Thistlethwaite, Secretary to the Vice President, and Mrs. Thistlethwaite; Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, Captain Perry Belmont and Mrs. Belmont.

DINNER FOR BRITISH OFFICERS

Those of Renown and Constance to be Entertained by City Tomorrow.

Arrangements have been made in New York for a dinner to be given to the officers of the British warships Renown and Constance in the Ritz-Carlton ballroom tomorrow night, with Rodman Wanamaker as Chairman. The petty officers and seamen of the ships are to be entertained by the New York War Camp Community Service on the same night with a dance at the Community House at Ninety-seventh Street and Riverside Drive, and plans have been made for sightseeing tours during their stay.

The Renown and Constance will be anchored off the foot of West Eighty-seventh Street.

The Renown was scheduled to arrive today from Rio de Janeiro, but the United States naval radio officials said late last night that they had been calling the warship for two days and so far had not received any reply.

Another function which the Prince of Wales will attend on his arrival next Tuesday for a five-day visit to New York was announced last night. One of the largest dinners the Pilgrims have ever held will be given in honor of the Prince on Friday night, Nov. 21, at the Plaza Hotel. The Prince, if the program of the Mayor's Committee on Distinguished Guests is followed, will attend a performance at the Hippodrome after the dinner.

GUARD OF HONOR FOR PRINCE.

British, Canadian, and Australian Great War Veterans to Compose It.

A Guard of Honor composed of British, Canadian and Australian war veterans will greet the Prince of Wales, on his arrival in New York next week. The Prince will land from the Renown at the dock of the Columbia Yacht Club at 10:15 A. M. and will inspect the guard of honor, which will be drawn up there. A meeting and preparatory drill of veterans of the British, Canadian, and Australian forces will be held in the 71st Regiment Armory at Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue, at 6 o'clock Saturday evening, when those to compose the guard will be selected. Veterans are requested to wear uniforms.

Preparations are in charge of the British Great War Veterans of America, whose headquarters are at Room 813, 1,463 Broadway. Further details may be obtained from them.

SIR BARTON WINS HOLLOW VICTORY

GRIMALKIN TAKES SPRINT

BALTIMORE, Nov. 11.—The Pimlico Serial No. 3, at a mile and an eighth, the last of this series of races for horses of all ages, was run here today over a sloppy track and proved to be almost a fiasco. There were only three starters and the race was practically a walkover for the entry of Commander J. K. L. Ross. Sir Barton won with the greatest of ease, and his stablemate, Billy Kelly, was second, with Sam C. Hildreth's overworked Lucullite third. Commander Ross received $1,000 extra because his Sir Barton won two of the three races.

The attendance was one of the largest of the meeting. Though rain fell all day, the enclosure was packed and the overflow from the stands filled the open space to the rail. The holiday provided the last opportunity for many to attend the meeting which closes Thursday.

Though the Serial was the feature on the card, it was regarded as a joke race, and there was not much support for the entries, except by those who were willing to take a very short price. Sam C. Hildreth permitted Lucullite to run to prevent the race from being a complete walkover, though he had realized after the last race of the son of Trap Rock that his horse was stale and could no longer perform as he had in New York. It was the last race for Lucullite for this year and he will be turned out for a long rest.

In Front All the Way.

The conditions were against the Hildreth horse, but despite this there was enough support for him by those who figured he might show a flash of his best form to make his quotation less than 3 to 1. The Ross entry was played down to 3 to 10.

Sir Barton had the race in hand all the way. He passed the stands the first time leading, gained the rail, and remained in front all the way. Lucullite ran a better race than on his last appearance. He went to the outside on the first turn, and then began to move up and seemed to be full of running. He made a dash at the leader half way through the back stretch and came up to within half a length of him. Kummer saw Lucullite approaching and gave Sir Barton one nudge. The star Ross colt sprang forward into a lead of nearly two lengths.

That was the last effort for Lucullite. He continued to run, but was dropping back slightly all the time. Sir Barton turned into the stretch and came home in a canter, Billy Kelly, which likes a shorter distance, had no trouble in landing second place.

The rest of the card provided some good contests, one of the best being the fifth, a one-sixteenth dash for three-year-olds, which brought out some good sprinters. This went to R. F. Carman's Grimalkin, which defeated Pastoral Swain in a driving finish. Pride of India, one of the most disappointing horses of the year, was third. Toto, which raced today under the colors of H. W. Fry and which was made the public choice, finished last.

Grimalkin led all the way from the barrier and was skilfully handled by Kummer. The jockey got the best of the break and then remained close to the rail and forced Pastoral Swain to go to the outside at the last turn when the latter attempted to come up. Pastoral Swain made a strong bid in the stretch, but Kummer gave his mount his head and won by nearly a length. Pride of India, which has a habit of pulling up, finished with good speed, while Toto did not seem to like the going.

J. J. Hallenback's Lunetta scored an easy victory in the Country Club Purse, a six-furlong sprint for two-year-old fillies. Lunetta made a show of her field, winning by five lengths from Siren Maid, while the latter took the place from W. R. Coe's Sweet Music at a long price. The third horse paid $18 to show and had been 50 to 1 to win.

Lunetta raced away from the barrier in front and crept away from her field with every stride. Lucie May ran close to her for a quarter of a mile, but then gave it up and Lunetta went on to win as she pleased. Siren Maid, which had been winning in Kentucky, was much the best of the others and was five lengths in front of Sweet Music at the finish.

D. Sweeney's Bob Redfield captured the Patapsco Steeplechase at two miles and a half, with Quel Bonheur second and Cresthill third. Bob Redfield was always in front, but did not begin to draw away until the last turn of the field, when he took the race in hand and was never seriously threatened. Quel Bonheur made a rush at the finish, but was beaten two lengths. Jockey Williams threw his cap in the air as he crossed the finish line and looked back at his nearest rival.

Mudders in Their Glory.

Mud runners were in their glory, and A. L. Austin's Belario proved to be one of the best of these in the second race. He defeated Asterisk and Indian Chant, among others, and was in front all the way over the mile and a sixteenth test.

The day opened with a long shot, when H. W. Fry's Who Cares, which had been knocking at the door for some time, romped down in front in a six-furlong dash for two-year-olds, defeating the favorite, Jean Bullant. The winner paid $20.60 to holders of a two-dollar ticket. Who Cares was away well in the large field and raced in front all the way. The favorite broke slowly and was in close quarters through the back stretch, but made a game finish.

Sam Lewis's Dottie Vandiver made a runaway race of the seventh event, at a mile and a quarter, and won by three lengths from Romeo, the favorite, which just nosed out Melancholia for the place. Dottie was at home in the sloppy going, and was far in the lead when she reached the first turn. She ran away from the others in the back stretch and had the race all to herself. The seven starters were strung out for a city block going through the back stretch, and no horse was within two lengths of another. Melancholia made a strong finish, and Romeo just lasted for second.

SERVATIUS BEATS JAMESON.

Takes Game in N. A. A. B. P. Class C Metropolitan Billiard Tourney.

Louis Servatius defeated A. Stedman Jameson by a score of 150 to 77 at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night in the second game of the National Association of the Amateur Billiard Players' Class C 18.2 balkline billiard tournament, being played for the metropolitan championship. Servatius got off to a flying start, and while he did not show his best form he was good enough to make high runs of 14 and 11 and to make an average of 4 44-53. Jameson's high run was 8 and his average was 1 24-53.

The low averages of both players can be accounted for by the open playing. Both players did very little close playing at any time throughout the match. It was the first tournament that Jameson had engaged, and there is not the slightest doubt that he will show improvement. He displayed enough billiard ability to convince those who saw him play that he is a much better player that his work indicated last night.

GOLFERS GO SOUTHWARD.

Winter golf is on. Both amateurs and professionals from the northland are packing their grips for the invasion of the Sunny South, and simultaneous with the opening today of the schedule of events on Southern links comes the announcement of the professionals who have closed up shop in the country clubs hereabouts and who are heading for warmer jobs. At Pinehurst, N. C., today the fourth annual Carolina golf tournament will begin and will continue until Saturday, when the final will be played. No less than five of the Northern pro-instructors have been engaged to chaperone the golfers at Pinehurst for the Winter. Chief of the pros there will be Don and Alex Ross. Don Ross, the Boston architect of the links, will supervise the improvements on the two courses at Pinehurst, and Alex, the Detroit pro who won the Ohio open title last month, will act as instructor. Others who will join the Pinehurst forces for the cold months are Herbert Lagerblake of Ohio, Walter Howe of the Worcester Country Club, and John Peacock.

Herbert Strong, another pro who has inherited considerable importance as a links architect by reason of his success in building the new Engineers' Country Club course at Roslyn, L. I., will again report at St. Augustine for the Winter. Other professionals from the Metropolitan clubs who will return to their customary Winter berths are Alex Smith of Wykagyl, who is going back to Bellefaire, and W. H. Potts of Apawamis, who will return to Ormond Beach. Charles Thom of Shinnecock Hills, L. I., is making a change this Winter and will handle the affairs at Royal Palm Golf Club at Miami, while Lee Nelson of Indianapolis will succeed him at the Miami Beach G. C.

A. J. Christie, who during the Summer presides over the golf house at Ekwanok, will return to Daytona, and Jack Croke of Exmoor will be found at Fort Myers, Fla. D. E. Miner of Rangeley Lakes, Me., will go to Deland. Eugene McCarthy of Charleston, S. C., will go to Jacksonville, and Alex Girard will succeed C. W. Singleton at Lake Wales. Thomas Mulgrew of the Hackensack Golf Club goes back to Summerville, S. C., and Emmet French of York, Penn., will resume his Winter work at Southern Pines, N. C.

SHAMROCK IV. WILL TAKE WATER TODAY

After being on the shelf for five years the Shamrock IV will be launched this afternoon at the Shewan dock in Brooklyn. It will be a private launching, with only Sir Thomas Lipton and the officials of the Shewan Company present. Sir Thomas is anxious to ascertain how the racer takes the water and is eager to give the craft a thorough testing. The boat will be launched without its rigging.

At the time the yacht was put in dry dock, just before the races were expected to be held five years ago, the rigging was stripped, and it is doubtful whether Sir Thomas will want to change it or not. It is generally believed that he will stand upon the rig that he had on the boat before. The Irish sportsman is anxious to see the hull in the water and then will decide whether he will need new canvas or will be able to race with the same amount of spread that he had in 1914.

The hull, it is said, seems to be in excellent shape, and that is what chiefly interests Sir Thomas. He wants to find out whether it is still weather-worthy and whether it can stand a fairly high sea.

The Baronet went over yesterday afternoon to get a bit of a look at the craft. "There's the boat that will do the trick," he said, his eyes glistening as the canvas was pulled off the sailing yacht.

The Shamrock IV. was to have been launched yesterday afternoon, but owing to the low tide it was decided to wait until today.

Experts among the spectators, who included Commodore Willard Taylor, said that the Shamrock is of an extreme type. The keel measures 35 feet, and the body is of canoe type, cut off short on the after overhang, the bow being carried to an extreme length. The interior of the boat is partly of steel and partly of wood. Some yachtsmen yesterday termed the boat a freak. It carries about sixty tons of lead.

Sir Thomas posed for the newspaper men, and then walked to the boat and felt the side of it. He asked Commodore Taylor to touch the side too, and the two men thereupon smiled confidently at each other.

"If we lift the cup," said Sir Thomas, "Americans will undoubtedly be more interested in the future races. Americans desire to see the cup change hands."

He said he had participated in yacht races all over the world, especially in Germany, and had won many cups. He is particularly anxious to win this one, however, he said, but only on condition that he has the best boat. Sir Thomas added that he thinks his is the best. "I find the Americans to be good sportsmen," he said, as he got into his automobile with Commodore Taylor and his secretary.

SERINE WINS GOLF PRIZE.

Something of a surprise was sprung in the New York Newspaper Golf Club yesterday when Hiram Serine defeated A. F. Poinsette 3 and 2 in the final round for the Cooper Cup. The match over the tattered and torn Fort Lee-Sandt Park links had its exciting features throughout the thirty-four holes played, and although Poinsette was rated as a favorite by reason of his recent work on the links this Fall, he was outclassed by Serine, who at one time was 6 up.

Serine benefited by a handicap of four strokes on each round, and without them the match would have had quite a different aspect. On the morning round Serine won three of the holes which he took the strokes and succeeded in halving the fourth. On the eighth he won without the allotment. In the afternoon Poinsette held his opponent in the pinches, and Serine won only one of the four holes where he took strokes. It was the fourth, which he lost the eighth and succeeded in halving the thirteenth and fifteenth.

The two finalists played give and take golf during the morning, and at the half Serine was 3 up. After lunch he won the first and second, halved the third, won the fourth as a result of his allowance of one stroke, lost the next, but became six up by capturing the sixth hole. By the twelfth Poinsette had cut this margin in two, and at the thirteenth he was only two down. Poinsette played remarkable golf over the hill holes, and on the fifteenth sank a 20-foot putt for a 3. Serine took a 4, but this was shaved down to a 3 with his allowance. Serine then proceeded to win the sixteenth, ending the match. Poinsette played better medal golf both morning and afternoon, taking 82 and 79 against Serine's 84 and 87.

Their cards:

The New York newspapermen also held their annual grand match yesterday at Van Cortlandt, in observance of the end of the golfing season. W. C. Wood won the eighteen-hole medal play handicap with a gross of 83, which was cut to a net of 68 with a handicap of 15 strokes. H. L. Peres took the nine-hole handicap with 44—8—36 and E. F. Teague won the competition over the second nine holes with 42—10—33. Teague also tied with E. B. Davis for the hill holes handicap, but under the regulations could win only one trophy, and Davis took this contest with his score of 24—8—16. David Hall won the putting prize, having needed only 32 for the round.

BROCCO IN SIX-DAY RACE.

Cable Announces That Italian Rider Will Compete at Garden.

Maurice Brocco will be among those present in the lineup for the start of the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden on Nov. 30, the rider signing a contract to ride at a meeting of the European stars in Paris yesterday. The cable announcing the signing of Brocco also stated that Oscar Egg, Swiss champion, agreed to terms.

Brocco was the sensation of the 1913 race, his last start here, when he drew down fifth prize with Verri. The Italian's wonderful sprinting was the feature of that race, and had it not been for the illness of Verri the team would probably have stolen a lap and won the race, for on more than one occasion Brocco had the better part of a stolen lap when Verri was called in only to lose it again. The point system is to Brocco's liking, and Promoter Young intends to give him the pick of the foreign riders for a partner.

Greenleaf Wins Two More.

Ralph Greenleaf won two more games from George Clark at Maurice Daly's Academy last night. In the afternoon he defeated the former champion of New York State by 100 to 76 and in the evening he beat Clark by 100 to 85, running out the game with an unfinished run of 46. In the afternoon Greenleaf's high run was 36 balls against Clark's 28. In the evening he had a high run of 44, while Clark's best was 32. In the four matches that have been placed the score stands: Greenleaf, 400; Clarke, 316. At the time that Greenleaf made his best run, that of 46, Clark was leading by 85 to 54.

BEEKMAN VICTOR AT SQUASH TENNIS

New recruits for the increasingly popular game of squash tennis were lined up yesterday on the courts of the Yale Club, when the Princeton Club, at present sharing the alumni quarters of the Blue, started its annual Fall handicap tournament with twenty-five entries. Prominent among the new contenders was Leonard Beekman, last year's captain of the Princeton lawn tennis team, challenger for the Middle States title, and ranked for several years among the top-notch racqueters of the country.

Beekman's debut in competitive squash was made auspiciously, as he won his opening match from Jarvis Cromwell by the close score of 15—11, 16—18, 18—15.

Both players had streaks of wildness, mingled with some exceedingly hard and accurate hitting, and the point totals were never far separated.

The wearer of Princeton's 'Varsity tennis letter was the first to get the range of the court, and he kept a winning edge throughout the initial game, putting lots of speed into his fore and backhand drives, and eventually claiming a leg at 15—11. Cromwell, however, was far from beaten, and began a stubborn resistance in the second session. His knowledge of angles and his judgment of the rebound seemed slightly better than that of his rival and, although Beekman continued to smash the ball all around the varnished walls, the match was all square when Cromwell, after setting the game to extra points, edged into the slightest of leads at 18—16.

Rubber Keenly Contested.

The rubber was bitterly contested, Beekman again running into the lead and holding an advantage of 8 to 3 before his opponent got well started. Cromwell, however, braced once more, using good headwork to make up for his lack of killing shots, and steadying his defensive play remarkably. The game was again set for extra points and by this time both contestants were so wearied with their strenuous efforts that they could scarcely get out of the way of the ball as it carromed about the inclosure. The final ace came after a close service by the tennis expert, Cromwell returning weakly down the middle of the court. Beekman annihilated the ball with a full swing, scoring cleanly off the back wall, and landing the decision at 15—11, 16—18, 18—15.

Frank Lafforgue, the Yale Club professional squash player, was greatly pleased with the showing already made by Beekman in the indoor game, and predicts for him a future at squash approximating the distinction of his lawn tennis record. Certainly the young Princetonian has one physical asset for successful squash tennis, and with careful coaching should develop rapidly. His handicap in the present tournament is 8 aces, and as his opponent yesterday was rated at the same level, they played from scratch.

H. H. Mixsell, one of Princeton's strongest representatives on the squash courts, and a former holder of the national Class B title, had to allow R. Catlin a start of five aces in each of their games yesterday, but won without great difficulty at 15—6, 15—10. Mixsell's variety of shots and complete command of angle play utterly bewildered his less experienced opponent in the opening game. Catlin scoring only points in addition to his handicap. But in the second session the loser put up a far better resistance, adding five well earned aces to his gratuitous allowance and keeping the result in doubt up to the last few hands, when Mixsell rushed ahead to the limit of speed and finished a decisive winner.

Harold Tobey Defaults.

The defaut of Harold Tobey, a national "first ten" player, removed the only other scratch man from the tourney, which thus becomes largely a question of whether Mixsell can overcome the handicaps allowed to the rest of the field.

R. Piel had a hard time yesterday in eliminating G. W. Vanderhoef, who enjoyed a two-point advantage, the scores being finally recorded at 15—7, 11—15, 15—7, in favor of the former.

The tournament will be continued today, simultaneously with the Yale Club's invitation event on the same courts.

Princeton Club Handicap Tournament.—First Round—E. C. Olds, (5,) defeated L. J. Doyle, (6,) 15—5, 15—6; L. Richards, (7,) defeated G. H. Walker, (8,) 15—10, 15—9; S. P. Hayward, (9,) won from J. W. Forrestall, (7,) by default; Leonard Beekman, (8,) defeated J. Cromwell, (8,) 15—11, 16—18, 16—15; J. R. Greenwood, (8,) won from W. Black, (8,) by default; R. Healy, (8,) won from Cortland Hardy, (8,) by default; G. Muller, (8,) won from G. Graham, (8,) by default; H. D. Harvey, (4,) won from Harold Tobey, (scratch,) by default; H. H. Mixsell, (scratch,) defeated R. Catlin, (5,) 15—5, 15—10; R. Piel, (5,) defeated G. W. Vanderhoef, (7,) 13—7, 11—15, 15—7.

MUNROE WINS AT SQUASH.

Defeats Strong In One-Sided Fashion in Yale Club's Tourney.

One match left over from the first round of the invitation squash tournament at the Yale Club was played yesterday, resulting in a one-sided victory for J. Munroe of the Harvard Club over T. G. Strong, one of the home representatives. The games were scored at 15—0 and 15—6. Munroe's walkover in the opener was a surprise to the gallery, as he was a late entry of the dark-horse type, and such a whitewash is exceedingly rare in first-class squash.

The entire second round of the tournament will be played this afternoon and contains some unusually interesting matches, including R. E. Fink of Englewood vs. F. H. Johnson of Yale; H. W. Harvey of Princeton vs. R. E. T. Riggs of the Squash Club, G. Piel of the New York Athletic Club vs. Anderson Dana of the Harvard Club, a former national runner-up; F. S. Keeler of Columbia vs. D. S. Baker of Yale, Rudolph Goepel of the Greenwich Field Club vs. William Adams, Jr., of Yale, R. E. Wigham of Columbia vs. Livingston Platt of Yale, Alan L. Corey of Yale vs. Frank Kidde of Columbia, the New Jersey State champion, and A. J. Cordier of Yale vs. H. Duncan Bulkley of Columbia.

Tomorrow afternoon the first of the interclub team matches of the Metropolitan Association, Class B, will be played on the Yale Club courts, the home players entertaining the Crescent Athletic Club, while the Princeton and Harvard representatives clash in a parallel encounter.

GOWDIE WINS CLOSE RACE.

Captures Five-Mile Chase of Bronx Church House.

In the initial run of the Bronx Church House over a five-mile course last evening, Robert Gowdie, with a two-minute handicap, captured first honors in a close finish from Jack Horne, who ran from scratch. Gowdie's actual time was 32:20, Horne's time was 30:21.

Other runners who followed in the order named were: Harry Rippe, 1 minute handicap, time 32:10; August Seigner, 1 minute handicap, time 32:50; Charles Westerholm, 30 seconds handicap, time 33:30; E. Schmidt, 2½ minutes handicap, time 35:40; Daniel Scheffduck, 2½ minutes handicap, time 36:30.

White Makes Run of 69.

In the Brooklyn 18.2 Balkline Billiard Handicap Tournament at the Brooklyn Billiard Academy last night Charles E. White, playing for 250 points, defeated M. P. MacManiman, playing for 180, by a score of 250 to 192. During the game White made a high run of 69, which is considerable billiards. He averaged 11 8-22. MacManiman made a high run of 28 and had an average of 5 11-21. White played consistently good as is shown by the fact that, besides his best run, that of 46, Clark was headed by a high run of 69, he made runs of 39, 29 and 27.

Army and Navy to Meet in Varied Competitions

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 11.—Arrangements have been made for the Naval and Military Academies to meet in every branch of sport in which they both engage, and this will add basket ball, fencing, and field and track games to football and baseball. These arrangements have been made by Colonel Charles H. Dafforth, Commandant of Cadets at West Point, and Lieut. Commander W. A. Richardson, representing the Naval Academy. The contests will take place alternately at West Point and Annapolis and are expected to begin this season. Other sports will later be added to the list.

217 ENTER COLLEGE CROSS-COUNTRY RUN

A record-breaking number of entries has been received for the renewal of the intercollegiate championship cross-country run, which will be held at Van Cortlandt Park Nov. 22. This was disclosed yesterday when the list of prospective starters was made public by L. C. Owens, Jr., of Columbia University, Secretary of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America. Simultaneously with the public announcement of the entries Mr. Owens mailed copies of the complete entry list to the coaches of the different colleges which will be represented.

The names submitted total 217 individuals from fifteen different colleges. This more than doubles the previous record of entries for the title chase. It does not follow, however, that 217 runners will get away with the starting signal. Under the rules of the I. C. A. A. A. A. only ten runners may compete for a college in the hill and dale fixture, although a college is permitted to submit a list of twenty names from which to select its team. When the race was conducted three years ago 107 runners started in the test, representing ten colleges. This field created a high-water mark for the event up to 1916. The entry fell off in comparison in 1917, when the fixture was last conducted. The University of Pennsylvania's team captured the title in that chase. Last year the race was declared off because of the war.

Cornell has had a monopoly on the title, scoring fifteen victories in the nineteen years the race has been held. Yale, Harvard, Maine, and Pennsylvania are the only other colleges which have succeeded in scoring victories. The Ithacans are scheduled for a stiff struggle if they are to resume their reign with the coming race. Coach Tom Keane of Syracuse University has molded a formidable array of hill and dalers from the material in the Salt City institution, while Princeton also is prepared to nominate a dangerous array of cross-country candidates in the coming chase.

That the battle for supremacy has engendered unusual rivalry among the colleges is illustrated in the increased number of institutions which have nominated full teams of twenty men each. Seven have taken advantage of the I. C. A. A. A. run's new entry conditions and have named the limit number of prospective starters. Harvard, Yale, and Princeton are among the colleges which have followed this plan, the others being Cornell, Dartmouth, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Penn State.

Yale—Hilles, Crosby, Reed, Bubles, Smith, Fisher, Wilson, Kelley, Miner, Booker, Wilcox, Morehouse, Sleman, Rice, Page, Prizer, D. C. Smith, Child, Badger, Kellogg.

FOOTLIGHTS ENTICE WILDE.

British Flyweight Boxer May Take Up a Theatrical Venture.

Jimmy Wilde, the sensational little English flyweight, spent a busy day yesterday journeying about the city on trips in which business and pleasure were combined. The little Briton was fagged out last night when he finally gained the shelter of his hotel. Even then, however, Wilde's seclusion was interrupted by the frequent ringing of the telephone bell and the well wishes from hordes of admirers. The visiting boxer declared he had not received any offers for bouts, but that he had begun other business negotiations. It is understood the little Briton is being sought as a likely attraction by many vaudeville managers.

The British boxer was impressed with the great crowd which turned out for the bouts at the Arena Monday night and was pleased with the tremendous reception which greeted him when he was introduced by the veteran announcer, Joe Humphries. Asked his impression of Benny Leonard's form, Wilde declared the lightweight champion a wonderful boxer, fast, clever, and with remarkable hitting powers. The British flyweight gave it as his opinion that Leonard could dispose of Soldier Bartfield with a few punches, if the lightweight felt so inclined. Wilde said he formed this opinion from the dazzling speed Leonard flashed when he went after Bartfield in aggressive flurries.

Wilde did not hesitate to declare Leonard the superior of any boxer of his weight in England, but expressed the belief that Johnny Basham, British welterweight champion, could give Leonard an interesting tussle if a match could be arranged.

La Rue Is Three-Cushion Winner.

George La Rue played some of the best three-cushion billiards that has been seen in this city in some time at Doyle's Academy last night when he defeated Carlos Maxwell by a score of 25 to 21 in thirty-six innings. He had high runs of 4 and 3, while Maxwell's best was a cluster of two. In the pocket billiard tourney Harry Calder sprung something of a surprise by defeating Ray Crane by a score of 50 to 41. In the Snooker tournament Charles Leonard of Fletcher beat J. Rothenberg by a score of 100 to 79.

MAY ADJUST MAYS CASE THIS MONTH

Chairman August Herrmann and President John A. Heydler of the National League, both members of the National Commission, yesterday discussed the delay in the payment of the Yankees' share of the world's series receipts. Their meeting was informal, and the two members of the highest baseball court decided that there was no change in the situation. The commission will hold up the money, which amounts to $13,017.43, until the American League

SWITCH FORWARDS OF YALE'S 'VARSITY

HARD SCRIMMAGE FOR MEN

First and Second Elevens Show Dash and Power Against Scrubs—Murphy May Play Next Week.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 11.—Yale's rush line received a double twist today when Carter Galt and Tom Dickers were moved from left guard and tackle, respectively, to the right wing. John Acosta and Leon Walker shifting over to the left. The coaches volunteered no explanation of the move, but it is thought that the change may be designed to bring the rugged Hawaiian giant, Galt, opposite McGraw, the backbone of the Tiger rush line, next Saturday. This may result in a duel which, for scientific, inside football, has seldom been matched since the occasion when Ned Glass took his position in the Yale rush line at guard opposite John De Witt of Tigertown.

The two sections of the Yale rush line have shifted back and forth during the season, and it is thought that the change which was made today will be unscrambled next week when Yale organizes its rush line to face the Harvard phalanx. Galt weighs 220 pounds, and had played every game and every daily practice for Yale this year. Parker Allen came out of retirement today and answered present to the roll call at right end. The coaches believe that he has fully recovered from the injury to his shoulder, and they plan to start him against Princeton. He divided the scrimmaging today with Barclay Robinson, the third string player, whose game was of almost All American quality against Brown last Saturday.

Lay and Aldrich Half Backs.

Behind the line Joe Neville had a vacation, although every other first string player was in the scrimmaging. Bob Lay was installed in Neville's shoes at left half back, while Malcolm Aldrich was placed in the unsettled right half back berth. Otherwise Yale lined up as against Brown and as the coaches now intend to start the team against Princeton.

Howard Campbell, who has about the same chance of playing the position that Lay and Aldrich have, was at left half back on the second team. Fred Webb, two of whose ribs were found to be broken after the Brown game, is out of question for the Princeton game, but the coaches think that he will be able to play against Harvard the following Saturday. With the exception of this position it is unlikely that further changes will be made in the Yale team, barring accidents.

Following a three days' rest after the Brown game, Yale resumed scrimmaging this afternoon and it was announced that another scrimmage program was on for tomorrow, probably closing actual football preparation for the Princeton bout.

Today the coaches sent the first and then the second eleven against the scrubs for about fifteen minutes apiece. Two touchdowns were made by the first and one by the second team.

Kempton Makes a Great Run.

The coaches said tonight that they regarded the ground gaining exhibition of both elevens as satisfactory, for both took the ball on three separate occasions from their twenty-yard line fully seventy yards for the touchdowns. Two of the scores were made in series of consecutive gains on short rushline plunges, while Quarter Back Herbert Kempton skylarked the entire seventy yards in a whirlwind rush when he caught the kick-off of Edward Gaillard, the scrub quarter back, and tore through the entire reserve eleven to the goal line, dodging several scrub tacklers and throwing off many more. His field generalship this afternoon was deceptive in the extreme. Unexpected plays in rapid succession being hurled at the scrub defense, which, without knowledge of the Varsity signals, was unable to diagnose them at any time. Bob Lay bored a five-yard path through guard for a tally after he, Braden, and Aldrich had alternated in short smashes following the kick-off.

The second eleven, which, as composed and coached at present, appear about as formidable as the average Yale 'Varsity, also took the ball practically the length of the field without losing it. Donald Welles and Howard Campbell were in great ground-gaining form. Welles went over the goal line in the final plunge for the touchdown and Paul Crane kicked goal.

Drilled in Dummy Football.

For more than an hour the first and second eleven were drilled in dummy football, tripping through skeleton plays without tackling, and allowing the coaches to emphasize the individual positions in the various formations. No injuries were received and the coaches are beginning to feel that they are likely to present a lineup against Princeton which will contain every first-string player of outstanding merit.

The absence of Thorne Murphy will deprive the eleven of its most valuable drop-kicking specialist on Saturday, but Braden, Crane, Neville, and French are all improving under the deft instruction of Dr. Billy Bull. Murphy, it is now announced, will probably get into the Harvard game next week.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 11.—The Colgate football squad participated in practice this afternoon on a muddy and slippery field which made clean handling of the ball out of the question. The first team was pitted against the second team for a half hour scrimmage.

Two new faces appeared in the lineup of the regulars, Browne at centre and Hanson at end. Hanson's work was scrutinized closely, as he is just beginning to develop. Due to his late start with the injuries he sustained earlier in the year, his progress has been materially retarded. His work with the forward pass is both clever and skillful.

Browne at centre is aggressive, accurate with the forward pass, and will undoubtedly be given a chance.

The chief of the practice saw Laird, Anderson, and Captain West devoting much time to kicking, and in this department of the game West is showing steady improvement. The squad is without the services of Substitute Quarter Myers, who was ruined to the season last Saturday with a serious case of appendicitis. His absence weakens the already weak substitute list.

N. Y. U. HAS HARD SESSION.

Eleven Is Working Under High Pressure for Stevens Game.

New York University's football team resumed hard work again yesterday afternoon on Ohio Field, after a day of easy drill on Monday. The Violet eleven put in one of the hardest sessions of the season in anticipation of its meeting with the Stevens Tech team Saturday on the University Heights field. This contest is looked upon by the New Yorkers as the hardest game of the schedule, since the victory of the engineers over Columbia.

The practice yesterday was utilized by Coach Gargan in correcting the faults exposed in the Union game. Although the Violet scored a decisive victory over the up-State aggregation, Gargan saw many places which needed improvement and set about to correct them. The first department which received attention was getting down under punts. A long session with the tackling dummy followed and, after that, the scrubs lined up against the first string team for a light scrimmage.

In the game with Union, the New York team received a setback when Jack Adams was injured. He will be unable to play in the Stevens contest, and this will handicap the Violet team to some extent, but expects to be back for the Columbia game on Nov. 22. Parkhurst, who substituted so well for him at Union, will probably fill the place against the Hoboken team.

STEVENS IS GETTING READY.

Deghuee May Replace Bajusz in N. Y. U. Game Saturday.

Coach Durborow had his Stevens team out for practice in the drizzling rain yesterday giving it the opportunity of a workout with a slippery ball and heavy field. In the Stevens-Rensselaer tilt, the Jersey team could not hold the pigskin and it was guilty of several costly fumbles. Yesterday's drill was intermingled continually with fumbling but not so marked as on some of the rainy day workouts.

Signal drill held sway for the first part of the afternoon behind closed gates when the plays to be used against N. Y. U. were introduced. Very little headway was gained owing to the mist and early darkness. The electric lights were turned on later.

Owing to Deghuee's wonderful showing in the Columbia game he was back at his old position of halfback, replacing Bajusz. In the scrimmage against the scrubs, which wound up the day's work, Deghuee and Bloss were the only ones who could move around on the soggy field.

The game with N. Y. U., considering their three consecutive victories over Rensselaer, Trinity, and Union, is looked upon as a harder one than the Columbia tussle and the coach intends to put in some extra hard licks before Saturday rolls around. Considering both teams' showing against Rennselaer, the Engineers should have an edge on the New York team.

COLUMBIA RESUMES WORK.

New Backfield Is Tried Out—Captain Kennedy Makes Speech.

The Columbia football team, shattered by injuries and dissension, slowly began to gather itself together yesterday. Headed by the new captain, Jack Kennedy, the remnants of the 'Varsity resumed practice on South Field, while the campus still buzzed with discussion of Monday's sensational episode, in which Canapary was deposed as captain and a successor elected.

Coach Fred Dawson continued to keep silent on the entire affair, and would give no detailed reasons for Canapary's removal, beyond the comment that "a team can have only one boss." He answered newspaper criticism of Columbia's play in Saturday's game by pointing out the number of 'Varsity players who either were crippled when they began the contest or were injured shortly afterward. These, coupled with Canapary's disobedience of orders, he said, were the main causes of the disaster.

Kennedy began his régime as captain yesterday by making a vigorous speech at an Armistice Day meeting of the undergraduates in the gymnasium. He admitted that the eleven had "fallen as low as it could fall," and was facing the most critical period in many seasons. He predicted, however, that the team which had been branded a failure would show Wesleyan on Saturday what an eleven could do when it determined to fight. He refused to concede Wesleyan anything more than an even chance of victory.

Eccles, Farrell, Johnstone, and Applebaum composed the new backfield at yesterday's workout. Charlie Shaw failed to report, and may be hampered for several days by an injured shoulder. Tower and Forythe, line men, are also on the disabled list. Stockhammer, Healey, Schlutter, Herman, and Davis were the new men who were assigned places in the line, with Kennedy and Weinstein at the wing positions. The Poly rep eleven from Brooklyn scrimmaged with the 'Varsity in a long battle.

SHIFTS SYRACUSE LINEUP.

Coach O'Neill Preparing for Colgate's Sledgehammer Attacks.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Playing against the freshman team, the Syracuse 'Varsity eleven had one of the hardest scrimmages of the year this afternoon in preparation for the annual Colgate battle, the big game of the season for Central New York, which is to be staged in the Archbold Stadium next Saturday afternoon. Nearly 30,000 gridiron followers are expected to view the sport. Every player who is likely to start against Colgate was in the lineup at the beginning of the scrimmage drill, and Buck O'Neill, advisory coach, and his assistants, Meehan, Horr and Kellett, were on the jump every second picking out any flaws that showed up during the workout. It was more of a regular game than any practice held in the bowl this Fall. Dean Watkeys, a football official, refereed the drill and called offside and holding plays on the 'Varsity. During the workout the 'Varsity scored several times on the yearlings.

DARTMOUTH LOSES STARS.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 11.—Dartmouth's preparation for the Brown game received another severe jolt this afternoon with the definite announcement that "Swede" Youngstrom, the giant right guard, and "Pat" Holbrook, veteran left half back, would be unable to play Saturday. Hope had been held all the week that those two 'Varsity stars, who were badly smashed up in last Saturday's fray, would be in shape for Dartmouth's last game. That Dartmouth paid a high price for its victory over Penn is putting it mildly. Youngstrom's loss is felt not only in the line, but, after Robertson had been laid out Saturday, the big right guard did the punting, averaging a good 40 yards in his kicks. Now Coach Spears faces the problem of finding a dependable kicker. Holbrook, the other veteran to go to the side lines today, is also a punter of no mean ability.

Today's practice was held on the campus because of the wretched condition of Alumni Field, which will not be fit for use again this season. The regulars who survived the Penn contest reported today and managed to hobble through signal drill. Prospective punters received a large share of attention from the coaches.

TIGERS' SCRIMMAGE PREVENTED BY RAIN

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 11.—Only three days of scrimmage were on the program this week in preparation for the game at New Haven on Saturday and Jupiter Pluvius's unwelcome intervention today reduced that number by one. It was almost beyond the realm of possibility that last week's superb football weather could continue for the rest of the season and the break came with today's cold, penetrating drizzle.

Bill Roper kept his men on University Field this afternoon and the turf there was soon plowed into so muddy and slippery a condition that the head coach refused to risk his first string players in a long battle with Team B.

Stan Keck, the huge tackle who has been on the sidelines during the last two weeks, has about recovered from the injury which incapacitated him and was roaming about the gridiron this afternoon in togs. The coaching staff did not let him get into any heavy action, however, but the belief is prevalent here that he will be in shape to be at his regular post at left tackle against the Elis.

The ragged tackling shown by most of the men in the Harvard contest resulted in a long drill in that department this afternoon. The entire 'Varsity was put on the defensive and went through a long workout in stopping the second string backfield men as they came slipping and sliding up the field with the ball. The uncertain footing and the heavy going made it impossible to get a very good line on the accuracy of the first string tacklers and the men will get a lot of this kind of work tomorrow and Thursday.

Post-mortems do not win games, but, judging from the ability shown by Maury Trimble and Jack Strubing in breaking up the Crimson's aerial attack last Saturday and from the work of these players in smearing a forward pass attack launched today by the second team backfield, there is much speculation among the Princeton students as to whether or not the pass that enabled Casey to score Harvard's touchdown would have gone through if Referee Bill Langford had not called Trimble out of the game by mistake. The scrub backs tossed their passes from behind the protecting wall of the 'Varsity line, and the entire first-string backfield was on the defensive.

Mike Callahan, whose wretched passing last Saturday finally resulted in his removal, was back in his old place in the 'Varsity line this afternoon. In spite of the water-soaked spheroid, he directed his heaves with such accuracy that it is considered practically certain that he, and not Whitey Thomas, will open against Yale.

PENN PRACTICES IN RAIN.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—Despite the rain that continued from an early hour today, soaking the Franklin Field gridiron almost to a condition impossible for walking, Coach Folwell of the Penn football team ordered the men to don uniforms late this afternoon. The 'Varsity, with one or two changes due to injuries, waded through a signal drill lasting an hour or more. Henry Miller, who has been holding down an end position on the 'Varsity all season, was shifted to the second team today. On the 'Varsity wings during the "sliding" were Ray Miller and Bud Hopper. Lou Little and Johnny Titzel ran through the tackle positions, with Thomas and Alex. Wray guarding. Captain Bell directed the play of Derr, Straus, and Brunner in the back field.

Herb Dieter reported for the first time since Saturday, and from what the trainers reported on his ankle, it is hardly likely that he will play against Pittsburgh on Saturday in the biggest game of the season. Hobey Light, another man who was injured in New York last Saturday, has not been seen this week. Reports indicate that he will not be in condition to face the Panthers on Saturday.

Those players who can get away from classes from now until game time Saturday will journey to Pine Valley, N. J., where secret practice will be held in preparation for the Panther struggle. Folwell must do some reconstruction work this week in hope of beating Warner's team. In case Light is unable to play, Straus will take his place.

Doubtless the Texan will get into the game against Pittsburgh, as he has already played two years against them and has always been successful in breaking through Warner's machine.

CORNELL HAS HARD WORK.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Cornell's drive for the Penn State game was in full swing this afternoon. Practically every 'Varsity man was on the field and most of them got into the offensive scrimmage practice. The workout was held on Alumni Field, the 'Varsity gridiron being rather soft after a heavy rain and the management being desirous of keeping it from being cut up in order to provide a good field for Saturday's game, which is the last home contest of the schedule.

The outdoor practice in the open consisted of a long drill in offensive play close to the goal line. Mindful of one experience in the Carnegie Tech game last Saturday, when the 'Varsity was held on the two-foot line for downs, the coaches had the ball put in play on the scrubs' five-yard line and for an hour the 'Varsity backs were sent crashing into the scrub line or attempting to work trick plays for touchdowns. On the whole, the work of the first team was encouraging and marked another day's development toward an offensive with a big punch.

Captain Shiverick did not get into the scrimmage. He is close to his best form and the coaches feel that a rest will do him no harm. Mackenzie and Davies, who played last Saturday, were in the lineup, as was Lechler, an inexperienced but rugged halfback in whom Coach Rush seems to have much faith. His recent work certainly marks him as a comer. Shuler played in the 'Varsity backfield for the first time in weeks, and there was no evidence that he was troubled any longer by the injury that has kept him out of the lineup for a long time.

Cuneen and Colvin were at ends, Taylor, Sutton and Dodge at tackles, Pendelton and Miller, guards, and Horrell, centre. Knauss, the big tackle whose work in the Tech game was sensational, is recovering from minor injuries.

MOUNTAINEERS AT WORK.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 11.—All of West Virginia's cripples except Ice were on the field today, but Hager was not in uniform, and Harrick, Archer, and King were not allowed to do anything more than jog around the field. With these men all out and Rodgers, Neale, Hite, and Lents making up the 'Varsity back field, the short but strenuous scrimmage was staged in which the forward passing game of the 'Varsity featured. Rodgers and Neale threw passes with unusual accuracy, and Lents, Hite, Neale, Mills, and Martin all participated in gathering them in, in spite of the desperate efforts of the scrubs.

Hager, Ice, and King will likely not be in shape to play against Rutgers Saturday, and Harrick and Archer, the tackles, do not promise to be able to last throughout the game.

HAUGHTON WATCHES CRIMSON AT WORK

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 11.—Percy Haughton, coach of so many winning Harvard football teams in the past, paid his first visit to the Crimson squad behind the secret practice fence this afternoon. No "hurry call" has been issued to Haughton, but he was down at Princeton the other day, and was not very much impressed with the work of the Crimson backs against the Jersey forward passing game.

Haughton watched the long workout between the substitutes and the scrubs today and did what he could to help Fisher's backs show more alertness and sense for the ball on the variety of short passes that have netted so much ground for the Harvard opponents in the last two games. He will be out again later but says that business will not allow him to take an every day place on the staff.

The scrimmage, which wasn't all for Haughton's benefit, was the real thing. There was no special drive, but the substitutes, including Gatewick, the only man of the lot who played against Princeton, banged away at the scrubs, and the scrubs, using the Yale formations, did what they could to blast the 'Varsity's defenses.

The second team did not succeed in scoring, but had its own goal line crossed when, after intercepting a forward pass on the scrubs' 25-yard line, the substitutes drove over the goal line. It took ten plays to turn the trick, however. Another 'Varsity touchdown was lost by fumbling, this being a frequent happening on both teams.

Fisher sent all the players he had on tap into the play which lasted more than an hour. He first used Gratwick, Church, and Lancaster as his backfield, but later all the other subs were tried. Ryan and Frothingham were at end, the tackles were Hubbard and Faxon, and Caswell played centre, flanked by Brown and Thorndike. At the end of the day's work, Faxon blocked a scrub team kick.

Tomorrow the regulars will settle down to business. The line is not likely to be shifted much, but the backfield problem is one that it is going to take some ingenuity on the part of the coaches to solve. Harvard has shown plenty of open field stars, but except for the two Horweens the coaches seem to have been dissatisfied with all the heavier types suitable for line breaking.

The backfield situation is serious at Cambridge now with R. Horween hurt and A. Horween still needed for the middle of the rushline. The material has been here all along, but there has been a miscue somewhere.

RUTGERS MAKES PROGRESS.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 11.—Buck Rodgers, the main reliance of West Virginia's football team, will be covered throughout the game with Rutgers here this week by Budge Garrett, one of the surest tacklers and best defensive players in the East, who made the All-American team in 1917. Garrett is playing at end and he has been instructed to keep his eyes on Rodgers all the time.

Alexander, Rutger's star tackle, may be out of the game on Saturday, as it is believed that one of his ribs was broken in the Boston game last week. An X-ray of the injured rib was taken this afternoon to determine whether it would be safe to use him Saturday.

CHANGES IN ARMY LINEUP.

Coaches Groom Substitutes for Bryan and Blaik.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 11.—The Army football squad had a workout on a muddy field today. Four teams were sent through a fighting scrimmage. Time after time the big team was sent with the ball from one end of the field to the other against a strong scrub team. It seems that the coaches are determined to make or break the team. It is felt that the only way to correct the many glaring faults that popped up in the game Saturday is by long and hard scrimmages.

The most strenuous work of the season was going on at West Point today. No excuse for nonperformance on the part of the players was accepted. Coaches were camping on their heels and driving them for all they were worth.

During the practice Vogel and Shabacker on the 'Varsity succumbed with slight injuries, while Spettle, Haskell, and Singer on the scrubs joined the hospital squad. It was reported today that Bryan and Blaik, who have been sick in the hospital since the latter part of last week, may not be able to rejoin the squad again this season. Breidster and Pitzer are being groomed specially to take Bryan's place at guard, while George may be shifted from quarter back on the second eleven to end, to fill Blaik's berth.

DEPORT BERGER, LEGION DEMANDS

FAVOR UNIVERSAL TRAINING

Message Read from Gen. Pershing—Indianapolis Chosen as Headquarters—Lindsley Not to Run.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 11.—The first convention of the American Legion today started pronouncement of its policies by adopting resolutions declaring the organization to be "non-political," demanding the deportation of Victor Berger of Milwaukee as "A disloyal citizen," and asking investigation of the record of Representative Voight of Wisconsin, who supported Berger in the recent vote in the House of Representatives.

The resolution asking cancellation of Berger's citizenship and his deportation, drawn by Theodore Roosevelt Post, No. 1, of the District of Columbia, was adopted on motion of the Wisconsin delegation. A similar resolution requests Congress "if it finds Representative Voight to be disloyal, to take steps for his expulsion from the House of Representatives."

Slates of public office or candidates are barred from office in the Legion by an amendment to the constitution adopted late today declaring that the organization will take no part in politics.

The resolution reads as follows:

"While requiring that each of its members perform his full duty as a citizen according to his own conscience and understanding, the organization shall be absolutely non-political, and shall not be used for the dissemination of partisan principles or for the promotion of the candidacy of any person seeking public office or preferment, and no candidate for or incumbent of a salaried elective public office shall hold any office in the American Legion or in any branch or part thereof."

A certificate from the French Government for the family of each American soldier killed in France was presented to the convention with the statement that the French Government requested the legion, as far as possible, to deliver these certificates to families of slain veterans with appropriate ceremonies on next Washington's Birthday. The convention voted to undertake distribution of these testimonials.

The flag, said to be the first American flag carried over the top in France, by Martin Walberg of New Jersey, a member of a Canadian contingent, was presented to the legion by Delegate A. P. Conley of New Jersey.

Debate on an amendment to the constitution affecting membership privileges threw the convention into confusion. Proponents of an amendment seeking to admit those who served with the American or allied armies, and hereafter become American citizens were defeated.

The present legion button was approved as the permanent emblem.

Indorsement of universal military training with a small standing army and no compulsory military service in time of peace was voted enthusiastically. It is recommended that the national citizen army be under local control and administration, subject to general national regulations.

Indianapolis was chosen to be the national headquarters of the organization, defeating Washington, D. C., on the second ballot. Cleveland was chosen for the holding of the next convention.

The delegates stood silent for a moment at 11 A. M., the first anniversary of the hour when firing ceased in the war. Chairman Lindsley asked that the delegates bow their heads in prayer for their comrades who gave their lives during the war.

The Committee on Organization recommended Thomas Houston Niles of Colorado as Chaplain, Alexander H. Johnson of Rhode Island as Sergeant at Arms, and the appointment of an Executive Committee including a representative from each State.

Greetings from General Pershing were read by Chairman Lindsley, who, at that time, announced that he was not a candidate for head of the legion.

General Pershing's message read as follows:

"On this first anniversary of Armistice Day my best wishes go out to the delegates of the first convention of the American Legion. May the same patriotism and devotion with which you were inspired as soldiers in the great war guide and direct your deliberations in this convention."

Former Ambassador James W. Gerard was the chief speaker at an Armistice Day luncheon yesterday at the Bryn Mawr Club, 137 East Fortieth Street. He spoke briefly of the great part played by America in the war, and the significance Armistice Day would always have for Americans everywhere. He praised the women for the part they played in the struggle, and urged them to enter just as seriously into the struggle now before the country—that of combating Bolshevism.

Miss Dagmar Perkins, graduate of Bryn Mawr and one of the directors of the $1,000,000 campaign, to increase the salaries of the professors, told of the plans for raising money for the fund, and the efforts of the clubs in other cities. One of the chief affairs to take place in New York will be the ball at the Hotel Plaza on Dec. 5. The patrons will include Mr. and Mrs. James W. Gerard, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Believes He Has Isolated Micro-Organism of Yellow Fever.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 11.—Hideyo Noguchi of the Rockefeller Institute today described to the National Academy of Sciences, in session here, his research work at Guayaquil in relation to yellow fever. He expressed the belief that he had isolated the micro-organism which produces the fever.

R. A. Millikan, in reading a paper on "The Extension of the Ultra-Violet Spectrum," said he had extended the spectrum to a greater distance beyond the violet ray than any previous experimenter. He showed that Einstein's theory of relativity made after the solar eclipse of May 27 is not conclusive. Einstein held the theory that rays from stars to the earth are deflected by the sun. Mr. Millikan showed that such rays may be deflected by refraction of gases around the sun.

Francis G. Benedict in a paper on basal metabolism said that experiments on students taking examinations at Wesleyan University showed that thought produces no heat in the body such as is caused by digestive or muscular exertion.

FIND MUNCIE'S MAYOR GUILTY OF SWINDLING

Indiana Prosecuting Attorney and Five Others Also Convicted of Mail Fraud.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 11.—Seven alleged swindlers, including Mayor Rollin H. Bunch of Muncie, Ind., and Prosecuting Attorney Horace G. Murphy of Delaware County, were found guilty in the Federal Court here late today of conspiring to use the mails to defraud.

The seven men were part of a group of twenty-four indicted in connection with the Muncie case, which involved more than twenty alleged swindling cases and a total of $150,000. All the other defendants had pleaded guilty, some having changed their pleas to guilty during the trial.

TO FILL BERGER'S SEAT.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 11.—Governor Philipp has called a special election for Dec. 18 in the Fifth Congress District to name a successor to Victor Berger.

Berger has decided again to be a candidate, say Washington dispatches. Legal steps will be taken here to keep his name off the ballot on the ground that the decision of Congress makes him ineligible to hold office.

The Republicans and Democrats probably will unite on a fusion candidate. Joseph P. Carney, who lost to Berger in the election, says he will be a candidate, and William Stafford, former Congressman, is willing to make the run. The Good Government League, an organization prominent in city politics, probably will decide on the man to fight the Socialists.

AUTOIST FOUND GUILTY.

Lewis Fass, Who Ran Over Teacher, Convicted of Manslaughter.

Almost one year ago, Lewis F. Fass, 41 years old, of 321 East 167th Street, ran over and killed Florence Elizabeth Fraser, 21 years old, of Forest Avenue and 167th Street, the Bronx. Yesterday he was found guilty of manslaughter in the second degree by a jury, following a trial lasting four days in the Bronx County Court. The jury recommended mercy.

The school teacher was struck and fatally injured by a touring car driven by the defendant south on Bronx Avenue, the Bronx, on Nov. 25, 1918. It was testified at the trial that the car was speeding at the rate of between thirty-five and forty miles an hour, but Fass denied this.

Four Are Hurt Also in Collision at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—Four men were killed and four others injured today, when a Delaware River tugboat rammed a crowded Philadelphia and Reading Railway ferryboat, plying between Camden, N. J., and this city. The dead and injured, residents of New Jersey towns, were on their way to work. Despite the great hole torn in the side of the ferryboat there was no panic, the several hundred passengers being taken off the boat by other vessels which responded to the distress call of the ferry's whistle.

Joseph P. Cannon, mate of the tugboat, was arrested on a charge of involuntary manslaughter and released on bail pending action by the Philadelphia coroner. Cannon said the collision occurred in a fog, and he was reported as saying it was due to a mistake in signals.

OHIO SUFFRAGISTS LOSE.

Court Refuses Injunction Against Referendum on Amendment.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 11.—The Ohio Supreme Court today upheld the Franklin County courts in refusing to enjoin Secretary of State Smith from submitting the Federal woman suffrage amendment to a referendum next year. The suffrage cases probably will be taken to the Federal Supreme Court, as was the decision in the prohibition referendum.

The woman suffrage amendment was not submitted to the voters at the recent election because the referendum period had not expired between the Legislature's action in ratifying the amendment and the time for holding the election. It will be voted on next November unless the United States Supreme Court holds Federal amendments are not subject to a referendum.

Brazil Celebrates the Day.

RIO JANEIRO, Nov. 11.—The anniversary of the signing of the armistice was not celebrated extensively. A new street was named the "Avenida November Eleventh" in honor of the occasion. The British Patriotic Society requested that British subjects observe King George's request for two-minute cessation of work at 11 o'clock.

Packard Trucks For All-Winter Transportation

No More Guess and Gamble in Trucking Costs—
Packard Figures Based Upon Severest Service

WHAT does it mean when thirty cities report demands for more housing construction and increased industrial building? What does it mean when members of the National Association of Builder's Exchanges promise to "attempt to carry on building all winter regardless of weather conditions"?

It means that if demands and plans are carried out, motor trucks must do their bit.

And motor truck users must know how big a bit they can do when cold is extreme and going is hard.

Winter building has always been more or less a gamble with the contractor. A man cannot work a system when the weather deals the cards.

In winters gone by, transportation has fallen down first. Materials were delivered behind schedule or not at all—expensive workmen were forced to slow down—costs were increased accordingly.

Replacement of horses by motor trucks helped to an extent. But reliable figures on winter motor truck performance have been hard to obtain. Consistent figures have been even harder.

Now the gamble is being taken out of winter hauling by Packard transportation figures.

Many of these trucks did not lose a trip or a minute's time during the winter.

Average loads were hauled, even where they consisted of cement or gravel or other materials whose weight and bulk increased where wet or frozen.

Trailers and special dumping and loading equipment were kept in use according to schedule.

For it is the extra margin of strength and stamina that enables the Packard to meet the emergency when it comes.

And it is that same margin—that extra factor of safety—which has kept Packard trucks in continuous service, some of them over ten years. We have yet to hear of a Packard truck going out of active service.

Building contractors and others will find valuable help in solving truck transportation problems by calling upon the Freight Transportation Department of the Packard organization in this city. Its services are without charge.

URGE AID AT ONCE TO SAVE GERMANY

FEAR SOCIAL REVOLUTION

INCLUDE OTHER NATIONS

Bankers, lawyers and business men of national standing, speaking last night at a dinner of the Foreign Relations Council at the Hotel Astor, were unanimous in declaration that trade with Germany and the rest of Central Europe should be resumed at once, both as a measure of practical benefit to this country and to the world, and as a moral duty, lest a "red menace of Bolshevism" engulf those countries and sweep beyond their borders.

Such men as Otto H. Kahn, Frederic R. Coudert, and Frank A. Vanderlip went further and asserted that the United States Government, either by moral support or practical assistance, should see that the defeated nations get credits with which to re-establish their industries. Mr. Vanderlip went to the length of saying that even a Germany industrially dominant would be preferable to a Germany Bolshevist-ridden.

Manifesting their approval of the course urged by the speakers, the council without dissenting vots passed these resolutions:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting, that from the points of view of both self-interest and humanity, this country should, without delay, furnish needed foodstuffs and raw materials to the countries of Europe, including Germany and the other Central Powers; and, further,

Resolved, That the moral and, if found necessary, the actual support of our Government should be put forth in order to make available such credits and funds to European nations, including the Central Powers, as are required to start the processes of normalizing and stabilizing the trade conditions of the world and to guard against the grave menace inherent in a further continuance of the present economic state of the nations.

Fear Social Revolution.

Darwin P. Kingsley, who presided, reviewed conditions in Germany as indicated by late reports he had received. He said there was serious ground for fearing social revolution, and pictured the people as in such woeful state they were not likely soon to be "up to their old tricks." He read a letter from the head of his company in Berlin, dated late in October, asking that twenty-six boxes of the ordinary necessities of life, such as lard, butter, and soap, be shipped from this country to the company's employes in Germany.

Mr. Kingsley said, and several later speakers agreed with him, that Germany never can pay her war indemnities unless she is industrially rehabilitated and that such failure to pay well may lead to an economic crisis in France.

That Europe cannot wait until our people are educated in buying foreign securities, and that the most rapid and practical method of teaching them that lesson is to offer them inducements to invest was declared by Mr. Kahn. He continued:

"The incredible shortsightedness of our system of taxation has virtually killed America as an investment market. It has been our ambition to continue to be such a money centre as we became during the war, but a country cannot be a money centre unless it has a big, broad, eager investment market. Now, our taxation laws have been so framed that any one with an income of $50,000 a year, for example, who invests in 4½ per cent. municipal bonds actually gets a return of 9 per cent. as compared to what he would receive if he invested in non-tax-exempt bonds, and this divergence increases as one's income increases.

"The result is that the man with a large income has withdrawn from the investment market, which now appeals mainly to the man of small income. But the man of small income is the very man not inclined to make investments, and not accustomed to make them. The situation has become such that the well-to-do man has difficulty in getting it come from other sources than speculation and investment in tax-exempt bonds.

Urged as a Moral Duty.

The first thing to do to correct this situation and restore the investment market is to bring pressure to bear upon our legislators for a revision of the taxation laws. The second thing is to bring pressure to bear upon our Government, so that it shall be induced to take the lead, actually or morally, to see that Europe gets financial support from America to which she is entitled, and which it is our moral and practical duty to supply."

Mr. Kahn spoke of his personal relation to the subject, pointing out that, though he was born in Germany, his course, both before we entered the war and during this country's participation, proved he was acting from unquestionable Americanism alone, and went on:

"Here is a people, still sixty millions strong, springing from one of the great racial stocks of the earth, intelligent and efficient, naturally given to good order and hard work, having in past times contributed much to the common assets, spiritual and material, of the world. To the east of them the red flood of Bolshevism is threatening to engulf the nations.

"What the German rulers and people have done within the recent past will stand forever among the most horrible crimes of history—perhaps as the most horrible crime. It can never be forgotten nor forgiven. But neither should this be forgotten: Here is a people, still sixty millions strong, springing from one of the great racial stocks of the earth, intelligent and efficient, naturally given to good order and to hard work, having in past times contributed much to the common assets, spiritual and material, of the world. To the east of them the red flood of Bolshevism is threatening to engulf the nations.

England's Attitude Toward Germany.

"England, wise with the wisdom of centuries of activity in world affairs, has taken the lead in shaping relations with Germany, impelled by both self-interest and humanity. Sir Auckland Geddes, a member of the British Cabinet, in an address delivered last month said: 'The people of Germany are hopeless, dispirited, unsettled. * * * Many men in this country are trembling before a shadow of what Germany used to be, and they will not believe what Germany is now. She is down, and I wish in our interest that her trade showed some more signs of elasticity, spring, and development than it does, because Germany is one of our great markets, and she cannot buy from us unless she is producing wealth within her own borders.'

"A French Minister of State, in a recent speech, is reported as having wisely advised his compatriots to buy from Germany rather than from other countries, so as to take advantage of the depreciated state of the German exchange and because of the recognition that Germany manifestly cannot pay the indemnities assessed and to be assessed against her unless and until she is in a position, to a reasonable degree at least, to re-establish her trade and commerce.

"America should not lag behind. The argument that we can do nothing until the Peace Treaty is ratified by the Senate is not conclusive. We can and should act now in making available for Germany, as well as for other countries, foodstuffs which are urgently, indeed vitally, needed, and essential raw materials. Our self-interest requires it. Our duty to the world at large requires it. The charitableness and humanity which are part of Americanism require it. Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord.'"

Would Have Government Help.

J. G. White talked of the practical importance of inducing the Treasury Department to rule that duty on goods purchased in Germany shall be assessed on the "ad valorem" rather than on the par value of the mark. He gave examples of the destructive effect upon importations of the present practice, which often makes the duty many times the price paid for the goods. Others voiced their approval of his suggestion.

That the question of resuming trade relations was not debatable was the assertion of Paul D. Cravath, who called it a "political and practical necessity for the world," a view with which Theodore H. Price, the next speaker, agreed.

Mr. Coudert said he thought organizations formed during the war of individuals who pledged themselves never to buy or use German-made goods were unwise, and predicted that Germany had learned a lasting lesson that such aggression as she attempted does not pay.

"There is no possibility of Germany paying her war indemnities, and France especially will suffer by her default, unless her trade is re-established," said Mr. Vanderlip. "I doubt if this can be done now without Government help, but it is absolutely as essential as well as humane that food, raw materials, and the means of again starting up their transportation facilities be supplied to the Central Empires.

"We may even have to revise our views on the tariff, for we are now become a creditor nation, and those countries which owe us huge debts certainly cannot pay in gold; they can pay the interest even, only in goods. And with our raw materials, our fuel, our industrial equipment, and our facilities for mass production, I think we do not need longer to fear the labor of any country in the world."

It was in response to a question from Mr. Coudert as to whether Germany, with America aiding, might not again become industrially dominant, to the hurt of some of our best friends among the nations, that Mr. Vanderlip replied:

"Even granting that in this sense Germany may yet seem to have won the war, and may yet become the dominant nation, still I say it is better to have that than to have Germany overrun with the red menace of Bolshevism and to have that pestilence spill beyond her borders."

HOLD NEW YORKERS UNDER LEVER LAW

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The first arrests and indictments for food profiteering under the recent amendments to the Lever act were announced by Attorney General Palmer today. These arrests followed instructions from the Attorney General to United States District Attorneys throughout the country to speed up the investigation of food profiteers in order that every possible means may be employed to bring down the high cost of living. The amended Lever act was signed by President Wilson on Oct. 22.

One of the first to come within the provisions of the new law was John Burke, a grocer of Baltimore. He was charged with deceptive practices and with making unreasonable rates and charges. According to the testimony he sold sugar and rice in packages, and the packages were found to be of short weight. He also charged prices greater than those indicated by the Fair Price Committee. A warrant was issued for Burke, but he waived hearing and was held for the Grand Jury.

Israel and Harry Greenberger of Scranton, Penn., were also arrested on a charge of conspiracy to restrict distribution and exacting excessive prices. They were held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

The District Attorney of Atlanta, Ga., also reported the arrest of a dealer named Frank, who was held for the Grand Jury on a charge of profiteering. Indictments already have been found under the new act against Jacob Lerner and George and Julius Roth of New York City. They were indicted under Section 4 on the charge of conspiracy and of profiteering in sugar.

An indictment also has been found against Louis Leavitt of Brooklyn on a charge of hoarding 1,300,000 pounds of bacon.

The Attorney General has instructed United States District Attorneys to prosecute these cases with the greatest vigor.

BERLIN, Nov. 10, (Associated Press.)—Two of the offenders who defaced monuments here on Sunday night were arrested, but the others resisted the police and escaped. The defacement is attributed to Spartacides.

House of Lords Vote Refuses to Admit Women as Members

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The House of Lords today rejected the clause in the bill for the removal of sex disqualifications which would permit women to sit in the House of Lords.

The clause, in the form of an amendment, was added to the bill by the House of Commons on Oct. 27.

EXPERTS SEE NEED FOR 8-CENT FARES

Nixon Goes to Mount Clemens for a Rest and to Study Transit Property Values.

The final report of Stone & Webster, the experts employed by direction of Federal Judge Mayer to investigate the financial condition of the various railroad properties in the hands of receivers, has been completed so far as it relates to the trolley lines of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system. According to the figures compiled by the experts, nothing less than an 8-cent fare will suffice to restore the lines financially, and perhaps the fare would even have to be increased to 10 cents.

It is admitted that any rate of fare charged on the surface lines would have to be duplicated on the rapid transit lines. Otherwise, the rapid transit lines would be overburdened by persons seeking to ride for a lower fare. Tables of figures in the report disclose the various additional earning power of a 6, 7, and 8 cent fare.

An 8-cent fare, beginning Jan. 1, 1920, the report states, would leave the company with a trolley line deficit on June 30, 1922, at the rate of $1,269,000 a year. The deficit at a 7-cent rate would be $1,974,000. But if the fare remains at 5 cents the loss for the year ending June 30, 1922, is estimated at $5,326,000.

At a 6-cent rates the estimated loss for the same period is fixed at $3,296,000.

Nixon Studies Lines' Values.

"Neither 6, 7, nor 8 cent fare," the report estimates, "will be sufficient in view of the recent 25 per cent. wage increase, to pay expenses, taxes, and the fixed charges, including rentals on leased property, even with the transfer charges in effect and such additional economics as appear feasible."

Concerning the transfer situation the report says that the expected additional revenue coming from the elimination of the 15,000,000 transfers between surface and rapid transit lines will amount to about $5,000, and that if all transfers between surface lines were eliminated, including those for which a charge of 2 cents is made, the estimated increase in revenue would be from $875,000 to $1,050,000. The introduction to the report explains that while the figures differ slightly from those in the preliminary report submitted to Judge Mayer in September, the changes do not alter but rather emphasize the conclusions of the earlier report."

Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon has gone to Mount Clemens, Mich., for a rest and has taken with him a mass of information out of which he hopes to obtain some clue to the value of the railroad properties in the city. At the last meeting between Mr. Nixon and officials of the companies the need of knowing the value of each railroad property before any agreement could be reached as to the best method of overcoming the financial difficulties of the companies, became apparent, and Mr. Nixon was chosen to make the appraisals.

To Organize Bus Line.

Mr. Nixon may be away for a fortnight. In the meantime a decision as to whether the Brooklyn City Railroad Company has the legal right to charge a double fare on its lines may be given by Deputy Public Service Commissioner Glennon.

The Property Owners' Association of Flatlands intends to organize a 5-cent bus service for the use of its members between Flatlands and the Long Island Railroad Depot, at Atlantic Avenue. The purpose is to prevent the Brooklyn City Company from benefiting by a double fare charge. Assistant Corporation Counsel Caswell has been asked for an opinion concerning the right of private individuals to operate a bus service.

The bus service between Bay Ridge and Fort Hamilton has gone out of business. This is the first failure of a bus line established by the Mayor. The bus route ran mainly along the Shore Road, where the traffic was light and the owners of the buses quit because they were losing money. Residents of the section have resumed patronizing the Brooklyn City lines.

FRANCE COLD TO "REDS."

Bolshevist attempts to overturn the republican form of government in France are foredoomed to failure, according to M. L. Levy Bruhl, French exchange professor at Harvard, who delivered the first of a series of addresses at Columbia University yesterday.

"There is an agitation going on in France, as elsewhere," he said, "instigated by the 'Reds.' Without knowing exactly what the Bolshevist institutions are, some persons feel attracted by the new principles of revolutionary Russia. Before the war, many members of the left wing of the Socialist party opposed the capitalistic form of present society. They hate it more now, because they deem it responsible for the horrors of this war, and they wish to see it torn to pieces or done away with.

"But the great bulk of the French nation is averse to any Bolshevist experiment. It abhors political violence and would fight against the tyranny of any social class. The peasants want to work in peace. So does the middle class in the towns. Even in the Socialist party, and in the unions, many leaders know that a revolutionary attempt, even though it should seem to succeed for a while, is doomed to fail if it is not supported by a large majority of the nation."

THIEVES IN BERLIN HIGH LIFE

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—Among the numerous daily arrests of all kinds of criminals is an interesting gang of aristocratic burglars whose chief is Countess Ega Colonna. Her principal aids were Lieutenant Joachim von Boetticher, Architect Erich Stutz and Baroness Belly, all very popular in Berlin West, where they had access to the best houses.

Countess Colonna and Baroness Belly, it is charged, would invite rich bankers and war profiteers to their splendidly appointed homes, and meanwhile Boetticher and Stutz burglarized the houses of the victims, robbing them of millions of dollars' worth of goods, jewelry and money.

They might have remained undiscovered had not Stutz, disguised as a policemen seized stolen goods sold by Boetticher to a certain fence, who got suspicious and notified the police.

Paris Papers Join in a Strike Edition, 5,000,000 Copies Sold of Their Single Issue

PARIS, Nov. 11.—The principal morning newspapers joined forces and produced an edition this morning under the title Presse de Paris. This was forced by the strike of linotype operators and typographers called last night. The following note is prominently printed on the front page:

"Notwithstanding a contract binding them until June 1, 1920, the Paris printers' unions suddenly declared a strike last night. This action is all the more regrettable as it occurred the very day on which we celebrate the anniversary of victory and on the eve of the Parliamentary elections.

"In a sentiment of union the newspapers of the capital have agreed to publish during the strike a single newspaper."

Agitation among the newspaper workers began with the strike in October of the distribution employes. The printers offered to support them with a sympathetic strike, but eventually decided to demand extra pay of 5 francs daily in view of the high cost of living.

Directors of newspapers subsequently met employes' representatives and pointed out to them the difficulty of granting the increase. The possibility of increasing the price of newspapers from 2 to 3 cents was discussed.

When the composite newspapers appeared it developed that the Socialist journals had rallied for their organ, La Feuille Commune, only five dailies, namely, Humanite, L'Oeuvre, Le Populaire, La Bataille, and France Libre. The Presse de Paris, the composite organ of the Nationalist, Conservative and Catholic press, however, displayed on its front page the names of fifty newspapers as its adherents when it appeared at the usual newspaper hour this morning. The Socialist newspaper was issued at noon.

Five million copies of the Presse de Paris had been printed and distributed by 10 o'clock this morning, and it was expected that by noon six million copies would be in the hands of the reading public. This is a new record in the circulation of a daily newspaper in the capital. The newspaper was printed on the presses of Le Petit Parisien.

At the meeting yesterday of the linotype operators, at which the strike was decided on, the men's leaders advocated allowing Humanite, L'Oeuvre and France Libre to appear this morning, but the editors of these newspapers refused to publish, sending word to the meeting that it would be a poor political move which might have a bad effect upon the populace if only Socialist papers were permitted to print.

The printers met at 6 o'clock this evening, and, after hearing a report from the Directors' meeting, decided to continue the strike until they had obtained complete satisfaction.

SHONTS PAID WIFE $20,000 A YEAR

GAVE UP HER DOWER RIGHTS

Trust Fund of $100,000 for Two Daughters—Only Half of Wife's $80,000 Debts Paid.

The 1917 separation agreement by Theodore P. Shonts and his wife, Mfia D. Shonts, whom he cut off in his will with a $5,000 life insurance policy and an oil painting, in favor of Mrs. Amanda Thomas, residuary legatee of the estate, was made public yesterday by Warren Dixon and George W. Files, of 115 Broadway, attorneys for Mrs. Shonts. Argument on a motion to oust Mrs. Shonts as temporary administratrix came up before Surrogate Fowler yesterday, but was adjourned until next Monday.

The agreement, which was signed June 29, 1917, after Mr. Shonts had been living for some time apart from his wife, stipulated that in consideration of his paying her debts up to $80,000, in addition to other provisions contained in a private agreement, each was to permit the other to live the rest of his or her life "as if unmarried." Mrs. Shonts promised not "to harass, molest or annoy" her husband or any of his friends or associates. She also agreed not to institute proceedings of any kind against him. Mrs. Shonts relinquished all her dower rights.

After reciting the personal history of the two and the birth of their children, Theodora (Duchesse de Chaulnes) and Marguerite (Mrs. Rutherford Bingham), the document stated that the agreement had been drawn up as the result of "divers disputes" which had arisen between husband and wife.

After obligating himself for Mrs. Shont's debts to the extent of $80,000, the Interborough President agreed to pay his wife $20,000 a year during their joint lives, the provision to expire upon his death. Provision was also made in the agreement for establishing a trust fund of $100,000 with the Guaranty Trust Company for the benefit of his two daughters.

In addition to this trust fund Mr. Shonts also provided that he should pay each daughter $7,500 a year, but the total amount in either case should not exceed $10,000 a year.

The argument before Surrogate Fowler was postponed at the request of Mr. Files, who said that he needed a week to prepare certain essential affidavits.

Defending his client for her action in seeking to be appointed temporary administratrix of her husband's estate after, according to the attorneys for the executors, she had agreed not to institute any proceedings until the arrival of the Duchesse de Chaulnes from Europe, Mr. Files said at his office:

"Mrs. Shonts is trying to find out what has become of furnishings and valuables which have been removed by some one from her husband's apartment at 930 Park Avenue. It was therefore necessary for her to seek the appointment."

Mr. Files declared that the agreement made by Mr. Shonts to pay his wife's debts up to $80,000 had not been fulfilled, and that Mr. Shonts paid only about $40,000 of her obligations. The attorney contended that the $100,000 trust fund mentioned in the agreement for the daughters was distinct and apart from a similar fund devised in the will.

SOCIALISTS WOUND ITALIAN CANDIDATE

ROME, Nov. 11, (Associated Press.)—As election day approaches, the excitement throughout the country is growing and acts of violence are increasing.

The latest victim of violence is Adamo Boarin, the Democratic candidate in Ferrara. He had driven in an automobile to the village of Marroca to address the electors and had hardly begun to speak when Socialists invaded the meeting and wounded him.

The Socialists seized the automobile for their own propaganda and kept Boarin a prisoner. Soldiers were sent from Ferrara to rescue him.

D'Annunzio to Fly to Rome?

TAKE SINN FEIN M.P.'S IN PARLIAMENT RAID

RIOTS IN DUBLIN AND CORK

DUBLIN, Nov. 11.—The offices of the Sinn Fein "Parliament" were raided today by the authorities. Nine persons were arrested.

Those taken in custody included John O'Mahony, John Hayes, and Frank Lawless, Sinn Fein members of the British House of Commons.

During the celebration of Remembrance Day, Sinn Feiners, parading the streets singing soldiers' songs, met a body of Trinity College students who had been singing the national anthem on St. Stephen's Green. The parties engaged in a free fight lasting an hour. Stones and sticks were freely used before the combatants separated.

CORK, Nov. 11.—Constant collisions between the military and civilians here culminated in serious rioting last night, when soldiers, enraged in consequence of frequent attacks upon them, broke through the police and came into conflict with the crowd.

Sticks and stones were freely used, and belts were removed and forcefully swung. There were also a few revolver shots. A Captain and a private of the troops were badly wounded.

BRITISH TO DISCUSS RUSSIA WITH POINCARE

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The Daily News lobby correspondent says:

"The Prime Minister's reference at the Guildhall to the possibility of peace between the warring factions in Russia which would involve allied recognition is regarded in diplomatic circles as a d'essai ballon. It is stated with some show of authority that the Allies have not yet collectively given their acquiescence to any such policy. The matter will be discussed between members of the Cabinet and President Poincaré during the next few days.

"What is not explained in political circles and is still an official mystery is why the burden of the Russian adventure in men and money has fallen on the shoulders of Britain and is not shared by four of the allies."

Bonar Law's explanation in the Commons yesterday of Lloyd George's speech does not satisfy the Northcliffe press. The London Times describes it as merely parliamentary prevarication designed as a fence to cover the extremely embarrassing and vulnerable ministerial position."

The Daily Mail says:

"Bonar Law's prompt effort to water down Lloyd George's swords and his promise that the House shall be consulted before steps are taken are only proof the weight of the public outcry, notably accentuated by French opinion, against the infamous proposal."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—A proposal that the International labor conference go on record as favoring immediate acceptance by all the allied and associated powers of the request of the Russian Soviet Government for peace negotiations will be submitted tomorrow to the conference, it was announced today by Gino Baldesi, Italian labor delegate.

In making the announcement Mr. Baldesi declared himself strongly opposed to any soviet form of government, but asserted he was not in sympathy with the attempt of the allied and associated powers to force a definite form of government on Russia.

POINCARE AT GUILDHALL.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—President Poincaré of France, Britain's guest this week, was heartily welcomed by the city today at the Guildhall, where the corporation presented an address to the French executive. At the ceremony were Stephen Pichon, the French Foreign Minister; Premier Lloyd George and most of the members of the British Cabinet; Prince Albert, the King's second son; Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, his aunt; Prince and Princess Arthur of Connaught, other members of the royal family and numerous prominent citizens.

ALL LONDON SILENT AT ARMISTICE HOUR

HONORS FOR WAR'S DEAD

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—For two minutes, at 11 o'clock this morning, England paused in memory of her glorious dead in response to the suggestion of the King. Every train halted, every carriage came to a standstill, and every one stopped in the midst of his work or play.

The scenes in London were most impressive, as on the stroke of the hour the stream of traffic ceased, men removed their hats and women bowed their heads, and a deep silence fell.

Maroons, fired as in the air raids, gave the signal for the minutes of remembrance. They startled the pigeons into wild flight, but they froze the assemblage still. It stood and thought of the dead, while the distant maroons sounded like minute guns.

Cabinet Ministers and relatives of humble Tommies, representatives of the French President, and chance passersby stood silent together. No one gazed at his neighbor curiously, but many shed tears, and for two minutes the crowd might have been turned to stone.

It was a marvelous demonstration in its simplicity and sincerity and brought back overpoweringly the heroism and sacrifice of the war.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Great Britain today celebrated the first anniversary of Armistice Day with impressive ceremonies. The foremost and striking of these came in response to the appeal of King George to commemorate the event by a universal simultaneous suspension of activity throughout the country and the observance of silence for two minutes at the moment corresponding with the signing of the armistice—the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month.

The royal call, which appealed to the imagination of the people, had been published and commented on widely throughout the length and breadth of the country, with the result that everybody was prepared to join with appreciative readiness in the unique celebration. The arrangements for carrying out the plans were made with great thoroughness, extending even to ships at sea.

The orders for silence and the standing at attention for two minutes, which were prescribed by the British Navy, were adopted also by all the American warships in British waters on instructions issued from the American Naval Staff here. The military arrangements were similar to those of the navy.

The most impressive scenes were witnessed everywhere as the solemn moment was observed. Civic employes stood still at their posts. Judges in their courtrooms, Cabinet members in their offices, or wherever they happened to be, ceased their duties and stood at attention when the clock struck and the rockets burst that signalled the hour. Every man bared his head, and in many instances men and women stood sobbing in the streets.

Afterward the bands in the open spaces played the "Doxology," "God Save the King," and the buglers "Last Post." Thousands of persons gathered around the monuments erected to the soldiers and deposited wreaths.

In addition to a general suspension of industrial and commercial activities and the cessation of traffic by railroads and tramways, the celebration included solemn religious ceremonies in churches of every denomination. Conspicuous among the churches which celebrated were St. Paul's Cathedral, Westminster Abbey, and the Westminster Catholic Cathedral. One large department store in London had a clergyman conduct services in its building so that all the customers present might attend.

Among other celebrations in London which served to accentuate the impressiveness of the anniversary was a procession organized by the Comrades of the Great War and of other patriotic associations to a cenotaph in Whitehall dedicated to "our glorious dead." This service embraced solemn musical rites and the laying of wreaths at the foot of the cenotaph.

The newspapers today devoted columns to the anniversary, printing among other things messages from numerous public persons appreciative of the occasion. Among these messages was one from Dowager Queen Alexandra to The Daily Mail, saying: "We all pray that God will hear our silent prayers in remembrance of all our brave departed, who laid down their precious lives on the battlefield."

All the churches remained open from 11 until 12 o'clock for silent meditation, while in the schools the teachers read the King's letter, the children standing.

Around the cenotaph in Whitehall thousands had gathered from early morning, most of them bringing wreaths. A guard of honor, both soldiers and sailors, was mounted, with reversed arms.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—The first anniversary of Armistice Day was celebrated this morning at the Chapel of the Invalides with a solemn mass in memory of those who gave their lives in the world war.

Marshal Foch, General Pau, and many maimed soldiers were present. A choir composed of war orphans sang the Te Deum.

ABSOLVES BRITISH GIRLS.

Committee Finds Charges Against Air Force Service Unsubstantiated.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The House of Lords committee which has been conducting an inquiry into allegations that girls of the Woman's Royal Air Force Service at the Hurst Park camp had not always conducted themselves properly, concluded its labors today. Baron Wrenbury, the Chairman, announced that the committee unanimously found the allegations of immorality absolutely unsupported by any of the testimony presented.

The Hon. Violet Douglas-Pennant, daughter of Baron Penrhyn, testifying before the House of Lords committee on Oct. 20 in an inquiry into her dismissal as commandant of the Woman's Royal Air Force Service, charging the girls at the Hurst Park camp with improper conduct, she declared that they had night passes and were taken to London in Government cars and brought back the following morning, sometimes in an intoxicated condition.

CAPITAL OBSERVES ARMISTICE DAY

MESSAGES TO THE NATION

Gen. March Exhorts Veterans of the War to Work for True Americanism.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Two events of national importance not on the arranged program—the arrival of the Prince of Wales as the guest of the nation and President Wilson's leaving his bed for the first time since illness forced him to abandon his speaking tour last month—marked the celebration of Armistice Day in Washington. A general feeling of relief in official circles over the decision of the soft coal miners to rescind the strike order was another high point in the day set apart to commemorate the ending of hostilities in the war.

Rain fell almost continuously during the day, so that many of the arranged events of the celebration took place indoors in departments and bureaus. The rain, however, could not dampen the ardor of those participating in the ceremonies connected with the planting of two memorial California redwood trees in Lafayette Square, opposite the White House. At the anniversary hour, 11 o'clock in the morning, the rattle of musketry from the army firing platoon formally announced that the trees were in place, banked by earth brought from many States for the purpose, and with memorial documents to be sheltered for years to come beneath their roots.

Services were held at 11 o'clock in all the Government departments, which suspended activities for ten minutes.

General Pershing and Secretaries Baker and Lansing pointed out in statements to the American people the deep and solemn meaning of the day, while General March, Chief of Staff, in a message "to the veterans" said:

"The first anniversary of the armistice finds the country holding in most effectionate remembrance the work you performed so cheerfully and gallantly during your service here and overseas. The story of your participation in the war will inspire future generations.

"You have now turned your attention to civil problems, in which the lessons you learned in war may be aptly applied. Patriotism, self-control, and unity of action make for the future welfare of the country as well as for success in battle. You have stood fast under fire, and today your country expects you to stand as firmly in aiding your Government and establishing the doctrines of true Americanism so they will endure forever. Having passed through the great struggle, you stand as an example of idealism to coming generations. Be inspired with the thought that you must continue to be a good example of the glorious spirit which actuated you in your fight for liberty.

"Some of you are still in uniform; some of you are in civilian clothes. Respect the uniform you wore and honor the country and flag for which you fought."

The men who made Armistice Day possible in 1918," he said, "will never permit anarchy or autocracy to rule here in America. Here where brave men who made the noblest sacrifices are making ready for future patriotic service, there is no need to make resolution of devotion to Americanism. Your dedication, made in bloody trenches, calls for no peace declarations, because deeds live when words are forgotten.

"This is not a day for doubt or despondency or dalliance. It is a day for national baptism in the faith that sent American boys unafraid over the top.

"My message to civilians is: 'Let us follow liberty as the men in arms fought and died for it. To be worthy of them we must join with them to make democracy safe for the world.'"

ARMISTICE DAY SHOWS OUR TOTAL WAR LOSS

EX-SERVICE MEN TAKE PART

PAY TRIBUTE TO THE DEAD

With a note of solemnity that contrasted sharply with the delirious joy with which the signing of the armistice was greeted a year ago, city, State, and nation yesterday observed the second Armistice Day with tributes to the memory of the heroic dead.

Combined with these eulogies of heroism that rises supreme in the history of the conflict were warnings from statesmen, from soldiers, and from laymen to take swift action against Bolshevism and other forces of disintegration so "that these dead shall not have died in vain."

In all the exercises in observance of the first anniversary of the signing of the armistice which brought to a close the world's greatest war the most impressive moment was when audiences stood with bowed heads in a moment of silent prayer for those who perished on the fields of strife. None of the speakers failed to point out, and none of the audiences failed to recognize, that those who paid most dearly for victory were the soldiers whose names were missing from the muster rolls when the guns were hushed.

More than 100 separate meetings and memorial services were held in this city yesterday under the auspices of the American Legion and the veterans of the regiments and military organizations which took their part in the war. In schools the pupils heard tales of new heroes whose bravery rivals that of the outstanding figures of other wars. In many sections of the city these pupils joined the veterans in impressive pageants of victory.

People Think of the Gold Stars.

Throughout the city the joyous celebration of the signing of the armistice was forgotten. Remembered only was the feeling that every citizen felt when he saw that immense field of gold stars borne past in tribute to the dead.

In cities throughout the country the same note of solemnity prevailed, and in none was the ceremony of paying tribute to the fallen a minor part of the exercises. Six States had set aside the day as an official holiday, and in their proclamations the Governors had expressed a desire that the Armistice Day should be observed in the same manner as Memorial Day has been observed since the idea was adopted in tribute to the soldiers of the civil war.

In twenty-two other States where no holiday had been proclaimed, exercises were held under the auspices of the State Governments and the State military forces took part in the ceremonies. In this State, the New York Guard turned out to aid in the membership drive of the American Red Cross, which had set aside this day to make a special effort in memory of those who have killed or wounded on the battlefields.

Plea for Unity of Americans.

A warning against the forces of anarchy that would overthrow the ideals and structure of the American Government and a plea for Anglo-American unity as a means of upholding a sane world order were voiced yesterday by the Rev. William T. Manning at the memorial services in Trinity Church.

"We will not have in this country those who seek to destroy freedom,

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday, 5½ per cent. for the best names. Monday.... 5½ per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Something New in Merchandising.

What is believed to be something new in the way of retail merchandising is being done by one of the big local stores apropos of National Blouse Week. The store in question has on display in its show windows a number of examples of ultra modern blouses which are not yet ready for delivery. Consumer orders for the blouses, however, are taken in the department of the store that is devoted to the sale of these goods. In the merchandise on display are a number of models of unusual novelty and richness in design and fabric.

Armistice Day Hit Gray Goods.

With the Massachusetts mills and selling offices closed by a legal observance of Armistice Day, and with most of the leading local commission houses closed, sales in the gray goods market here yesterday were practically nil. The little that was done consisted almost entirely of principlothe for this month's delivery, and the sales were made by second hands. They included Eastern 38½-inch 64-60s at 19¼ cents and 39-inch 68-72s at 22 cents. For 39-inch 72-76s buyers paid 24½ cents.

Clothing Prices for Spring.

In discussing prices for men's clothing for next Spring, the representative of a leading house stated that values will show approximate those of the late Fall merchandise. He explained that the retailers who have come into the market with further orders of heavyweight goods have had to boost their prices quite a bit in order to meet the replacement cost. These increases have not always been confined to new purchases but have been extended to stocks in general, so that as a rule retail goods at present are on the new basis of cost. This basis is approximately the same as that which will prevail during the early buying of Spring merchandise.

A Lesson from Blouse Week.

With the intensity of thought which waist manufacturers gave to preparation for Blouse Week, which is now being held, has come some comparison of the relative volumne of business taken on waists and on men's shirts. The showing is decidedly in favor of the latter at a ratio approximated as ten to one. If the present plans of the waist houses go through, however, it is understood that a-year-around staple business will be developed in the women's trade to follow the plan of operation in the men's branch. While the manufacturers of waists seem opposed to standard styles, it is believed that some way will be found to provide moderately priced waists the year around with so little or so gradual a style of variation that purchases will become as heavy as in the men's trade.

More Reasonable Prices.

In their preparation for Spring trade there seems to be a well grounded feeling in the women's garment trade that it may be good policy to adopt a more moderate scale of prices than were inaugurated at the start of the Fall season. When the manufacturers talk of moderation, however, it is with a full realization of increased labor and material costs. There are predictions made on all sides that costs, garment for garment, must be higher for next Spring, but there is also the sentiment spoken of for inclination toward offering more moderate values. As one manufacturer put it: "Regardless of the talk, not every woman is buying silk waists by the dozen and $25 shoes every other turn. For this reason I think that moderately priced merchandise will be more extensively shown."

One of the principal reasons why cheap goods are not used at present in the manufacturing of clothing can be found, according to a manufacturer in the high cost of manufacture. The clothing trade has always been accustomed to figure that goods at a certain price would get a fixed quality of tailoring. In other words, so much is paid for the material and so much for the making of a suit. With manufacturing costs so high a clothing house, following the usual rule, will not put expensive labor into poor materials. The result is that the entire low range of fabrics has been practically eliminated, and cheap materials seem to be as much a drug on the market as the finer goods are in demand.

Ostrich Feather Sale Called Off.

The auction sale of ostrich feathers that was to have been held on Friday of this week in the warehouse of the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation, 48 Great Jones Street, has been indefinitely postponed. Announcement to this effect was made yesterday by the R. & R. Importing Company of this city, which was to have conducted it. Local prices are said in the trade still to be about 25 per cent. lower than those asked for the same quality feathers in London, but that this situation will not continue very long is shown by a cablegram received here yesterday from Port Elizabeth, South Africa, which said: "The market is unchanged. The arrivals are diminishing rapidly and the quality is bad. Census shows 300,000 birds in the country. A further reduction is expected on account of the drought. Stocks are small." In relation to this, it was pointed out that in 1914 there were 1,000,000 ostriches on the South African farms. The shrinkage indicated by the cablegram was said to mean that ostrich feathers will soon be in a class with diamonds as luxuries.

From several angles yesterday's developments in the money and security markets were extraordinary and filled with promise of important events to come. Stocks broke violently in the last hour of business, following an advance of the call money rate from 14 to 25 per cent., the latter being the highest quotation since the Federal Reserve system was formed. The foreign exchanges generally moved into new low ground, sterling at one time being quoted as low as $4.11⅞ for sight drafts. Italian exchange fell into a demoralized state early in the day, and the final quotation of 12.65 lire to the dollar not only made a new minimum record but recorded a drop of no less than 85 points from the quotation the day before. Francs at 9.43 were lower by a large margin than they had ever been before in the New York market. To throw the highest lights upon the confused money and exchange outlook it is necessary to do nothing more than refer to the conference which occurred in the late afternoon between Federal Reserve authorities and local bankers. While no information was obtained of the direct purpose of the meeting, the Street knew enough from recent words and actions by the Government financial authorities here and at Washington to decide that something was afoot to relieve the present strain on bank credits. Presumably the foreign exchanges also received attention.

For a time in the morning industrial stocks were strong, assisted by the decision of the coal union leaders to call off the strike. Steel, automobile, and kindred issues advanced from 1 to 3 points. The rise was short lived, and represented the sentiments of only the most persistent partisans of the upward side of quotations. When call money opened at 14 per cent. and the renewal rate was also fixed at this figure—the maximum of the year—the stock market became unsettled and continued to shade off until a 25 per cent. money brought forth a tremendous outpouring of offerings. Several shares which had been rapidly inflated of late dropped from 10 to more than 20 points. Declines running from 3 to 7 points were common among the industrials at the close of business, but the railroad group was affected only slightly. The rails had participated hardly at all in the speculative campaign of the last two months and naturally were not subject to liquidation, which represented the undoing of too enthusiastic operations on the long side of manufacturing company stocks. The turnover was in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 shares.

The unfavorable movements of foreign exchange rates were not accompanied by anything new, and nothing may be added to the situation of international finance to emphasize present needs. Until adequate credits are established here it is difficult to see how the exchanges of the lately belligerent countries can record any material betterment. They can count upon the offsetting influence of increased exports to the United States only as a slow and painful process in improving exchange rates, and before exports can expand largely there must be large imports of raw materials to be worked up in European factories. The necessity for arranging credits is receiving greater attention in banking quarters as the days draw nearer for the acceptance of the Peace Treaty, and doubtless this subject occupies a prominent place in plans for conserving credit from use in speculative ventures in various directions.

BOTH PARTIES FIGHT FEDERAL RAIL GRIP

SIMS WOULD KEEP CONTROL

Webster Announces That He Will Press for Vote on Anti-Strike Legislation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Expressions of opposition in the House today to Government ownership of railroads drew applause from both Democratic and Republican members when debate of the House Railroad Regulation bill began.

"After hearing proponents of the Plumb plan for Government ownership, with employe operation, the committee was convinced that Government ownership was not and never can be the solution of the railroad problem," declared Representative Esch, Wisconsin, Chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee which framed the measure, and the applause he received was repeated when others uttered similar statements.

The only suggestion of the transportation problem as a 1920 campaign issue was raised by Representative Sims of Tennessee, ranking Democratic committeeman. While supporting the committee plan, centring on the extension of the authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Mr. Sims reserved the right to offer a substitute later, proposing continuance of Government control until the end of 1921.

"By that time the campaign will have passed, the Congress will have been elected, labor will have gone through its reorganization, and so will Wall Street," he said.

Consideration of the bill was begun under a program calling for sessions continuing late into the night. House leaders hope that the measure can be passed by Saturday, permitting early adjournment of the special session so far as the House is concerned.

The debate developed opposition to many features of the committee measure. Representative Sanders, Democrat, Louisiana, declared against it as "fundamentally wrong" and likely to result in the final "burial of steamboats." Discussion was confined largely to explanation of provisions creating boards for the voluntary adjustment of labor disputes, with provisions for collecting damages from carriers or unions violating a wage contract.

Chairman Esch described the bill as a "superstructure built on a plan that had proved well laid," referring to the Interstate Commerce Commission and past commerce acts. Other committeemen also spoke, prolonging the debate well into the evening.

"If this bill is the best solution of the transportation problem that the mind of man can devise," declared Representative Sanders, Louisiana, "then an outraged people will demand Government ownership."

Less than half a score of members joined the applause provoked by his remark, and Representative Merritt, Connecticut, and Representative Sanders, Indiana, Republican committee members, replied that the Louisiana member's criticism was directed against the bill because of its noninterference with the water carriers.

"The bill restricts the rail carriers, but at the same time tells the water lines to go scot free, competing with the steam roads however they please," declared the Indiana member.

Referring to the Plumb plan and Government ownership, Mr. Sanders of Indiana declared that the Railway Brotherhoods' proposal was not "Government ownership," but a proposal to turn over a big industry to the operation and benefit of a few. Mr. Merritt also criticised the Plumb plan, asserting the "only thing democratic about it is that if there is a deficit everybody gets to pay the bill."

Government acquisition of railroad rights-of-way, terminals and all other immovable property of the carriers, with their lease to private corporations, was advocated by Mr. Sims, who said private railroad financing had produced an "inverted pyramid" which is constantly increasing.

"Absolute assurance has been given by the Railroad Administration that rates will not be increased during Government control." He also asserted that further losses would not result from Government operation.

Announcement by Representative Webster, Republican, Washington, at the night session, that he would press the House for a vote on anti-strike legislation met with applause, and when the Washington member concluded his address devoted entirely to the labor provisions of the bill, several members left their seats to take his hand.

"What halo is there about this right to strike that makes it beyond the law?" asked Webster, adding that no class of people should be "permitted to have a strangle hold on the whole public."

For Congress to deal with the strike question in a "milk and honey way," Webster declared, would expose it to the charge of "cowardice," while the proposed means for voluntary arbitration outlined in the bill were denounced by him as "cumbersome and expensive machinery that overlooks the fact that public interest is paramount."

OIL MEN GOING TO RUMANIA.

Standard Begins Work of Reconstructing Balkan Fields.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey is opening up its holdings in the Rumanian oil fields where many wells were destroyed by the allied forces when they were forced to retreat from that territory. The Germans got some oil from that region, but it was negligible as compared with the potential production. In the last few months the Standard has been sending men to Rumania, and large quantities of supplies have been shipped for reconstruction work.

An official of the company yesterday said it might be possible to reclaim some wells, but in many cases it would be necessary to drill new wells alongside old ones. Some wells were filled with concrete and others with bits of iron. In the latter instance it has been possible to clean the wells. New development work probably will be undertaken in time, but for the present the work consists largely of reclamation, with reconstruction of refineries and pipe lines. The Rumanian production in 1914 averaged more than 30,000 barrels a day.

There have been several reports that the company had purchased German holdings of oil lands in Rumania. Company officials who should be familiar with such a step disclaim knowledge of a purchase.

To a certain extent the German trade of the Standard has been reopened. The company has sent several shipments to Germany, but it is said to be too early to resume German trade on a large scale. Conditions in Central Europe were described as being in such a turmoil that business at present was almost impossible.

LINSEED EARNINGS RISE.

Directors of the American Linseed Company yesterday declared a 3 per cent. annual dividend on the common stock, payable in installments Dec. 15, March 15, June 15, and Sept. 15. The dividend of 7 per cent. on the preferred stock, payable Jan. 2, April 1, July 1, and Oct. 1, also was declared.

The report for the year ended Sept. 30 showed a net income of $3,855,827, equivalent after preferred dividends, to $16.02 a share on the $16,750,000 outstanding common stock. In the preceding year, the earnings were equivalent [illegible] was $11,023,776, as compared with $4,385,287 in 1918. Expenses of $6,696,534 were nearly $4,500,000 more than in the previous year. The balance sheet showed an inventory of $12,202,524, as compared with $3,856,533 in 1916. Plant was valued at $5,000,000 above the 1918 figures. The profit and loss surplus was $10,530,478.

At the stockholders' meeting John J. Fitzgerald of Boston asked President Adams if the company's money in the past had been used to buy stocks for officials. Mr. Adams denied this had been done.

LATE COTTON PRICES SHOW SMALL GAINS

BREAKS IN FINAL HOUR

The cotton market had to contend with two decided influences yesterday, one of which could be construed as highly bullish, while the other was just the reverse. On the whole, the action of the market was somewhat in the nature of a compromise, for while a good deal of strength was manifested during most of the day, trading was relatively quiet, and at the close there was a reaction which took away most of the earlier gains.

On the bull side of the news may be mentioned the termination of the coal miners' strike, and the bad weather which prevailed over the greater part of the belt. The labor situation took a sudden and decided turn for the better, and the weather reports over night showed frost in most places and freezing weather in some important parts.

Against this there was the high money rate on the Stock Exchange and the weakness of stocks, and also the foreign exchange market developed greater weakness than it has known at any time heretofore. These were factors which could be considered nothing but very bearish, yet it was a notable feature of the cotton market yesterday that the Wall Street houses, which had been the big short sellers last week, were the most conspicuous buyers, presumably to cover the short lines put out last week.

However, none of the market interests traded in excessive volume yesterday, and during most of the time the market moved on comparatively small lots. Even on the big swings which occurred trading was light, and while it took relatively little buying to run prices up 60 to 70 points around midday, it took just as little to force the level down again almost as much in the late afternoon.

The opening of the market, responding to the good news and the improvement at Liverpool, was steady, up 5 points for December and 20 to 40 points for the more distant months. After that the rise continued, until December and January were up 70 points, with the others advanced 58 to 65 points. But in the final hour the market broke, until at the close December was advanced on the day only 35 points, January 26, March 20, and the others only nominally changed.

NEW LOW FOR STERLING.

English Pound Sells at $4.11⅞—France and Lire Also Down.

The foreign exchange market yesterday showed greater demoralization than at any time within the last two months. Rates for all the leading exchanges went to new low records.

Demand sterling bills sold at the new low figure of $4.11⅞, which compares with the previous low of $4.12¼, made in July, and equalled in August. French francs were down 23 centimes on the day to the new low record of 9.43 francs to the dollar, and Italian exchange went to a new low, 85 centimes under Monday's figure, when they sold at $12.65 lire to the dollar.

Bankers were somewhat at a loss to explain this latest weakness. For some weeks there is said to have been an accumulation of sterling bills by American exporters who had been holding off from marketing their checks in hope of a recovery after the flotation of the United Kingdom $250,000,000 loan. When the market failed to advance, it was supposed, many of these holders became discouraged and began disposing of their bills for whatever they would bring.

It had been reported for several days that both France and Italy were building up balances at London by selling their own bills and buying sterling. Recent advices from London tend to bear out these reports. It is said that both France and Italy are preparing for extensive financing in the London market, and to this end are collecting all the funds they can there.

Wool Firm at London Sale.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The offering at the wool auction sales today amounted to 11,000 bales. Medium and fine grades were firm, but inferior sorts moved irregularly.

Report Gain in Commodity Prices.

Bradstreet's approximate index number which will be published soon will show new signs of strength in commodity prices as of Nov. 1. The figure as compiled for that date was $19.9026, a gain of 1.9 per cent. over Oct. 1, and a decrease of only ½ of 1 per cent. for the record high level on Aug. 1, $20.0017.

Paper Manufacturers to Meet.

The American Paper and Pulp Association will begin today a three days' session at the Waldorf. Headquarters were opened at the hotel yesterday for registration. Paper manufacturers from all parts of the country are members of the association, whose headquarters are at 18 East Forty-first Street.

MONEY— an article of Merchandise

BANKERS EVERYWHERE are realizing the basic fact that money is a commodity, the same as any other article of barter. They receive money on deposit and sell its temporary use for a fee.

COMMERCIAL BANKING is preeminently MONEY-MERCHANDISING.

THE NATIONAL PARK BANK realizes that its customers have the same buying and selling problems in money as in merchandise and it has an organization to meet satisfactorily the money requirements of merchants.

Our officers will welcome the opportunity to talk over any foreign or domestic commercial banking matters with you.

The Oil Wells of Russia
Thirty-five years ago William MacGarvey, a Canadian geologist of international repute and adventurous disposition, on a trip through the Balkan mountains, stopped near the ancient town of Borysław to drill a well. His machinery was hand-made; his employees were ignorant natives. One morning after four months of hard work, when he had reached a depth of 500 feet, a tiny stream of oil was found bubbling slowly from the well. Thus began the petroleum industry which in the early part of the twentieth century reached its climax in the construction of the great tanks and refineries at Baku, Russia.
The war entailed the virtual destruction of all the oil fields in Rumania, Northern and Southwestern Russia.

LONG GERMAN STRIKE BROUGHT TO AN END

BERLIN, Nov. 11, (Associated Press.)—The metal workers' strike, which had entered upon its eighth week, was virtually called off last night, when the committee of fifteen directing it ordered the strikers to report to headquarters and proceed to make necessary arrangements for the immediate resumption of work.

The seven weeks' holiday cost a big sum lost in wages and also drained the strike treasury, to which sympathizers in other branches gradually refused to contribute further, as a real political movement began to loom up in the background. That the strikers were seriously embarrassed financially in consequence of their loss in wages is indicated by the fact that the workers failed to report at the official coal depots for fuel rations, chiefly because they were unable to pay for the coal allotted to them by the city.

The big industrial plants also were heavy losers, although it is admitted that coal shortage in the last few weeks would probably have forced them to shut down temporarily. While they are behind with their orders, they say that the seven weeks' cessation of work has enabled them to stock up with coal and raw materials sufficient to permit them to enter upon a busy era.

FRENCH SEE NO WRONG IN DEMANDING COWS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—People here are regarding with amazement the sympathetic consideration given by Lord Parmoor and the British committee to the German plea that the enemy be not compelled to restore any of the cows stolen from France during the war because of the suffering that would be caused to German babies. The French argue that as the war was the direct result of the unprovoked attack on the peaceful neighbors by the farmers of these German babies the first call on the cows belongs to the French babies who are dying today because the Germans rendered it impossible for them to get milk.

The Ministry of Agriculture informed me today that during the war Germans carried off over a million horned cattle from the occupied districts of France. Of these 523,000 were milking cows. The Peace Conference imposed on the Germans the obligation of handing back 90,000, or less than one for every eighteen they stole from France.

"The German plea," said an indignant Frenchman to me today, typical of the middle class refugee from St. Quentin, who has lost every cent he owned, "is as impudent as it is hypocritical. The Americans do not even yet realize the terrible conditions in North France as a result of the war. The vast majority of our children, in spite of the magnificent work the American Committee is doing, do not taste fresh milk once a week. Here and there one finds a milch cow that has been sent to us from America or England, but the principal sustenance of the thousands of children is condensed milk. Even that is by no means always obtainable. Thousands of prisoners, too, who have come back from the horrors of German prisons, nothing but skin and bones, have died through want of milk and other nourishing foods which are indispensable to them to regain their strength. Occasionally it is possible to buy a chicken, but never under between $4 or $5.

"In both America and England, I am afraid, you have heard so much about our ruined houses you have got tired of them. I believe the actual physical misery of our people in regard to food, clothing, and shelter, especially now that bad weather has come, is far worse than is generally realised by the happy people of uninvaded America. The fact that there can be a single person in England to lend an ear to the plea that it is their duty to preserve the lives of the children of our enemies at the expense of French children seems incredible. The Peace Treaty calls for only 90,000, anyway, and they stole over half a million of our cows. Some of these stolen cows were used to feed the German troops but the greater proportion was carried into Germany and now forms a part of the national supply of cattle. The Germans not only deprived us of immediate milk and butter but ruined our breeding stocks. They had, moreover, the benefit of calves bred from our cows during the past five years.

"The fact that German babies may be deprived of milk if these cattle are restored to France is, even from a humanitarian point of view, a matter of entirely secondary importance in view of the much more heartbreaking fact that French babies are dying today for want of the very milk the Germans are getting. Remember that these pitiful babies are all we have to look to to replace so far as possible the million and a half men, the flower of our race, who were killed in the war. Lord Parmoor and his committee seem to think Germany, not France, is their ally. If the German babies want milk that is the fault of their fathers. Ours have indisputable prior claims."

REFUSE TOLEDO APPEAL TO LET CARS COME IN

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 11.—The controversy between the City of Toledo and the Toledo Railways and Light Company as a result of the latter's removing all its cars from the streets promises to become a long-drawn-out struggle.

President Frank R. Coates of the company declared today that the next move was up to the city, and Mayor Cornell Schreiber and members of his Cabinet are non-commital as to what the next move will be.

All this time the citizens are either walking or paying increased fare for automobiles to get to and from places of business. Twenty-two bus lines are now in operation. Retail trade is reported unusually dull.

President Coates was requested today by Mayor Schreiber to permit the Interurban cars to operate inside the city, but he quickly refused, declaring the company could not waive its position under the ouster ordinance.

Manufacturers reported attendance of employes greatly improved over the day before. They declare, however, that the loss in production will be great. The railway officials declared today that the withdrawal of the street cars was costing them about $7,800 daily in loss of fares.

The motormen, conductors, and other employes of the company thrown out of employment number about 1,400. These men are members of the street car men's union. A mass meeting will be held tomorrow afternoon at which W. P. Fitzgerald of Pittsburgh, Vice President of the national organization, will address the men. The electricians and line men still are at work.

The company's cars, which are stored at various points ever in Michigan, are being closely guarded.

Settles Suit with Mrs. Donald Brian.

Charles H. Pope, a cotton broker, settled yesterday in the Supreme Court, a suit by his divorced wife, Mrs. Florence Meagher Brian, wife of Donald Brian, to recover sums due under an agreement to pay off a mortgage on property in Connecticut, which went to Mrs. Brian under the terms of her divorce settlement. On the application of Mrs. Brian s attorney Justice Giegerich discontinued the suit.

GOLD FUND FOR PARAGUAY.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Nov. 11.—For the purpose of stabilizing exchange with Paraguay, a convention by which Paraguay will establish a gold fund has been signed by the Paraguayan Foreign Minister and Daniel F. Mooney, the United States Minister, acting for the International High Commission which was created some time ago to obtain uniformity of exchange between the Americas.

It is understood that the gold fund will be accumulated from Paraguayan revenues and sequestered in New York. The convention is regarded as a long step toward establishing the finances of Paraguay on a firm basis.

Selling at London Wool Sale Firm.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—At the wool auction sales today 10,400 bales were offered. There was increasing activity on the part of Continental buyers. Prices were firmer. Merinos and fine crossbreds were 15 per cent. and medium coarse crossbreds from 10 to 20 per cent. dearer. American buyers were fairly active.

CAPITAL AND LABOR SOLVED BY PERSONAL MANAGEMENT

The greatest difficulty of industry is the relation of capital and labor. The growth of great corporations has set up barriers between the employer and employee. The problem has become national and investors hesitate.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Yesterday's session on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was a "red letter" day for the "bear" element, losses of from 5 to 18 points being netted in numerous of the active industrials, all of which were under pressure throughout the day, the ensuing carnival of selling being based on forecasts of a recurrence of an abnormally high money rate, which were verified by a marking up to 25 per cent. before the close.

SENATE ASKS FACTS OF JENKINS CASE

INQUIRY TO BE RESUMED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The resolution introduced in the Senate last week by Senator King of Utah, calling upon the Secretary of State to give to the Senate all information in the possession of the Government relative to the case of William O. Jenkins, the American consular agent who was kidnapped recently by Mexicans, as well as to report to the Senate what degree of protection for official representatives as well as other citizens of the United States has been demanded of Mexico, was unanimously reported out by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations this morning and subsequently unanimously adopted by the Senate.

The Senate is now ready to resume its investigation of the entire Mexican situation and Senator Fall, the Chairman of the sub-committee of the Committee on Foreign Relations which is making the investigation, said today that the taking of testimony would be resumed in the near future.

"We are becoming habituated," said Senator King in a statement issued today, "to the mistreatment of Americans in Mexico. There seems to be no protection afforded American citizens and their lives and their property are constantly in jeopardy. Scores of Americans have been killed by Mexicans and property to the extent of tens of millions of dollars has been either taken or destroyed. The Mexican government does not seem to appreciate its duties under international law, or to appreciate its obligations under existing treaties between it and the United States.

"No one desires intervention in Mexico. The American people desire the most friendly and cordial relations with the Mexican people, but the time has come when Mexico must understand that she must discharge her international obligations. Americans must no longer be murdered, and robbed and plundered by Mexican officials and soldiers, and by the Mexican people. It is an affront to our nation when those representing the Government, such as Mr. Jenkins, can be seized and compelled to pay ransom to secure freedom.

"The Mexican Government should have afforded Mr. Jenkins full protection, and when that protection was not afforded him and he was made a prisoner, every effort should have been made by the Mexican Government to effect his release. Civilized nations must afford protection to consular and diplomatic representatives of other nations who are within their borders. They have not discharged their duty by affording such foreign representatives the same precarious protection provided their own nationals. International law requires, if need be, special protection.

"It is to be hoped that the State Department will make proper representations to the Mexican Government to the end that in the future there shall be the proper protection afforded the representatives of our Government, and, in addition, that it will require that Mexico repay our consular agent not only the money which he was compelled to pay for his liberation, but recompense him for the indignities and wrongs to which he was subjected."

OPEN PITTSBURGH LIFE CASE

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 11.—W. H. Nimick, the Pittsburgh banker, who was President of the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company when the control of the company was acquired by Clarence F. Birdseye and his associates in March, 1917, was the first witness called by the commonwealth at the trial today of Birdseye, his son, Kellog Birdseye, and George Montgomery, who are indicted on a charge of conspiring to wreck the company and of causing losses reaching into millions to stockholders and policyholders.

Robert M. Gibson, First Assistant District Attorney, asserted it would be proved that the Dare Lumber Company was purchased with $1,000,000 of the funds of the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company and was afterward used by the defendants in their manipulations to raid the treasury of the local insurance company.

Mr. Nimick testified that Clarence F. Birdseye on Feb. 17, 1917, told him that his (Birdseye's,) purpose was to purchase the control of the company and that he represented Fred K. Wallis of New York City and of others whose names he would not divulge. An offer of $75 a share was made for the stock, but Mr. Nimick told him there was no chance of a sale unless $80 a share was paid and an agreement made to purchase all the stock offered at this figure so that minority stockholders would be protected.

BEGIN STAMP FRAUD RAIDS.

Six Brokers' Offices in Chicago Searched—One Man Held.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—The first step on the part of the Government to break up what is believed to be a nation-wide ring of brokers who have been frequently altering War Savings Stamp certificates, was taken today when United States Secret Service men, under the direction of Captain Thomas I. Porter, raided the offices of six brokers. Among the offices raided were those of Martens & Co., United States Bond Company, Welden, Webster, X. W. Kemps, Carl White, and J. S. Lowitz.

In each office visited the Government agents confiscated large amounts of War Savings Stamps. In one office it was said $52,000 worth of the stamps were seized.

Welden Webster was the only broker arrested, and he was held in bonds of $5,000.

Captain Porter explained that the brokers purchased the War Savings Stamps from persons who were unable to wait the required ten days to obtain the currency, and then erased the names and identification numbers from the cards.

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

Hutcheson Plays Three Concertos.

Whether or not he has ever had any predecessors in carrying out the idea, Ernest Hutcheson's enterprise in giving a concert in which only three piano concertos of Beethoven should be played is sufficiently original to deserve to remain unique. The possibilities of a wide adoption of such a scheme in other forms, whether concerned with Beethoven or anybody else, are calculated to cause dismay. A large audience, apparently composed largely of students, found, however, in Mr. Hutcheson's concert enjoyment and edification yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall. Mr. Hutcheson played the third, fourth, and fifth concertos—those in C minor, G, and E flat, respectively, with the accompaniment of the New York Symphony Orchestra conducted in the first two by Mr. Willeke, in the last by Mr. Damrosch.

Objectors to Mr. Hutcheson's undertaking might maintain that the C minor concerto was unnecessary and could have been left out without serious loss. It is in these days largely relegated to the use of conservatory pupils, as the first, in C major, is to the use of infant prodigies, when they are of sufficient calibre to play with an orchestra, as Josef Hofmann, who played it in his prodigy days. What the second, in D, is useful for is hard to say. Has it ever been publicly performed in New York? If so, the record is shrouded in obscurity.

It is to be said, however, that the C minor concerto played by Mr. Hutcheson yesterday, has appeared on artistic programs here in the not very distant past. Perhaps he thought to contribute something to its rescue from the rising mists of oblivion and from the conservatorists. If so, his performance was well calculated toward this end. It was vigorous, sincere, abounding at the same time in poetical qualities, and making no effort to lift the work which shows the earlier, the formative influences, especially in the first and last movements, more than some others belonging to this period of the master's artistic development, to a higher plane than that on which it rightfully belongs. It kept throughout to the scale of the work, yet exhibiting its qualities such as they rightfully are. These reach their highest in the largo, in which Beethoven has already put much of the exalted singing style of his slow movements, and in which there is a phrase curiously foreshadowing the opening phrase of the air "Salut, demeure chaste et pure," from Gounod's "Faust."

The G major concerto really needs some rescue work such as Mr. Hutcheson gave it yesterday afternoon. Pianists have gradually been neglecting it in recent years in favor of its bigger and more brilliant brother, the one in E flat; but what a treasure it is and what a pity to neglect it. It may be called a lesser work in the breadth of its ideas and the elaboration of them, but Beethoven wrote few things more profoundly poetical, more spiritually significant, than the andante of this concerto, the triumph of the forces of light over those of darkness, of peace over unrest and doubt; few things more captivating than the exquisite filigree of the first movement, or more rhythmically engrossing than the final rondo.

In this Mr. Hutcheson showed a true discernment of the peculiar beauty of the music, the peculiar qualities that give it its charm. He gave them expression in his playing, which touched the poetical contents of the work. His performance of the E flat concerto had the greater breadth and vigor than the work calls for, yet it was contained and restrained within its due limits.

Mr. Hutcheson used in the C minor and G major concertos cadenzas by Reinecke which, unfitting to the style of Beethoven's music. He was enthusiastically applauded.

The Philadelphia Orchestra.

The Philadelphia Orchestra which is fighting hard for its life, or for its existence unimpaired by the necessity of making a reduction in its personnel, gave the first of its series of New York concerts last evening in Carnegie Hall. The quality of its performance showed beyond a doubt the seriousness of the loss which threatens Philadelphia unless the necessary endowment fund is raised; a loss which threatens also New York; for the five annual concerts of these visitors have already taken an important place in the musical life of this city.

The orchestra has reached a very high degree of excellence. Its tone is of the finest, in richness, purity and balance of the several choirs; its playing discloses finish, precision, delicacy and power. Mr. Stokowski has developed into a conductor of authority, of imagination and ripe discernment, sure of his classics, sympathetic with his moderns; in both communicative to his men of a buoyant enthusiasm. How thoroughly these qualities have been recognized by New York music lovers and how highly prized, was shown last evening by the large numbers of the audience and the sincerity of its enthusiasm. The Philadelphia orchestra is in fact a musical asset to be highly prized by any community; its loss or a deterioration of its quality would be a disaster.

Those admirable qualities of player and conductor were shown in the playing last night of a program which began with Weber's "Freischütz" overture, found its culmination in Beethoven's Seventh Symphony, introduced a composition new to New York in Dvorsky's symphonic poem "The Haunted Castle" and closed with perhaps unnecessary noise and vulgarity in Wagner's "Rienzi" overture.

The performance of the "Freischütz" overture and the symphony was of great beauty; in rhythm, in phrasing, in the instinctive feeling for symmetry, and the admeasurement of the larger proportions it afforded an unalloyed pleasure.

"The Haunted Castle" by Dvorsky was played by the Philadelphia Orchestra last season for the first time, being one of the latest compositions of this talented young composer, only 29 years old, of whom an affecting account is given again and most recently by the orchestra's management. Very little, it is truthfully said, is known of him in this country; and it is afflicting to learn that Dvorsky is still obliged to live at San Sebastian, where he has been reported for several years, on account of a constitution not overstrong." Can nothing be done to strengthen it?

There were no signs of debility in "The Haunted Castle," which is written with a superb command of modern orchestral resources and the clear expression of a mood. No explanation of the "program" of the piece was given, and none was in truth needed. After the glowing and tranquil introductory section, the idea is conveyed of supernatural possession, of nameless but violent horrors. The same expression has been more subtly governed; but perhaps not more forcibly nor with a wider and more ingenious range of orchestral effects. Few are neglected in this piece. The result is correspondingly impressive.

More than the usual show-supply of good music, several excellent voices to match it, a variety of charming and eccentric dances, monobtrusive comedy that is not infrequently amusing, elaborate settings and gorgeous costumes, all thrown together into a story that holds together most of the time—that is "The Magic Melody," which opened at the Shubert Theatre last night. The production is described on the program as "a romantic musical play," but there is too much of the revue in it for it to be a play, and yet there is too much of the dramatic in it for it to be a revue.

Charles Purcell heads the cast, and his pleasing personality and voice are its chief asset. But by no means the only one. Julia Dean supplies dramatic fibre to the story, and specialty dancing by Fay Marbe, Lois Leigh, and Bertee Beaumonte enlivens the periods between plot. Tom McNaughton is an orthodox comedy Englishman, with a little more wit and humor and peculiar grace in his performance than is usually brought out from the stock part. Earl Benham is another one put in to score laughs, and his average last night, while below McNaughton's by some degrees, was pretty good. Renee Delting, chiefly, but not altogether, because of her singing, would be missed from the cast, as would also Carmel Myers and several others.

Undoubtedly several of the songs in the play will be heard many times. The popularity of "Once Upon a Time" and "Dream Girl, Give Me Back My Dream," both sung by Purcell and Miss Delting; of "Love Makes the World Go Round," sung by Purcell, and of "We Take It Just Take It From You," sung by Miss Marbe, would seem assured. The most ambitious musical effort of the piece is Purcell's "Gianina." It was received with a genuine demonstration of appreciation last night.

The story begins in a prologue in Sicily, and ends in Paris, so one may gather that it has a continental flavor, which, apparently, the producers sought to strengthen by having Sicilians in their native land speak broken English. The flavor is there, however, even if it is a musical comedy flavor, and with the prologue ending with a violent vendetta, and the second act with vengeance giving way to love, there is opportunity for the story at times to actually make one forget the specialties.

SUE ON WAR CONTRACT.

A suit for $2,188,830 alleged to be due for the sale of caterpillar tractors to the Allies in Europe was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Jules Schnerb and Joseph Wegimont, of Antwerp, Belgium, against the Holt Manufacturing Company, for which, it is alleged, the plaintiffs were appointed agents in Western Europe.

It is asserted that as the result of a demonstration in Belgium in 1914, Col. Swinton, of the British Imperial Defence Committee, first conceived the idea of using the caterpillar principle in constructing tanks. The plaintiffs say the French Creusot Works later bought the machines, and through their efforts more than $40,000,000 of the tractors were sold, on which they are entitled to 5 per cent. commission.

Women's Socks to be Scarce.

While there promise to be no excess stocks of high-grade silk hose for some time, it was said here yesterday that the coming Spring and Summer would see an especially marked shortage of women's socks. The steadily increasing consumer demand for these goods in the last two or three seasons, and the active business that was reported this Summer by stores which made a specialty of them, has led many buyers to regard them more favorably for next year than has heretofore been the case. From the manufacturer's point of view, however, they are a bit dangerous to handle, in that making them in quantity means turning over machines that ordinarily are used for producing men's goods. This, it is contended, means leaping the business in the latter for something that may prove only a passing fad. The women's socks most wanted are the kind that will retail around $2.75 to $3 a pair.

French Hospital Cuts Nurses' Hours.

The French Hospital announced yesterday that hereafter its twelve-hour day for nurses in training, will be replaced by an eight-hour day to conform to the practice generally in vogue in other hospitals.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

The estate of Herman Hackman has sold to the Guinan Company of 17 South Street, the six-story corner building at 20 South Street, northwest corner of Cuylers Alley and South Street. The property has a frontage of 31 feet on South Street, runs back a depth of 102 feet, taking in one-half of the block. In 1788 it was purchased by John Jacob as part of a plot of twenty-two lots for £812, or $3,900.

It was again sold in 1816 for $6,000 to a Mr. Stuyvesant, who resold it in 1827 for $10,000 to Mr. Watson. In 1845 Watson sold it to Reynolds, who paid $15,000 for the lot, and built the present building and sold it for $30,000, which shows the gradual increase in property in this section.

The present purchaser intends to alter the property into a modern office building, using part for his own occupancy, and the cost of the property, including alterations, will involve over $100,000. The Guinan Company has been located for the past twenty years at 17 South Street, which property has recently been purchased by the Broad Street Hospital, which has acquired the entire block for the erection of a new fourteen-story building. Pease & Elliman negotiated the transaction.

McKesson & Robins occupy at this point nearly 100,000 square feet of space. If you have an aptitude for figures and a level head, you need not remain long at a high, small desk. We can put you in line for and help you to secure within a year's time a position paying

$2,500 TO $6,000 A YEAR.

If you have ability apply it. The world needs it. America is calling for trained men—PARTICULARLY for trained accountants.
The accountancy field is steadily enlarging as more attention is being given by city, State, and Federal boards, by banks and trust companies, and by business corporations and auditing procedure of varied and complicated kinds and to income tax regulations and reports for hundreds of thousands of individuals and firms.

YOUR TEACHERS AND LEADERS.

You can study during your spare time at home (about an hour a day), without interfering with your present position. Your training will be by the famous "La Salle Problem Method," which has made more expert accountants and C. P. A.'s than any other plan. You will be under the direction of William B. Castenholz, the best-known accountancy teacher in America, and a large staff of expert accountants, including several members of the American Institute of Accountants. And when you are qualified you will be connected with big business.

ACCOUNTING
COST—C. P. A.—EXECUTIVE.
The United States Government has raised the Civil Service salary limit and is now holding continuous examinations for Expert Accounting positions paying $2,400 to $6,000 per year.
With many new plants and industries locating in this section, the demand will be greater than ever, and men and women who can qualify will have no difficulty in obtaining permanent positions at the very highest salaries.
A NATIONALLY KNOWN institution of Certified Public Accountants, the oldest institution of its kind in the country, with branches in the leading cities, has a department that is devoted exclusively to the training of men and women for executive accounting positions and the C. P. A. degree.
OUR HOME STUDY method is the most thorough and practical training that is possible to obtain, except through some of the largest universities. It is years ahead of any other HOME STUDY institution, both in scope and methods. Here are a few of its distinctive points:
EVERY MEMBER of our faculty is (a) a Certified Public Accountant, (b) actively engaged in the practice of his profession, (c) with extensive and successful experience in the teaching of Accountancy.
Among our graduates and students we number more Certified Public Accountants than all similar institutions combined. We have trained hundreds now holding big-paying positions with the Government and the industries.
New and original teaching methods are employed, insuring a rapidity of progress almost beyond belief.
The method has been especially designed to appeal to the person who has lost the study habit as well as to the busy person whose time is valuable.
If you do not train yourself for a better position you will seldom advance beyond a living wage. If you are earning less than $50 to $100 a week we can assist you. Write or phone for our office appointment.

JURY MAY LOOK FOR VEILED GOVERNMENT

Intimation That Body Has Broadened Scope of Inquiry Into Hylan Administration.

HEARST LAWYER SUMMONED

Rumored That Jury Wants Correspondence Between the Mayor and Hearst Publications.

The Extraordinary Grand Jury investigating an alleged "overshadowing crime," no inkling of the nature of which has been disclosed by its members, will make a determined effort to find out the identity of the person who hired detectives to trail the jurymen, when it resumes its inquiry today. Some of the members have freely admitted that they have been shadowed by men believed to be detectives who have dogged their steps with such persistency as to be annoying. It is reported that a number of the jurors are living away from their homes since this discovery.

No formal session of the body was held yesterday, but a committee of eight, appointed from among its members, met behind closed doors to examine the voluminous mass of documents which had been subpoenaed from city officials the day before. Raymond F. Almirall, foreman of the jury, who is a member of the committee, declined to make any comment when he was leaving the Criminal Court Building.

It was said yesterday that in several instances the subpoenas sent to the heads of the city departments required them to produce before the body "all letters and correspondence sent by Mayor Hylan to District Attorney Swann and the Hearst Publication Company." A rumor was current about the Criminal Court Building that the jury was broadening the scope of its inquiry to include an investigation of a possible "invisible government" behind the Hylan administration. The Grand Jury, it was learned, is now pursuing the inquiry under subdivision 5, of Section 260, of the Code of Criminal Procedure, which sets forth that it is mandatory for the body "to inquire into wilful and corrupt misconduct in office of public officials of every description in the county that is brought to its attention." Interest centres in the appearance today before the Grand Jury of William A. De Ford, counsel for the Hearst interests, who, it was said, had been served with a subpoena. This will be Mr. De Ford's first entrance into the Grand Jury's investigation. Another witness who is understood to have been asked to testify today is David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts. He appeared before the body as a witness on Monday.

Corporation Counsel William T. Burr visited District Attorney Swann yesterday afternoon and conferred at length over the legality of the Grand Jury's action in subpoenaing all of the correspondence of Mayor Hylan and other city officials. Assistant District Attorney Alfred J. Talley also took part in the conference. Although Mr. Burr and the District Attorney believe that the subpoenas for the correspondence could be quashed upon application to a court of competent jurisdiction, according to a person close to the two city heads, no such course will be pursued. No effort will be made by the Mayor or his official family to prevent the Grand Jury from examining any document or paper which that body may choose, it was said.

Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, who was closeted with the Committee of Eight much of the time it was in session, yesterday declined to make any comment on the developments of the inquiry. District Attorney Swann was also non-committal except to say that he was prepared to submit two anarchist cases when the Extraordinary Grand Jury was ready to hear him.

SHAKESPEAREANS IN ARMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Despite the outcry from lovers of Shakespeare, permission was recently given to a Birmingham firm to build an aluminium factory at Stratford-on-Avon, within a thousand yards of the house where Shakespeare was born.

There is, however, hope that the matter may be brought up in the House of Commons. Sir Sidney Lee, chairman of the executive committee of the Shakespeare Birthplace Trust, said today that a number of well-known people were considering the promotion of a bill which, if passed by Parliament, would save Stratford and other places of a like historic interest from disfigurement by industrial concerns.

CHINA TO REBUFF JAPAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, Nov. 11.—The Japanese have started a movement to induce the Chinese Government to open negotiations direct with Japan for the return of Kiao-Chau. Chinese resentment against the Paris award is as keen as ever. The Chinese realize, however, that there is no need of further discussion and are content to await the final decision of the League of Nations.

The Shantung Provincial Assembly has telegraphed the Government offering negotiations with Japan. It says it is confident the League of Nations decision will see justice done to China.

The Government, it is believed, has not changed its attitude and will not open negotiations with Japan.

THE PAS, Manitoba, Nov. 11.—A long Winter, as bitter as that of 1915, when the mercury fell to 54 degrees below zero, was predicted by trappers reaching here today, who reported outlying settlements surrounded by great packs of wolves. This, they asserted, was a sure indication of cold weather.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Chairman Will H. Hays today issued a call for the Republican National Committee to meet at 11 A. M., Dec. 10, in Washington, to fix the time and place for the next Republican National Convention. Apparently the fight for the convention will between Chicago and St. Louis.

Drop in Sterling Sends Silver Down.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 11.—The "liberation" of women from the "thralldom in which custom, law, and public opinion bound them" virtually is accomplished, according to an address written by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, read at the formal opening of the convention of the National Council of Women here tonight. Mrs. Catt, who is President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, was unable to be present.

Governor Frederick D. Gardner of Missouri, also absent, sent the State's welcome to the women, saying their work during the war had "impressed men that woman should be given her full and equal rights and responsibilities."

As the work of the Suffrage Association virtually is finished, Mrs. Catt asserted, it probably would dissolve at its convention in Chicago next February, and be displaced by the League of Women Voters, "whose aim is to stimulate more intelligent citizenship and higher political ideals." She surveyed the accomplishments of the association, adding:

"The leaders of the suffrage association were the only women, apparently, possessed of the vision of the final liberation of women from the thralldom in which custom, law, and public opinion bound them. This is about realized.

"The end of the suffrage struggle is in sight. The controversy of a century, which once was waged with eggs and cabbage, has closed. The delegates of the association will not sit with your council again; with your permission, the League of Women Voters will take its place.

"In view of the momentous changes, I suggest that the council mark the close of the period now drawing to an end by dropping the Woman Suffrage Committee and in its stead establish a Committee on Good Citizenship."

Elimination of hatred and injustice, and the substitution of co-operation in social and industrial activities, was urged in a message from Mrs. May Wright Sewell of Framingham, Mass., Honorary President of the International Council of Women.

Another message was from Mrs. W. E. Sanford of Ontario, President of the Canadian Council of Women. She urged the women to become more active in world affairs and to co-operate in eradicating evil.

Greetings also were received from the Marchioness of Aberdeen and Temair, President of the International Council of Women and from women's organizations in many foreign countries.

RUTH LAW SEEKS PLANE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—Ruth Law, the American aviator, came to Paris today in her search for an airplane with which she intends to try to beat Lieutenant Maynard's cross-continent record.

Miss Law says she believes there can be found in France a plane which will combine speed and fuel capacity better than any American machine. She will begin her visits to French airplane manufacturers tomorrow.

Miss Law said she had not decided whether she would go after Lieutenant Maynard's record this Winter or wait until next Spring. That probably depended on how long it took her to buy a suitable machine and get it to America.

And listen, Brothers, they are roomy—roomy where you need room, which means they don't necessarily make you look like a dirigible in the name of comfort.

The Business Labyrinth

ONE of the wonders of ancient times was the Labyrinth—a vast network of chambers, courts and corridors so cunningly arranged that it was impossible to find one's way out without a guide.

Under a Mercantile Trusteeship, a permanent TRUST COMMITTEE instituted by the Mercantile Trust Company meets at regular and frequent intervals to direct all trust investments made in the interest of Mercantile clients—a most important provision.

The members of this experienced Committee are selected by the Mercantile Board of Directors from its own personnel. The President of the Company serves ex officio.

The above business arrangement can be made very simply. The fees are fixed by law. We shall be glad to explain any details.
